† Many scales require a careful description. If there is the least doubt as to the correct denomination of a scale, the indenting officer should specify the number of divisions and sub-divisions in a given measurement, and the method of numbering for instance, 12″ divided into 60 parts, numbered successively from 1 to 60, each part to be sub-divided into two.

A Bill to provide for cases in which Mines or Minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for cases in which mines or minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; It is hereby enacted as follows:— X of 1870.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Land Acquisition (Mines) Act, 1885.

Short title, local extent and commencement.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) When the Local Government makes a declaration under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, that land is needed for a public purpose or for a Company, it may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines of coal, iron-stone, slate or other minerals lying under the land or any particular portion of the land, except only such parts of the mines or minerals as are necessary to be dug or carried away or used in the construction of the work for the purpose of which the land is being acquired, are not needed. [cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 77.] X of 1870.

Statement in declaration under section 6 of Act X of 1870 that mines not needed.

(2) If any such statement is inserted in the declaration, any mines of coal, iron-stone, slate or other minerals under the land or portion of the land specified in the declaration, except as aforesaid, shall not, when the Collector takes possession of the land under section 16 or section 17 of the said Act, vest in the Government.

3. If the owner, lessee or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under any land so acquired is desirous of working or getting the same, he shall give the Local Government notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working. [cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

Notice to be given by owner, &c., before working mines lying under land.

4. On the receipt of a notice under the last foregoing section, the Local Government may cause the mines or minerals to be inspected by a person appointed by it for the purpose. [cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

Inspection of mines by Local Government.

The Land Acquisition (Mines) Bill, 1885.
(Sections 5-12.)

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

If Local Government offers to pay compensation, mines not to be worked.

5. (1) If it appears to the Local Government that the working or getting of the mines or minerals, or any part thereof, is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice under section 3 offer either—

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals or part thereof to the owner, lessee or occupier thereof; or

(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals, or part thereof, in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

(2) If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier shall not work or get the mines or minerals or part thereof;

(3) If the offer mentioned in case (b) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier shall not work or get the mines or minerals, or part thereof, save in the manner and subject to the restrictions specified by the Local Government.

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

Amount of compensation to be determined under Act X of 1870.

6. If the Local Government and the owner, lessee or occupier of any such mines or minerals, do not agree as to the amount of compensation to be paid under the last foregoing section, the same shall be settled in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, for determining the amount of compensation.

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s 79.]

If Local Government does not offer to pay compensation, mines may be worked in a proper manner.

7. (1) If before the expiration of the said thirty days the Local Government does not offer to pay any compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals for any loss he may sustain as provided in section 5, the owner, lessee or occupier may work the mines, or any part thereof, in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate.

(2) If any damage or obstruction is caused to the surface of the land or any works thereon by improper working of the mines, the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals shall at once at his own expense repair the damage or remove the obstruction, as the case may require.

(3) If the repair or removal is not at once effected, or, if the Local Government so thinks fit, without waiting for the same to be effected by the owner, lessee or occupier, the Local Government may execute the same and recover from the owner, lessee or occupier the expense occasioned thereby.

Power to officer of Local Government to enter and inspect the working of mines.

8. For better ascertaining whether any such mines are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land acquired or the works thereon, an officer appointed for this purpose by the Local Government may, after giving twenty-four hours' notice in writing, enter on any land in or near which the land acquired is situate, and wherein any such mines are being worked or are supposed to be worked, and enter into and return from any such mines or the works connected therewith; and for that purpose the officer so appointed may make use of any apparatus or machinery belonging to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines, and use all necessary means for discovering the distance from the land acquired to the parts of the mines which are being worked or about to be worked.

Penalty for refusal to allow inspection.

9. If any owner, lessee or occupier of any such mines refuses to allow any officer appointed by the Local Government for that purpose to enter into and inspect any such mines or works in manner aforesaid, every person so offending shall for every such refusal forfeit to the Local Government a sum not exceeding two hundred rupees.

If mines improperly worked, Local Government may require means to be adopted for safety of land acquired.

10. If it appears that any such mines have been worked contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, give notice to the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary or proper for making safe the land acquired, and preventing injury thereto; and, if after such notice any such owner, lessee or occupier does not forthwith proceed to construct the works necessary for making safe the land acquired, the Local Government may itself construct the works and recover the expense thereof from the owner, lessee or occupier.

Construction of Act when land acquired has been transferred to a Company.

11. When a statement under section 2 has been made regarding any land and the land has been acquired for a Company and has been transferred by the Local Government to the Company, then sections 3 to 10, both inclusive, shall be read as if for the words "the Local Government" wherever they occur in those sections the words "the Company which has acquired the land" were substituted.

Definition of Company.

12. In this Act "Company" means a Company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or by Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

VI of 1

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for cases in which mines or minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

2. Act XXII of 1863, which was replaced by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, contained specific provisions (sections 51 and 52) for cases in which mines and minerals lay under land taken up under that Act. These provisions were not, however, re-enacted in the Act of 1870, which, as the Government is advised, contemplates the acquisition of the underlying minerals as well as the surface of the land.

3. Hitherto this state of the law has caused no inconvenience. Now, however, owing to its being proposed to extend railways across districts where there is a certain amount of coal to be found, notice has been drawn to the inconvenience of the existing law which practically compels the Government either to purchase all the mines and minerals under the land over which it is proposed to construct a line or to abandon the undertaking altogether.

4. Under these circumstances, the present Bill has been prepared. It does not, however, simply re-enact the provisions which Act XXII of 1863 formerly contained, inasmuch as they do not appear to be adapted to the circumstances of the case. It follows rather the rules contained in the English Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, (8 Vic., c. 20, ss. 77 et seq.) which it extends to the acquisition of land for all purposes and not merely for the construction of Railways.

5. It provides, first, (section 2) that when a declaration is made by the Local Government under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines or minerals lying under the land to be acquired are not needed, and that if any such statement is inserted in the declaration, the mines or menerals lying under the land shall not, when the Collector takes possession of the land under section 16 or section 17 of the Act, vest in the Government.

6. It then (section 3) declares that if the owner, lessee or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under any land so acquired is desirous of working the same, he shall give the local Government notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working.

7. Next (section 4), the Bill empowers the local Government to cause the mines or minerals to be inspected by a person appointed by it for the purpose.

8. If it appears (section 5) to the local Government that the working of the mines or minerals is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice, offer either—

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals to the owner, lessee or occupier ;

(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions, as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier is prohibited from working the mines or minerals, whilst if the offer mentioned in case (b) is made, then he may not work or get the mines or minerals, save in the manner and subject to the restrictions specified by the local Government.

9. The Bill next provides (section 6) for the manner in which the amount of compensation to be paid under section 5 is to be determined.

10. Should, however, the local Government not offer to pay any compensation, section 7 permits the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals to work the mines in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate. Should any damage or obstruction be caused by improper working of the mines, the section provides for the repairing of the damage or the removal of the obstruction by or at the cost of the owner, lessee or occupier.

11. Sections 8 and 9 provide for the inspection of mines for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land which has been acquired and section 10 declares that if any mines have been improperly worked, the Local Government may require the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary for making safe the land acquired and preventing injury thereto.

12. Lastly, section 11 makes the provisions of sections 3 to 10 applicable to cases where the land acquired has been transferred to a company, and section 12 defines what the term "Company" as used in the Bill means.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 13TH OF MARCH 1885.

At the close of the previous week, it was remarked that southerly winds had become rather general in Bengal at both the coast and inland stations. On the 7th, however, pressure began to fall, the fall being particularly noticeable in North Bengal, and an area of distinctly low pressure formed over this district. Winds consequently became more westerly and in some cases more northerly, but on the following day the area of low pressure in North Bengal rapidly filled up and disappeared. On the 9th, however, a large area of low barometric readings existed over Central India and parts of the Central Provinces, while pressure fell rapidly at the West Bengal stations and particularly in Chutia Nagpur. Pressure continued to fall rapidly on the following day, and a distinct, but slight, barometric depression was formed in Chutia Nagpur and South Behar, and the wind directions in West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur generally shewed a slight cyclonic circulation round the depression. These slightly disturbed conditions brought light but only moderately general rain on the 10th instant in Chutia Nagpur, and in the Shahabad district of South Behar, while a few slight showers were reported from South-West Bengal. The shallow depression moved in an easterly direction on the 11th, pressure in West Bengal rising with its advance, and rain was on this day reported from Orissa, where it was general and in some cases heavy, while a few isolated showers fell in Chutia Nagpur and at some of the stations in the Midnapur district. The depression, however, rapidly passed away, and again at the end of the week southerly and westerly winds were blowing over the whole Province.

Pressure during the previous week had been very considerably above the normal. This excess pressure has continued to be a marked feature in the meteorology of the present week, though the excess has considerably diminished. The excess pressure continues to be greatest in Behar as it has been for some time past, the variations being from 0·063″ at Bankipur to 0·031″ at Chittagong, the average variation over the whole Provinces being equal to 0·05″.

Temperature has also continued below the normal, though there has been a steady increase almost throughout the week. The average defect has been equal to 2·3° over the whole Province, the extreme variation being a defect of 8·8° at False Point and of 1·1° at Calcutta. The mean maximum temperature over the whole of South-West Bengal for the past week was 89·1° or 2·5° higher than the corresponding mean of the previous week.

Rainfall, as has already been described, was entirely absent throughout the week in East Bengal, North Bengal and North Behar. In South-West Bengal and South Behar the amounts recorded were quite insignificant, having only averaged two hundredths of an inch. In Chutia Nagpur the fall averaged 0·18 inch, which is about half the normal fall, while in Orissa it averaged 0·31 inch, which is nearly twice the normal fall.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 13th March 1885 :—

MEMORANDA.

The returns of the first class Municipalities in Bengal (excluding Darjiling, from which no return was received up to date), for the week ending 28th February 1885, disclose the following particulars:—

1. That birth and deaths were recorded in these Municipalities at the rates, respectively, of 25·0 and 31·2 per 1,000 of population as opposed to 24·5 and 30·1 per 1,000 in the preceding week ending 21st February, indicating some improvement in the registration of both events.

2. That these events were returned in the highest proportions from the following Municipalities:—

Births.	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Bhagulpore	41·6	Purneah	65·7
Purneah	41·6	Serampore	56·9
Serampore	35·4	Santipore	54·3
Patna	34·7	Utterpara	47·2
Howrah	34·5	Suburbs of Calcutta	45·1
Burdwan	33·6	Hughli	38·9
Comillah	30·8	Gya	34·1
Kishnaghur	30·3	Burdwan	33·6
		Poori	33·6
		Midnapore	32·5
		Kishnaghur	32·2
		Patna	31·7

3. That the rates at which the several death-causes proved fatal, in comparison with the rates of the preceding week, were—

	Ratio per mille during weeks ending—
	28th February 1885.	21st February 1885.
Cholera	3·6	2·2
Small-pox	·6	·6
Fever	12·7	14·0
Bowel-complaints	5·8	4·5
Injury	·3	·4
Other causes	8·2	8·4

The chief points indicated by the above figures are that, there was a sensible increase of mortality from cholera and bowel-complaints, and an appreciable decrease in that from fever.

4. That, referring to the death-causes above indicated, while the casualties from injury were not large anywhere, the rest of them proved conspicuously fatal to life in the following Municipalities:—

Cholera.	Ratio per mille.	Small-pox.	Ratio per mille.	Fever.	Ratio per mille.	Bowel-complaints.	Ratio per mille.	Other Causes.	Ratio per mille.

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to, cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorised form of age classification.

General Remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over the East Indian Railway during the 3 weeks and 3 days ending 24th January 1885.

INCREASES.

Wheat.—A better demand in the Calcutta market, owing to a reported want of rain in the mofussil has caused the increase in this staple.

Indigo.—This increase is attributed to heavier despatches having been made later in the season than during 1883-84, owing to the market having been unfavourable in October and November.

Hides.—This is due to good prices and fair supplies.

Oil.—The increase was principally in kerosine oil, and is attributable to low prices in Calcutta attended with an active demand in the interior

DECREASES.

Coal.—This decrease is assignable to less demand from foreign railways and to less despatches of coal to Calcutta for kiln purposes

Cotton.—The cotton market was almost at a stand-still during January in consequence of high sea freights on the one hand, and heavy prices on the other, hence the decrease in this staple.

Piece-goods.—Discouraging accounts from up-country markets, native holidays, and weak local demand at Calcutta are the reasons assigned for this decrease.

Other Grains.—This may be attributed to local harvests having been good throughout the country.

Pulses and Gram—The same cause as given under the preceding head must be held to account for the decrease in these staples.

Opium.—This decrease is more than balanced by the increase in the despatches during the preceding month of December.

Railway Materials, Foreign.—This heavy decrease is attributable to completion of railway works which were in course of active construction during the corresponding period of last year

Seeds.—Due to the stock of teel seed having been exhausted, and the business in other seeds dull.

Rice (husked and unhusked)—Short crops owing to want of rain in the rice-producing districts is assigned as the reason for the decrease in this commodity.

Sugar—Want of demand and high prices are the causes for this decrease.

Government Stores.—This decrease is attributable to smaller despatches having been made this year than in 1884.

Range of visibility of light exhibited from the Krishna Shoal Lightship.

INFORMATION has been received from the Superintendent of Burma Lighthouses, Rangoon, that the Colombo lightvessel was replaced by a larger lightship on the 27th February 1885, moored in the same position, off the Krishna Shoal.

The light is a fixed white light, elevated 50 feet above the sea, visible all round the compass, and should be seen in clear weather from a distance of about 12 miles.

The light-vessel is painted red and has a red ball at the main mast-head.

A blue light will be burnt every half hour from 7 P.M. to 5 A.M.

The 17th March 1885.—The following Notices to Mariners are published for general information.

A. P. MACDONNELL,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, GENERAL (MARINE) DEPARTMENT.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.—(No. 11).

BAY OF BENGAL—BRITISH BURMA.

ARRACAN COAST.

Cheduba Strait.

THE following description of, and directions for, Cheduba Strait, resulting from the recent survey on the coast of Burma, have been furnished by Commander A. Carpenter, R.N., Commanding Her Majesty's Indian Marine Surveying Steamer Investigator.

CHEDUBA ISLAND.—NERBUDDA SHOAL.—A dangerous rocky shoal, 5 miles in length, N.-E. by N. and S.-W. by S., lies with its North-Eastern extreme S.-E. by E. ¾ E. 4 miles from Unguan or Tree island. It has several shoal heads upon it, the least water being 9 feet near its North-Eastern extreme. To pass to the westward of the shoal, do not bring Unguan island to the westward of North.

SHOALS.—A small shoal of 2½ fathoms rock lies 2½ miles N. by W. ¾ W. of Unguan island : there are 7 to 8 fathoms round about it. Two small patches of 4 fathoms and 5¼ fathoms rock lie 8 miles and 6 miles, respectively, N.-W. by N. from Beacon island in the vicinity of the reported breakers of 1878.

Caution.—A vessel proceeding up or down the coast of Arracan, outside Cheduba island, should not bring the west coast of Cheduba to bear to the southward of S.-E. by S. whilst in that vicinity. There are to be found regular depths of 10 to 11 fathoms between these shoals and Beacon island.

PORT CHILDERS.—This port should on no account be entered.

CHEDUBA STRAIT.—DIRECTIONS FOR NORTHWARD.—Follow the coast at a distance of 2 to 3 miles until the highest point of Ramree hills, overlooking the Strait, bears E. by when steer E. by S. ½ S. for the dome-shaped hillock which marks the South extreme of the range. When Sandy point on Chebuda island bears S. ¼ W., haul to S.-S.-E. ¼ E., which course will lead down in not less than 3½ fathoms at low-water.

DIRECTIONS FOR SOUTHWARD.—Pass to the eastward of Round island at 1 to 2 miles distance, and when it bears West steer N.-N.-W. ¼ W for the West extreme of the land then visible ahead: when the summit of the Ramree hills bears E. ¼ N., haul to W. by N. ¼ N., and keep the dome-shaped hillock astern.

The Bearings are Magnetic.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, GENERAL (MARINE) DEPARTMENT.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.—(No. 12).

BAY OF BENGAL—ORISSA COAST.

Dhamra River.

THE following description of, and directions for, Dhamra river, resulting from the recent survey on the coast of Orissa, have been furnished by Commander A. Carpenter, R.N., Commanding Her Majesty's Indian Marine Surveying Steamer Investigator.

PALMYRAS SHOALS.—These shoals extend from the Palmyras buoy, which marks their N.-E. extreme, for 7¾ miles to the Southward. or to latitude 20° 40′ 30″ N. They have protruded slightly since last surveyed, and the Outer edge is now in longitude 87° 12′ 40″ E: 4½ and 3½ fathoms, hard sand, will now be found one mile and 2½ miles, respectively, S.-S.-E. of the buoy with 11 fathoms outside them.

DIRECTIONS.—A vessel proceeding from the Hooghly river to False Point should not bring the Palmyras buoy to bear North of N.-N.-W. until 5 miles South of it, when she may shape course for False Point without getting less than 5½ fathoms.

DHAMRA RIVER.—OUTER BAR BUOYS.—H. buoy has been removed 3 cables N.-E. by E. of its former position, and now lies 1½ miles N.-E. ½ E. from Shortt's beacon.

F. buoy has been removed 3¾ cables N.-N.-E. of its former position, and now lies 1¾ miles N. ¼ W. from Shortt's beacon.

D. buoy has been shifted 1¾ cables N.-N.-W. of the former position.

SHOAL.—A small shoal, of 8 feet at low-water, lies 3½ cables E. ¼ N. of G. buoy. The least water will now be got by entering with G. and D. buoys in line passing to the northward of G. buoy.

SHOAL SPIT.—A shoal spit has projected into the channel, in the Dhamra river, from the West end of Kalibanj island towards the Celerity buoy.

DIRECTIONS.—Keep the north bank of the Dhamra river till the Celerity buoy is in line with the perch on the opposite bank ¾ miles farther up, when strike across to the other bank, passing close to the buoy on either side. This leads over the ridge in 10 feet at present, but it may possibly change at different seasons of the year.

PILOTS' RIDGE.—Her Majesty's Indian Marine Surveying Steamer Investigator had lately completely re-sounded the Pilot's Ridge: it is reported that there is no material change in the depths, and the Admiralty Chart No. 814 (or Mr. Carrington's Indian Survey Chart No. 115) may be relied upon, with the exception of the shallow soundings near the Eastern Channel and the Mutla light-ships.

PILOTS' RIDGE BUOY.—This buoy now lies in latitude 20° 49′ 30″ N., longitude 87° 39′ 30″ E.

The Bearings are Magnetic.

By direction of the Government of Bengal,

ARTHUR W. STIFFE, Captain, I.M.,

IRRIGATION.

The 24th March 1885.

No. 118.—Notification.—Notice is hereby given that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the provisions of section 6 of Act II (B.C.) of 1882, to declare that clause 6 of section 76 of that Act shall take effect over a tract of country extending for three miles from the right or north bank of Buxee khall, in pergunnah Mundulghat, in the district of Hooghly. The erection of any new embankment, or any addition to an existing embankment, or the obstruction or diversion of any watercourse within the tract above defined, without the previous permission of the Collector, is prohibited.

No. 119.—Notification.—Notice is hereby given that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes under sections 78, 79, 80, 81 and 99 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876 to pass the following rules for carrying out the provisions of the said Act, with respect to the Sarun Canals. These rules will supersede those at present in force :—

1. In Notification No. 179, dated 18th August 1879, under the provisions of Part II of Act III of 1876, Government has reserved to itself the rights of property in the water in the following canals and river beds forming part of the Sarun irrigation scheme :—

1. Roopun Chap Sota.
2. The head cut.
3. The Daha river and the water channels in continuation of or in connection with it.
4. The Gandaki river and the water channels in continuation of or in connection with it.
5. The Dhanai river and the water channels in continuation of or in connection with it.
6. Gangri river and the water channels in continuation of or in connection with it.

These canals and rivers will hereinafter be referred to as the Sarun Canals.

2. No person shall take water from the Sarun Canals for irrigation or manufacturing purposes without the written permission of a duly authorized person.

Licenses will be required—

(a)—For the construction of temporary dams in the canal beds.

(b)—For the irrigation of lands by flow or lift.

(c)—For the construction of village channels and distributaries leading from the canals for the irrigation of lands.

(d)—For water used for the purpose of any manufacture by any person other than a canal manager.

(e)—For the erection of fishing weirs or the use of fishing nets—(1) in the head cut; (2) in the new cuts from the Roopun Chap Sota to the Daha, Gandaki, Dhanai, and Gangri river beds; (3) in any other new cuts which may be made hereafter.

3. Government reserves at present its right to levy tolls for irrigation, and to charge for filling tanks, watering cattle, or for water for other domestic purposes.

4. The revenue administration of the Sarun irrigation scheme is vested in the Collector, who is ex-officio head of the Canal Revenue Department. The Executive Engineer of the Gunduck Division as canal officer is charged with the maintenance and management of the canals, but all orders passed by him under the Act or these rules are appealable to the Collector, under whose general directions he will act. All orders relating to the canal revenue will usually be issued by the Collector (through the Executive Engineer or not, as the case may be), and all correspondence intended for the Collector in this department should be addressed to the Collector direct, or through the Executive Engineer, Mozufferpore, or the Assistant Engineer, Gopalgunge.

5. For administrative purposes, the Sarun district is divided into the sub-districts enumerated in the following rule, and shown in a map deposited in the Collector's office. The boundaries of the sub-districts and their number may be hereafter modified.

6. The following guarantors are, till further orders, appointed canal managers, and will, within the under-mentioned sub-districts, act as the agents of Government in managing the affairs of the canals.

Manager of the Arua concern for the time being.
Ditto	Bansapali	ditto.
Ditto	Bahrowli	ditto.
Ditto	Burhoga	ditto.
Ditto	Harpur	ditto.
Ditto	Hatwa estates	ditto.
Ditto	Jogapur concern	ditto.
Ditto	Nowada	ditto.
Ditto	Rajapatti	ditto.
Ditto	Ramkola	ditto.
Ditto	Sadowa	ditto.
Ditto	Sitalpur	ditto.

7. The more particular duties of a Canal Manager will be—

1*st*.—To receive applications and grant permits, printed in the prescribed form, for the use of water under sections 74, 75, and 77 of the Irrigation Act.

2*nd*.—Subject to the instructions of the canal officers to distribute, under the provisions of section 76, the water-supply allotted to his sub-district.

3*rd*.—To recover and credit to Government the water-rates.

4*th*.—To superintend and maintain such establishment as may be found necessary for the assessment and collection of water-rates within his sub-district.

8. Canal Managers have no power under Parts III, IV, and V of the Act; and all claims to remission under section 76 of Part VI should be referred to the canal officer or his assistant for disposal. Complaints regarding unauthorized use of canal water under sections 79, 80, and 81 are also to be referred to the canal officer or Collector for decision. All proceedings connected with the recovery of water-rates by distraint or other compulsory process will be undertaken by the Collector.

9. Any Manager desiring the construction of a temporary dam across the Roopan Chap Sota, or across the bed of the Daha, Gandaki, Dhanai, or Gangri rivers must prefer a written application to the canal officer specifying the object of the work and the length of time for which it is required. It will be at the discretion of the canal officer to reject the application or to grant it on such conditions as he may think fit, one of the conditions being the power reserved to the canal officer of cutting the bund, if it should ever appear to him, in the public interests, necessary to do so.

Provided, however, that no such dam shall be constructed without due provision being made, by means of a proper escape channel, for the supply to the guarantor or guarantors, on the same river below such dam, of the share of water to which he or they may be entitled under the decision of the canal officer.

10. Any person other than a Manager who may desire to construct a temporary dam across the bed of any of the rivers mentioned in the last rule must prefer his application to the Canal Manager in charge of the sub-district in which the site of the proposed dam lies. The latter will then forward the application with his remarks to the canal officer for orders.

11. Any person, whether he be a Canal Manager or not, who constructs a dam across any of the river beds referred to in Rule 9, without having first obtained the written permission of the canal officer, or who after the construction of an authorized dam, does or abets the doing of any act to impede the free flow of water through the escape channel provided for such dam, will be liable to prosecution under section 93, Act III (B.C.) of 1876, chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code, or otherwise as may seem proper to the Collector.

12. With reference to Rule 7, paragraph 2 above, it will be competent to the Canal Manager, subject to the control of the canal officer, and on his own responsibility,* to allow the construction of such temporary dams in any of the village channels (subsidiary to the main river beds mentioned in Rule 9) within his sub-district, as he may consider necessary for the proper distribution of the water-supply allotted thereto.

* With reference to the possible damage to crops, &c.

13. If one or more of the riparian proprietors desire to have a permanent dam or regulator constructed in any channel or river bed, he or they shall present an application to that effect to the Collector, who will consult the Canal Manager and the canal officer as to the desirability of constructing such dam or regulator. Should its construction be deemed desirable, the Collector will cause plans and estimates to be prepared, and he shall also call upon the applicants to deposit the cost (including cost of establishment), or to give a guarantee securing its payment when required, and providing that, if the cost of the work should, through unforeseen causes, exceed the original estimate, the balance will be made good by the applicant. The agreement will also provide for the dam or regulator being kept in proper repair, as well as for its being taken over by Government at a fair valuation, should this ever be considered expedient. The construction of such dam or regulator will be carried out by the canal officer, who shall also have power to stop all supplies of water if it is not subsequently maintained in proper repair.

14. Each application for a permanent dam or regulator will be considered on its own merits, and will only be granted on such conditions as the Collector in consultation with the Superintending Engineer shall consider fit.

15. A register will be kept of the owners of each permanent dam or regulator, and any person may at any time apply to the canal officer to be made a joint owner. The canal officer may either reject such application, or if he think fit, he may issue a notice upon the registered owner or owners, and after hearing any objection which the registered owner or owners may prefer against the admission of such applicant to be a joint owner, in either case he shall report fully to the Collector, who may confirm the original rejection of the application, or may direct that the applicant be registered as such joint owner, on payment to the registered owner or owners of such sums as may be fixed by him.

16. Persons desiring to irrigate their fields with canal water by flow or lift, must apply in person or by agent to the Canal Manager, whereupon the latter shall issue a permit in the prescribed form (Appendix B). The right to irrigate without extra charge extends up to the 31st of March following the date on which the permit was issued; provided, however, that under the operation of this rule one and the same crop be not assessed more than once. The rate charged shall not exceed Re. 1 per acre (or 12 annas per bigha), irrespective of the crops grown, except in special cases to be determined by Government.

17. Any person other than a Canal Manager desirous of taking water for the manufacture of indigo must apply for a permit to the Canal Manager, stating the estimated outturn, and undertaking that he will, on the 1st of October, declare the quantity he has manufactured. The charge will be at the rate of Rs. 2 per maund of indigo manufactured.

18. No person may allow water to run to waste, and no person other than a Canal Manager may use water for irrigation or for any other purpose without having first obtained a permit as required by the preceding two rules. Any person infringing this rule will, with the consent in writing of the Collector (but not otherwise), be charged double the ordinary rates for the water used without authority or wasted, and will in addition be liable, on prosecution by the Collector or canal officer, to the penalty provided by section 93 of Act III (B. C.) of 1876, or by any other law under which his offence may come. The charge in such cases will, as a rule, be laid by the Canal Manager by the submission to the canal officer or Collector of an "Unauthorized Irrigation Certificate." (See Appendix C.)

19. The privileges of guarantors are as follows:—

(1)—A prior claim to a supply of water for irrigation and manufacture during the continuance of their guarantee.

(2)—The right to use water for manufacturing purposes free of charge.

20. Any person may apply to the Collector to become a guarantor. If the Collector accept the application, which at his discretion he may or may not do, he shall proceed, in communication with the canal officer, to determine whether the new guarantee shall be utilized towards extending the canals, providing distributaries or embankments, or towards reducing the responsibility of any of the original guarantors. If the original guarantor (within whose sub-district the applicant's property or interest is situated) claims a reduction in his guarantee, and can at the same time show that the application of the new guarantor towards an extension of the canal would operate to reduce his collections below the amount of his guarantee, his claims to have his guarantee reduced shall be considered: otherwise the new guarantee may be applied towards extending the canals and an area corresponding to the applicant's property or interests be marked off to him, within which he shall exercise the rights and privileges now exercised in their sub-districts by the guarantors mentioned in paragraph 6 of these rules.

If the applicant's interest or property be not situated within any sub-district as specified in paragraph 6, then the Collector shall apply the guarantee towards extending the benefits of the canal system.

21. The irrigation year will commence on the 1st April; and as soon as possible after the irrigation of any land has been completed or the manufacture of indigo [by a person other than the Canal Manager] has been concluded, the Canal Manager shall present the persons who used the water with bills for water-rates (in a form approved by Government) based upon the actual area irrigated or the outturn of indigo manufactured. If these bills are not paid [a] in the case of indigo manufacture within one month after presentation, [b] in the case of rubbi crops by the 1st March, [c] in the case of other crops within one month after the crop irrigated has been cut, the Canal Manager shall, without delay, submit a list of such unpaid bills to the Collector, who will put in force the powers vested in him for the recovery of the amount due in accordance with sections 83, 84, and 85 of the Indian Irrigation Act. Such list must be supported by the counterfoils of the bills (Appendix B) prepared by the Manager, as well as by his personal certificate, that he has satisfied himself of the justness of the claims; and in the case of unauthorized irrigation, by the "Unauthorized Irrigation Certificates" (Appendix C) required by Rule 18.

22. The sums thus recovered by the Collector will be placed in his (the Collector's) accounts to the credit of the Canal Manager as a set off against the amount due from him under his guarantee for the year during which such recoveries are made. The Canal Manager will be entitled to a commission of 20 per cent. on all recoveries (over and above the amount of his guarantee), made either by himself or by the Collector on lists submitted on or before the 31st March. Sums due on this account will not be shown by the Manager in his accounts, but will be paid to him by cheque after the adjustment by the Collector of the year's accounts. No percentage allowance will be granted to the Manager in respect of recoveries made by the Collector on lists submitted later than the 31st March, although the amount of such recoveries will, as stated above, be credited to him as an asset against the amount of his guarantee.

23. For water used by a Manager for the irrigation of his own lands, he will be charged at the ordinary rate of Re. 1 per acre (or 12 annas per bigha), and for sums due on this account he will not be entitled to any commission allowance.

24. It will be the duty of Canal Managers—

1st.—To see that all permits for the use of water be issued in the prescribed form, and a copy be kept in counterfoil in books supplied for the purpose.

2nd.—That copies of bills presented for payment be kept in the counterfoils supplied, for record

3rd.—That a cash-book of all receipts of water-rates be kept in forms supplied for the purpose.

4th.—That for all cash received receipts be granted in the form supplied by the canal officer, which will be kept in counterfoil.

5th.—That all cash received be paid monthly into the sub-divisional or district treasury, and that the treasury receipts be filed with the cash-book as vouchers.

6th.—To submit such returns as may be required from time to time by the Collector.

7th.—To afford every facility to the canal officer and Collector in their periodical inspection of the Canal Managers' office and accounts.

25. The amount yearly guaranteed by each Manager is payable in two equal instalments, viz. on the 30th of June and the 31st December of each year, and any arrear due on either of these dates will be deemed to be a demand under Act VII (B. C.) of 1880, and shall be recoverable by the processes prescribed by the above Act.

26. A yearly adjustment up to the 31st March will be made of each Manager's account as soon as possible after the close of the official year (31st March). For this purpose each Manager will, by the 15th April, submit to the Collector in duplicate a statement in form Appendix D, with the entries of the first 12 columns duly filled in. The Collector will supply the figures for the remaining columns, and return one copy to the Manager with a cheque for the sum payable on account of commission as shown in column 15, should no arrears from him be due. The Collector will also require the immediate deposit by the Manager of any arrears which may be shown to be due. Such arrears if not paid within one month after due notice to the Manager, will be recoverable under the Certificate Procedure Act (VII B.C. of 1880).

IRRIGATION.

The 16th March 1885.

No. 106.—Notice is hereby given that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the powers conferred on him by sections XI and XII of Act V (B.C.) of 1864 (the Canals Act), to make the following alterations in the rules having reference to the undermentioned navigable channels :—

1. The river Bhagiruthee throughout its whole course, from the Ganges to Nuddea, or to its junction with the Hooghly.
2. The river Hooghly, from Nuddea to its junction with the river Matabhanga.
3. The river Jellinghee, from the Ganges to Nuddea.
4. The river Bhoyrub, from the Ganges to Nuddea.
5. The river Matabhanga from the Ganges to its junction with the Hooghly.
6. Such portions of the river Ganges as may be within 5 miles of the entrance for the time being of the Bhagiruthee, the Bhyrub, the Jellinghee and the Matabhanga rivers, respectively, which were passed in Notification No. 175, dated the 30th July 1879, and published in Part I of the Calcutta Gazette of that date, pages 783 to 789.

For the 1st paragraph of rule II, substitute the following :—

The tonnage of every vessel shall for the purpose of the Canals Act, 1864, and of these rules be determined by the following measurements.

Add to rule II as clause (d) :—In the case of steamers, the tonnage as determined by clauses a, b and c shall be reduced by one-half as an allowance for engine and cabin space.

Rules 3 and 4 will be abolished.

IRRIGATION.

The 10th March 1885.

No. 93.—Notification.—In the exercise of the powers conferred upon him by section 99 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876, the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to cancel Nos. 43, 46, 47 and 48 of the rules for the Sone Canals, passed on the 31st August 1880, and republished under this Department Notification No. 148, dated the 20th June 1881, in pages 637-646, Part I of the Calcutta Gazette of 22nd June 1881. His Honour also proposes, under section 99 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876, to pass the following rules in substitution of rules 46, 47 and 48 referred to above :—

46. Objections to the demand shall be presented personally, or through the lumbardar to the Divisional or Sub-divisional Canal Officer within one month from the date of the publication of the khationi in the village.

47. If the Divisional Canal Officer reject the claim, he shall, if the petitioner so desire, give him a copy or extract of his order, and any appeal to the Collector under section 91, or to the Superintending Canal Officer in cases where that officer's decision is final, shall be accompanied by such copy or extract. Any such appeal shall be made within one month from the date on which the order was issued by the Divisional Canal Officer.

When an "objection" is presented in the first instance to a Sub-divisional Canal Officer, a copy of the order passed shall, on application, be given to the petitioner, and every "objection" presented to the Divisional Canal Officer shall be accompanied by such copy or by a statement that no previous "objection" has been presented to the Sub-divisional Canal Officer, or if such "objection" was presented, and the Sub-divisional Officer has omitted to pass any order, by a note of the date on which it was presented.

48. Objections, if orders have not been passed within 40 days from the date of their being filed in the office of the Divisional Canal Officer, may be presented direct to the Collector, if accompanied by a statement certifying the date on which they were so filed and that no order has been passed. The Collector shall then make such reference to the Divisional Canal Officer as may be necessary, and shall have discretion to suspend collections by a written order in cases where it may seem advisable to do so.

From—C. A. WILKINS, Esq., Officiating Registrar,
To—All District Judges.

THE Court having reason to believe that a diversity of practice exists in the Civil Courts of Bengal in regard to the travelling allowance to which an Ameen is entitled when he has to travel at the instance of suitors, I am directed to point out that, as Civil Court Ameens are officers in civil employ, their travelling allowance should be regulated by the Travelling Allowance Code of 1883, notwithstanding that such allowance has to be realized from the suitors.

Monghyr Collectorate, the 10th March 1885. H. KHAN, Collector.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undermentioned plots of land, no longer required by Government, situated along the Western or Bettiah Extension of the Tirhoot State Railway, in the district of Mozufferpore, will be put up to sale at noon of the 8th April 1885, and following days at Mozufferpore.

The purchasers of the plots will be subject to the following conditions :—

1*st*.—The purchasers will have no power to make any excavations on the land nearer than fifteen feet from the railway fencing, or plough it closer than three feet from its foundation.

2*nd*.—If the amount of purchase money does not exceed Rs. 100, the whole amount to be paid down at once.

3*rd*.—If the amount of purchase money exceed Rs. 100, one-fourth of the amount bid to be immediately deposited. If the balance be not paid by noon of the fifteenth day after the sale, reckoning the day of sale as one, or if that day be a close holiday, then by noon of the first succeeding office day, the sale to be cancelled, the sum deposited being forfeited to Government, and the estate to be again put up for sale at the risk of the defaulting purchaser, after issue of advertisement, as in the case of original sale.

4*th*.—The plots will be sold revenue-free to the highest bidders.

5*th*.—The purchasers shall be put in possession on receipt of the orders of the Collector approving of the sales. But such possession shall be liable to be disturbed in case the final confirmation of the Board of Revenue should not be accorded to the proceedings.

Mymensingh Collectorate, the 7th March 1885. E. G. GLAZIER, Collector.

NOTICE is hereby given that the proprietary rights of Government, as specified in the conditions of sale below, to the undermentioned estates, situate in the district of Bhagulpore, thana Bejay, pergunnah Chyee, will be put up to sale at the Bhagulpore Collectorate on Tuesday, the 28th April 1885, corresponding with 29th Baisakh 1292 F.S.

The purchasers will be subject to the following conditions of sale:—

Conditions of Sale.

1*st.*—The estates to be sold revenue-free to the highest bidder above the upset price.

The purchasers of these estates will be considered as the proprietors of these estates, and the entire proprietary rights of Government in such estates will be transferred to them.

2*nd.*—The sale to be subject to existing leases and to the rights conferred by the settlement proceedings and by the laws in force, and purchasers to be bound to respect the rights of resident cultivators who have signed the schedule of assessment prepared by the revenue authorities.

3*rd.*—If the amount of purchase money exceed Rs. 100, one-fourth of the amount bid to be immediately deposited. If balance be not paid by noon of the 15th day after the sale, reckoning the day of sale as one, or if that day be a close holiday, then by noon of the first succeeding office day, the sale to be cancelled (the sum deposited being forfeited to Government) and the estate to be again put up to sale at the risk of the defaulting purchaser after issue of advertisement as in the case of original sale.

Sale of Government land at Durbhunga revenue-free.

NOTICE is hereby given that the land and buildings of the old Durbhunga station yard, about 1,860 feet distant from the new station yard, will be put up to sale at noon of the 30th March 1885 at the Durbhunga railway station.

The land comprises an area of 16 acres 2 roods and 7 poles, equal to bighas 50 and 14 chittacks of the standard measure of 80 cubits square. Within this area is included a tank measuring 2 acres and 11 poles, and several out-houses and other buildings.

The entire plot of land measuring 16 acres 2 roods and 7 poles, with the tank and the buildings as they stand, will be put up as one lot at an upset price of twenty-thousand rupees (Rs. 20,000)

If there is no bid above Rs. 20,000, the sale will be withdrawn.

The purchaser will have no power to make any excavations on the land nearer than fifteen feet from any railway fencing, or plough it closer than 3 feet from such fence.

One-fourth of the amount bid shall be immediately deposited, and the balance paid before noon of the fifteenth day after the day of sale, reckoning the day of sale as one, or if that day be a close holiday, then by noon of the first succeeding office day. If the balance of the purchase money is not paid as above, the sale will be cancelled and the amount deposited forfeited to Government, and the estate will be again put up for sale at the risk of the defaulting purchaser, after issue of advertisement.

The land, with the tank and building thereon, will be sold revenue-free to the highest bidder.

The purchaser will be put in possession on receipt of the orders of the Collector of the district approving the sale, but such possession will be liable to be disturbed in case the final confirmation of the Board of Revenue shall not be accorded to the proceedings.

A. D'B. GOMESS, Deputy Collector of Railways.

THE LIBRARY.

This institution has been established, at the desire and with the assistance of the Punjab Government, in order to provide a Public Library for the use of all classes in the province.

Admission to the Reading-Room is free; and books will be lent out subject to rules and subscriptions, which can be ascertained on application to the Librarian.

A large contribution of books and pecuniary support have been promised by Government; but the Committee earnestly appeal to the public for further contributions of books, both European and Oriental.

Privileges will be given to donors of twenty volumes and upwards.

Until the library is formally opened, a private donation of standard works, accepted by the Committee and valued by them as worth not less than Rs. 50, will entitle the donor to the privileges of life member. A second donation of the same value will entitle the donor to nominate a life member.

Life members will be exempt from payment of deposits, subscriptions and fees otherwise required by the rules.

Assistance is especially desired towards securing a complete collection of books relating to India and the East.

Societies, Institutions, and Departments of Government are invited to contribute.

Donors of books may make it a condition of the donation that any of the books they give shall not be lent out, except to the Donor.

Communications should be addressed to——The Secretary, Punjab Public Library, Lahore.

A Manual of Tibetan, being a Guide to the Colloquial Speech of Tibet, in a series of progressive Exercises, by Major T. H. Lewin, F.R.G.S., of the Bengal Staff Corps, late Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling. Price, Rs. 6; postage, 3 annas.

Copies are to be had at the Office of the Director of Public Instruction.

PART IV.

Bill of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st March 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report thereon in a week :—

A Bill to regulate Ferries in Bengal.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate Ferries within the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal: It is enacted as follows :—

Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the "Bengal Ferries Act, 1885."

Extent and commencement of Act.

2. It shall extend to all the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal:

And it shall come into force on such date as the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Regulation VI of 1819 and Bengal Act I of 1866 repealed.

3. Regulation VI of 1819, so far as it relates to, or has effect in, the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and Bengal Act I of 1866 are hereby repealed; but all determinations, declarations, orders, and rules made, engagements entered into, and securities taken, under such Regulation and Act shall be deemed to be respectively made, entered into and taken under this Act.

Interpretation.

4. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Commissioner."

"Commissioner" means the Commissioner of a Division.

"Ferry."

"Ferry" includes a bridge of boats, pontoons or rafts, a swing-bridge, a flying-bridge, and a temporary bridge, and the approaches to, and landing places of, a ferry.

"Notification."

"Notification" means a notification published in the Calcutta Gazette.

"Private ferries."

"Private Ferries" includes all ferries other than those declared to be public ferries, or established as such, under section five of this Act.

PART I.

PUBLIC FERRIES.

Power to declare, establish, define, and discontinue public ferries.

5. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor from time to time to—

(a) declare what ferries shall be deemed public ferries, and the respective districts in which, for the purposes of this Act, they shall be deemed to be situate;

(b) take possession of a private ferry and declare it to be a public ferry;

(c) establish new public ferries where, in his opinion, they are needed;

(d) define the limits of any public ferry;

(e) change the course of any public ferry, and (f) discontinue any public ferry which he deems unnecessary.

Every such declaration, establishment, definition, change or discontinuance, shall be made by notification:

Provided that, when any alteration in the course or in the limits of a public ferry is rendered necessary by changes in the river on which such ferry is established, such alteration may be made, by an order in writing, by the Commissioner, or by such other officer or authority as the Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, either by name or by official designation appoint.

Claims for compensation, and what amount to be awarded.

6. Claims for compensation for any loss sustained by any person or persons in consequence of a private ferry being taken possession of under section five shall be enquired into by the Magistrate of the District in which such ferry is situated, or such other officer as he appoints in this behalf, who shall award compensation to any such person or persons who may appear justly entitled thereto. Such compensation shall be calculated upon an estimate of the annual net profit actually realized by such person or persons from such ferry on an average of the five years next preceding such declaration, and shall in no case exceed the amount of fifteen times such net annual profit.

Superintendence of public ferries.

7. The immediate superintendence of every public ferry shall, except as provided in section thirty-six, be vested in the Magistrate of the District in which such ferry is situated, or in such other officer as the Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, either by name or by official designation appoint.

And such Magistrate or officer shall, except when the tolls at such ferry are leased, make all necessary arrangements for the supply of boats for such ferry, and for the collection of the authorized tolls leviable thereat.

Letting ferry-tolls by auction.

8. The tolls of any public ferry may, from time to time, be let by public auction for such term not exceeding five years as the Magistrate of the District in which such ferry is situated, with the approval of the Commissioner, may direct.

The Magistrate of the District or the officer authorized by him to conduct such auction may, for sufficient reason to be recorded in writing, refuse to accept the offer of the highest bidder, and may accept any other bid, or may withdraw the tolls from auction.

Execution of contract by lessee.

The lessee of every ferry which has been let under this section shall execute a contract setting forth the conditions on which the tolls of such ferry are to be held, and shall give security for its due fulfilment.

Lessee of public ferry and his servants bound to conform to rules.

9. When a public ferry has been duly let the lessee and every servant of the lessee shall be deemed to be legally bound to conform to the rules made under this Act for the management and control of such ferry.

Provision for the establishment of subsidiary ferries.

10. On the requisition of the Magistrate of the District the person in charge of a public ferry situate in such district shall maintain at one or more places, in addition to the place at which the said public ferry is established, and within two miles therefrom, such number of subsidiary ferries as may seem to the Magistrate to be necessary for the public convenience: and all the provisions contained in this Act in regard to the management of public ferries shall be deemed applicable to any subsidiary ferry maintained under the requisition of the Magistrate.

Recovery of arrears from lessee.

11. All arrears due by the lessee of the tolls of a public ferry on account of his lease; any pecuniary forfeiture for breach of contract inserted in the deed of contract or conditions of sale by public auction; and all sums due from the lessee on the surrender of his lease under section thirteen, may be recovered from the lessee or his surety (if any) as a demand under Bengal Act VII of 1880, or any other Act at the time being in force for the recovery of public demands.

Power to cancel lease.

12. The lease of the tolls of any public ferry shall be liable to be cancelled at once by the Magistrate of the District in which such ferry is situated if it shall appear to such Magistrate that the lessee has failed to make due provision for the convenience or safety of the public within fifteen days after being required to do so by a notice in writing from such Magistrate.

Surrender of lease.

13. The lessee of the tolls of a public ferry may surrender his lease on the expiration of one month's notice in writing to the Magistrate of the District in which such ferry is situated of his intention to surrender such lease, and on payment of such compensation as the Magistrate, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, may in each case direct.

Power to make rules in regard to public ferries.

14. The Magistrate of the District, with the approval of the Commissioner, may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) for the management of all public ferries within such district, and for regulating the traffic at such ferries;

(b) for regulating the time and manner at and in which, the terms on which, and the person by whom, the tolls of such ferries may be let by auction;

(c) for compensating persons who have compounded for tolls payable for the use of any such ferry when such ferry has been discontinued before the expiration of the period compounded for, and

(d) generally to carry out the purposes of this Act:

And when the tolls of a ferry have been let under section eight, such Magistrate may, from time to time with such approval as aforesaid, make additional rules consistent with this Act—

(e) for collecting the rents payable for the tolls of such ferries;

(f) for regulating the returns of traffic to be, from time to time, submitted by the lessee of such ferries;

(g) in cases in which the communication is to be established by means of a bridge of boats, pontoons or rafts, or a swing-bridge, flying-bridge or temporary bridge, for regulating the time and manner at and in which such bridge shall be constructed and maintained, and opened for the passage of vessels and rafts through the same, and

(h) in cases in which the traffic is conveyed in boats, for regulating the number and kinds of such boats and their dimensions and equipment;

the number of the crew to be kept by the lessee for each boat;

the maintenance of such boats in good condition;

the hours during which, and the intervals within which, the lessee shall be bound to ply, and the number of passengers, animals and vehicles, and the bulk and weight of other things that may be carried in each kind of boat at one trip.

And may, from time to time, with such approval as aforesaid, repeal or alter such rules.

Rules made under this section shall be subject to the control of the Lieutenant-Governor, and shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor directs, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Private ferry not to ply within two miles of public ferry without sanction.

15. No person shall, except with the sanction of the officer charged with the superintendence of a public ferry, keep a ferry-boat for the purpose of plying for hire to or from any point within a distance of two miles from the limits of such public ferry:

Provided that in the case of any specified public ferry, the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification, reduce or increase the said distance of two miles to such extent as he thinks fit:

Provided also that, nothing hereinbefore contained shall prevent persons keeping boats to ply between two places, one of which is without, and one within, the said limits, when the distance between such two places is not less than three miles, or shall apply to boats which the Lieutenant-Governor expressly exempts from the operation of this section.

Person using approaches to public ferries liable to pay toll.

16. Whoever uses the approach to, or landing-place of, a public ferry is liable to pay the toll payable for crossing such ferry.

Tolls.

17. Tolls, according to such rates as may, from time to time, be fixed by the Magistrate of the District with the approval of the Commissioner, shall be levied on all persons, animals, vehicles, and other things crossing any river by a public ferry and not employed or transmitted on the public service:

Provided that the Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, declare that any persons, animals, vehicles or other things shall be exempt from payment of such tolls.

Where the tolls of a ferry have been let under section eight, any such declaration, if made after the date of the auction, shall entitle the lessee to such abatement of the rent payable in respect of the tolls as may be fixed by the Magistrate of the District under this section.

Table of tolls.

18. The lessee or other person authorized to collect the tolls of any public ferry shall affix a table of such tolls, legibly written or printed in the vernacular language, and also, if the Commissioner so directs, in English, in some conspicuous place near the ferry:

and shall be bound to produce, on demand, a list of the tolls signed by the Magistrate of the District or such other officer as he appoints in this behalf.

List of tolls.

Tolls, rents, compensation, and fines how to be appropriated.

19. Except as provided by section thirty-six, all tolls, rents, and compensation received by, or on behalf of, the Government, and all fines levied under this Act, shall be appropriated in the first instance towards the payment of all charges incurred in carrying out the provisions of this Act, and the surplus, if any, shall be credited to such fund as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct.

Compounding for tolls.

20. It shall be lawful for the Magistrate of the District in which a public ferry is situated, with the approval of the Commissioner, from time to time to fix rates at which any person may compound for the tolls payable for the use of such ferry.

PART II.

PRIVATE FERRIES.

Power to make rules in regard to private ferries.

21. The Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, from time to time make rules, consistent with this Act, for the maintenance of order, and for the safety of passengers and property at private ferries situated in his division.

And may from time to time with such sanction as aforesaid repeal or alter such rules.

Rules made under this section shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor directs, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Tolls.

22. The tolls charged at such ferries shall not exceed the highest rates for the time being fixed under section seventeen for similar public ferries.

PART III.

PENALTIES AND CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

Penalty for breach of provisions as to table of tolls, list of tolls, and return of traffic.

23. Every lessee or other person authorised to collect the tolls of a public ferry, who neglects to affix and keep in good order and repair the table of tolls mentioned in section eighteen, or who wilfully removes, alters or defaces such table, or allows it to become illegible, or who fails to produce on demand the list of the tolls mentioned in section eighteen, and every lessee who neglects to furnish any return required under section fourteen, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Penalty for taking unauthorised toll, and for causing delay.

24. Every such lessee or other person as aforesaid, and any person in possession of a private ferry, asking or taking more than the lawful toll, or without due cause delaying any person, animal, vehicle or other thing, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Penalty for breach of rules made under sections 14 and 21.

25. Every person breaking any rule made under section fourteen or section twenty-one shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

Cancelment of lease on default or breach of rules

26. When any lessee of the tolls of a public ferry makes default in the payment of the rent payable in respect of such tolls, or has been convicted of an offence under section twenty-five, or, having been convicted of an offence under section twenty-three or section twenty-four, is again convicted of an offence under either of those sections, the Magistrate of the District may, with the approval of the Commissioner, cancel the lease of the tolls of such ferry, and make other arrangements for its management during the whole or any part of the term for which the tolls were let.

Penalties on passengers offending.

27. Every person crossing by any public ferry, or using the approach to or landing-place thereof, who refuses to pay the proper toll; and every person—who, with intent to avoid payment of such toll, fraudulently or forcibly crosses by any such ferry without paying the toll, or who obstructs any toll-collector or lessee of the tolls of a public ferry, or any of his assistants, in any way in the execution of their duty under this Act, or who, after being warned by any such toll-collector, lessee or assistant not to do so, goes or takes any animals, vehicles or other things into any ferry-boat, or upon any bridge at such a ferry, which is in such a state or so loaded as to endanger human life or property, or who refuses or neglects to leave, or remove any animals, vehicles or goods from any such ferry-boat or bridge on being requested by such toll-collector, lessee or assistant to do so, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Penalty for plying within public ferry-course without license.

28. Whoever conveys for hire any passenger, animal, vehicle or other thing in contravention of the provisions of section fifteen shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Fines payable to lessee.

29. Where the tolls of any public ferry have been let under the provisions hereinbefore contained, the whole or any portion of any fine realized under section twenty-seven or section twenty-eight may, notwithstanding anything contained in section nineteen, be, at the discretion of the convicting Magistrate or Bench of Magistrates, paid to the lessee.

Penalty for rash navigation and stacking of timber.

30. Whoever navigates, anchors, moors or fastens any vessel or raft, or stacks any timber, in a manner so rash or negligent as to damage a public ferry shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both; and the toll-collector or lessee of the tolls of such ferry, or any of his assistants, may seize and detain such vessel, raft or timber pending the enquiry and assessment hereinafter mentioned.

Power to arrest without warrant.

31. The Police may arrest without warrant any person committing an offence against section twenty-seven or section thirty.

Power to try summarily.

32. Any Magistrate or Bench of Magistrates having summary jurisdiction under Chapter XXII of the Code of Criminal Procedure may try any offence against this Act in the manner provided by that Chapter.

Magistrate may assess damage done by offender.

33. Every Magistrate or Bench of Magistrates trying any offence under this Act may enquire into and assess the value of the damage (if any) done or caused by the offender to the ferry concerned, and shall order the amount of such value to be paid by him in addition to any fine imposed upon him under this Act; and the amount so ordered to be paid shall be leviable as if it were a fine, or when the offence is one under section thirty by the sale of the vessel, raft or timber causing the damage, and of anything found in or upon such vessel or raft.

The Commissioner may, on the appeal of any person deeming himself aggrieved by an order under this section, reduce or remit the amount payable under such order.

PART IV.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Power to take possession of boats, &c., on surrender or cancellation of lease.

34. On the cancelment or surrender of a lease, the Magistrate of the District may take possession of all boats and other appliances which have been used by the lessee in the working of the ferry; and may either retain the same permanently on payment of a fair price to the proprietor, or may retain them for such time as may be necessary, not exceeding three months, until he can make arrangements for such other boats and appliances as may be necessary, in which case the Magistrate of the District shall pay a fair sum to the owners for the use of the said boats and appliances:

Provided that within a week of taking such possession, the Magistrate of the District shall be bound to give notice to the said lessee of his intention to retain the said boats and appliances permanently, or for a period to be specified in the notice.

Similar power in cases of emergency.

35. When any boats or their equipment, or any materials or appliances suitable for setting up a ferry, are emergently required for facilitating the transport of officers or troops of Her Majesty on duty, or of any other persons on the business of Her Majesty, or of any animals, vehicles or baggage belonging to such officers, troops or persons, or of any property of Her Majesty, the Magistrate of the District may take possession of and use the same (paying such compensation for the use thereof as the Lieutenant-Governor may in each case direct) until such transport is completed.

Management may be vested in District Board or Municipality.

36. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor to direct that any public ferry situated in any district in which a District Board has been established under the provisions of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885, or within any Municipality constituted under the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, shall be managed by such District Board or the Commissioners of such Municipality respectively: and such District Board or Commissioners shall have all the powers vested in the Magistrate of the District under this Act except the powers specified in sections six, seven, thirty-two and thirty-three, and the Lieutenant-Governor may further direct that all or any part of the proceeds of such ferry and all or any part of the fines levied, and compensation received, under this Act in respect thereof, be paid into the District Fund or Municipal Fund, respectively.

And thereupon such ferry shall be managed, and such proceeds, fines and compensations shall be paid accordingly.

Delegation of powers.

37. The Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, delegate, under such restrictions as he thinks fit, any of the powers conferred on him by this Act to any Commissioner or Magistrate of a District, or to such other officer or authority as he thinks fit, by name or by official designation.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE law relating to the administration of ferries in Bengal is now to be found in Regulation VI of 1819 and Act I (B.C.) of 1866. The Regulation vests the control of ferries in Magistrates and Joint-Magistrates, and gives them the exclusive power of framing rules for their management, fixing rates of toll, and appointing persons to superintend them. It is now proposed that most of the public ferries in Bengal should be placed under the management of District Boards and Municipalities, and this will entail an amendment of the law. The opportunity will be taken to replace the obsolete provision of the law by provisions which will accord with the actual conditions of the administration, and to introduce various improvements of which the necessity has long been recognized and which have only been postponed pending comprehensive legislation.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter I.—Preliminary.—Secs. 1-3.)

An Act to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

Commencement.

(2) It shall come into force on such date (hereinafter called the commencement of this Act) as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Local extent.

(3) It shall extend by its own operation to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the Town of Calcutta, the Division of Orissa, and the Scheduled Districts specified in the third Part of the First Schedule of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874; and the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, extend the whole or any portion of this Act to the Division of Orissa or any part thereof.

Repeal.

2. (1) The enactments specified in Schedule I hereto annexed are repealed in the territories to which this Act extends by its own operation.

(2) When this Act is extended to the Division of Orissa or any part thereof, such of those enactments as are in force in that Division or part, or, where a portion only of this Act is so extended, so much of them as is inconsistent with that portion, shall be repealed in that Division or part.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

(4) The repeal of any enactment by this Act shall not revive any right, privilege, matter or thing not in force or existing at the commencement of this Act.

Definitions.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context:—

(1) "Estate" means land included under one entry in any of the general registers of revenue-paying lands and revenue-free lands, prepared and maintained under the law for the time being in force by the Collector of a district, and includes Government khás maháls and revenue-free lands not entered in any register.

(2) "Proprietor" means a person owning, whether in trust or for his own benefit, an estate or a part of an estate.

(3) "Tenant" means a person who holds land under another person, and is, or but for a special contract would be, liable to pay rent for that land to that person.

(4) "Landlord" means a person immediately under whom a tenant holds, and includes the Government.

(5) "Rent" means whatever is lawfully payable or deliverable in money or kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by the tenant:

In sections 53 to 68, both inclusive, sections 72 to 75, both inclusive, Chapter XII and Schedule III of this Act, "rent" includes also money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force as if it was rent.

(6) "Pay," "payable" and "payment," used with reference to rent, include "deliver," "deliverable" and "delivery."

(7) "Tenure" means the interest of a tenure-holder or an under-tenure-holder.

(8) "Permanent tenure" means a tenure which is heritable and which is not held for a limited time.

(9) "Holding" means a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat and forming the subject of a separate tenancy.

(10) "Village" means an area included in a village map of the revenue-survey within the same exterior boundary, or, where no such maps have been prepared, such area as any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may determine after local inquiry held on such notice as the Local Government considers sufficient for giving information to all persons interested.

(11) "Agricultural year" means, where the Bengalí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Bysák, where the Faslí or Amlí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Asin, and, where any other year prevails for agricultural purposes, that year.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter II.—Classes of Tenants.—Secs. 4-5.)

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders.—Secs. 6-7.)

(12) "Permanent Settlement" means the Permanent Settlement of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, made in the year 1793.

(13) "Succession" includes both intestate and testamentary succession.

(14) "Signed" includes "marked" when the person making the mark is unable to write his name; it also includes "stamped" with the name of the person referred to.

(15) "Prescribed" means prescribed from time to time by the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette.

(16) "Collector" means the Collector of a district or any other officer appointed by the Local Government to discharge any of the functions of a Collector under this Act.

(17) "Revenue-officer" in any provision of this Act includes any officer whom the Local Government may appoint by name or by virtue of his office to discharge any of the functions of a Revenue-officer under that provision.

(18) "Registered" means registered under any Act for the time being in force for the registration of documents.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

Classes of tenants.

4. There shall be, for the purposes of this Act, the following classes of tenants, (namely) :—

(1) tenure-holders, including under-tenure-holders,

(2) raiyats, and

(3) under-raiyats, that is to say, tenants holding whether immediately or mediately under raiyats;

and the following classes of raiyats, (namely) :—

(a) raiyats holding at fixed rates, which expression means raiyats holding either at a rent fixed in perpetuity or at a rate of rent fixed in perpetuity,

(b) occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats having a right of occupancy in the land held by them, and

(c) non-occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats not having such a right of occupancy.

Meaning of "tenure-holder" and "raiyat".

5. (1) "Tenure-holder" means primarily a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder a right to hold land for the purpose of collecting rents or bringing it under cultivation by establishing tenants on it, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

(2) "Raiyat" means primarily a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of cultivating it by himself, or by members of his family, or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

Explanation.—Where a tenant of land has the right to bring it under cultivation, he shall be deemed to have acquired a right to hold it for the purpose of cultivation notwithstanding that he uses it for the purpose of gathering the produce of it or of grazing cattle on it.

(3) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat unless he holds land either immediately under a proprietor or immediately under a tenure-holder.

(4) In determining whether a tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat, the Court shall have regard to—

(a) local custom; and

(b) the purpose for which the right of tenancy was originally acquired.

(5) Where the area held by a tenant exceeds one hundred standard bighás, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shewn.

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

Enhancement of rent.

Enhancement of rent.

Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

6. Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof—

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by local custom or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, otherwise than on account of a diminution of the area of the tenure, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures.

7. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity.

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders.—Secs. 8-15.)

Enhancement of rent.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable, the Court shall not leave to the tenure-holder as profit less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting them, and shall have regard to—

(a) the circumstances under which the tenure was created, for instance, whether the land comprised in the tenure, or a great portion of it, was first brought under cultivation by the agency or at the expense of the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest, whether any fine or premium was paid on the creation of the tenure, and whether the tenure was originally created at a specially low rent for the purpose of reclamation; and

(b) the improvements, if any, made by the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest.

(4) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

Power to order gradual enhancement.

8. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

Rent once enhanced may not be altered for fifteen years.

9. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced by the Court or by contract, it shall not be again enhanced by the Court during the fifteen years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

Other incidents of tenures.

Other incidents of tenures.

Permanent tenure-holder not liable to ejectment.

10. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected:

Provided that where the contract is made after the commencement of this Act, the condition is consistent with the provisions of this Act.

Transfer and transmission of permanent tenure.

11. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

Other incidents of tenures.

Voluntary transfer of permanent tenure.

12. (1) A transfer of a permanent tenure by sale, gift or mortgage (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under any law relating to patní or other tenures) can be made only by a registered instrument.

(2) A registering officer shall not register any instrument purporting or operating to transfer by sale, gift or mortgage a permanent tenure unless there is paid to him, in addition to any fees payable under the Act for the time being in force for the registration of documents, a process-fee of the prescribed amount and a fee (hereinafter called "the landlord's fee") of the following amount, namely:—

(a) when rent is payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two per centum on the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees; and

(b) when rent is not payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two rupees.

(3) When the registration of any such instrument is complete, the registering officer shall send to the Collector the landlord's fee and a notice of the transfer and registration in the prescribed form, and the Collector shall cause the fee to be paid to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Transfer of permanent tenure by sale in execution of decree other than decree for rent.

13. (1) When a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall, before confirming the sale under section 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure, require the purchaser to pay into Court the landlord's fee prescribed by the last foregoing section and such further fee for service of notice of the sale on the landlord as may be prescribed.

XIV of 1882.

(2) When the sale has been confirmed, the Court shall send to the Collector the landlord's fee and a notice of the sale in the prescribed form, and the Collector shall cause the fee to be paid to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Transfer of permanent tenure by sale in execution of decree for rent.

14. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall send to the Collector a notice of the sale in the prescribed form.

Succession to permanent tenure.

15. When a succession to a permanent tenure takes place, the person succeeding shall give notice of the succession to the Collector in the prescribed form, and shall pay to the Collector the prescribed fee for the service of the notice on the landlord and the landlord's fee prescribed by section 12, and the Collector shall cause the landlord's fee to be paid to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Other incidents of tenures.

Bar to recovery of rent pending notice of succession.

16. A person becoming entitled to a permanent tenure by succession shall not be entitled to recover by suit, distraint or other proceeding any rent payable to him as the holder of the tenure, until the Collector has received the notice and fees referred to in the last foregoing section.

Transfer of, and succession to, share in permanent tenure.

17. Subject to the provisions of section 88, the foregoing sections shall apply to the transfer of, or succession to, a share in a permanent tenure.

CHAPTER IV.

RAIYATS HOLDING AT FIXED RATES.

Incidents of holding at fixed rates.

18. A raiyat holding at a rent, or rate of rent, fixed in perpetuity—

(a) shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the transfer of, and succession to, his holding as the holder of a permanent tenure, and

(b) shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

General.

General.

Continuance of existing occupancy-rights.

19. Every raiyat who immediately before the commencement of this Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land shall, when this Act comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

Definition of "settled raiyat".

20. (1) Every person who for a period of twelve years, whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village.

(2) A person shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have continuously held land in a village notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times. General.

(3) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(4) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyatí holding shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer.

(5) A person shall continue to be a settled raiyat of a village as long as he holds any land as a raiyat in that village and for one year thereafter.

(6) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 87, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year.

(7) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds any land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed for the purposes of this section, until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years continuously held that land or some part of it as a raiyat.

Settled raiyats to have occupancy-rights.

21. (1) Every person who is a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section shall have a right of occupancy in all land for the time being held by him as a raiyat in that village.

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section, held land as a raiyat in that village at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force; but nothing in this sub-section shall affect any decree or order passed by a Court before the commencement of this Act.

Effect of acquisition of occupancy-right by landlord.

22. (1) When the immediate landlord of an occupancy-holding is a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, and the entire interests of the landlord and the raiyat in the holding become united in the same person by transfer, succession or otherwise, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

(2) If the occupancy-right in land is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, it shall cease to exist; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

(3) A person holding land as an ijárádár or farmer of rents shall not, while so holding, acquire a right of occupancy in any land comprised in his ijárá or farm.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats.—Secs. 23-30.)

Explanation.—A person having a right of occupancy in land does not lose it by subsequently becoming jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, or by subsequently holding the land in ijárá or farm.

Incidents of occupancy-right.

23. When a raiyat has a right of occupancy in respect of any land, he may use the land in any manner which does not materially impair the value of the land or render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy; but shall not be entitled to cut down trees in contravention of any local custom.

Rights of raiyat in respect of use of land.

24. An occupancy-raiyat shall pay rent for his holding at fair and equitable rates.

Obligation of raiyat to pay rent.

25. An occupancy-raiyat shall not be ejected by his landlord from his holding, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground—

Protection from eviction except on specified grounds.

(a) that he has used the land comprised in his holding in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or

(b) that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

26. If a raiyat dies intestate in respect of a right of occupancy, it shall, subject to any custom to the contrary, descend in the same manner as other immoveable property: provided that, in any case in which under the law of inheritance to which the raiyat is subject his other property goes to the Crown, his right of occupancy shall be extinguished.

Devolution of occupancy-right on death.

Enhancement of rent.

27. The rent for the time being payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable until the contrary is proved.

Presumption as to fair and equitable rent.

28. Where an occupancy-raiyat pays his rent in money, his rent shall not be enhanced except as provided by this Act.

Restriction on enhancement of money-rents.

29. The money-rent of an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by contract, subject to the following conditions:—

Enhancement of rent by contract.

(a) the contract must be in writing and registered;

(b) the rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than two annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the raiyat;

(c) the rent fixed by the contract shall not be liable to enhancement during a term of fifteen years from the date of the contract;

Enhancement of rent.

(i) Nothing in clause (a) shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

(ii) Nothing in clause (b) shall apply to a contract by which a raiyat binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been or is to be effected in respect of the holding by, or at the expense of, his landlord, and to the benefit of which the raiyat is not otherwise entitled; but an enhanced rent fixed by such a contract shall be payable only when the improvement has been effected, and, except when the raiyat is chargeable with default in respect of the improvement, only so long as the improvement exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding.

(iii) When a raiyat has held his land at a specially low rate of rent in consideration of cultivating a particular crop for the convenience of the landlord, nothing in clause (b) shall prevent the raiyat from agreeing, in consideration of his being released from the obligation of cultivating that crop, to pay such rent as he may deem fair and equitable.

30. The landlord of a holding held at a money-rent by an occupancy-raiyat may, subject to the provisions of this Act, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, (namely):—

Enhancement of rent by suit.

(a) that the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate paid by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village, and that there is no sufficient reason for his holding at so low a rate;

(b) that there has been a rise in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent;

(c) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord during the currency of the present rent;

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats.—Secs. 31-36.)

Enhancement of rent.

(d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Explanation.—"Fluvial action" includes a change in the course of a river rendering irrigation from the river practicable when it was not previously practicable.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

31. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

(a) in determining what is the prevailing rate the Court shall have regard to the rates generally paid during a period of not less than three years before the institution of the suit, and shall not decree an enhancement unless there is a substantial difference between the rate paid by the raiyat and the prevailing rate found by the Court;

(b) if in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rules made under section 392 of the said Code;

XIV of 1882.

(c) in determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate; and whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom;

(d) in ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorized on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

32. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a rise in prices—

(a) the Court shall compare the average prices during the decennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other decennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison;

Enhancement of rent.

(c) if in the opinion of the Court it is not practicable to take the decennial periods prescribed in clause (a), the Court may, in its discretion, substitute any shorter periods therefor.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

33. (1) Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

(a) the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act;

(b) in determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the productive powers of the land caused or likely to be caused by the improvement,

(ii) the cost of the improvement,

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

(2) A decree under this section shall, on the application of the tenant or his successor in interest, be subject to re-consideration in the event of the improvement not producing or ceasing to produce the estimated effect.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of increase in productive powers due to fluvial action.

34. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action—

(a) the Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual;

(b) the Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

Enhancement by suit to be fair and equitable.

35. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, the Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which is under the circumstances of the case unfair or inequitable.

Power to order progressive enhancement.

36. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase hancement rent. yearly by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

Limitation of right to bring successive enhancement suits.

37. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of a rise in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 40, or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or on any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of section 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

V of 1882.

Reduction of rent.

38. (1) An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money-rent may institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on the following grounds, and, except as hereinafter provided in the case of a diminution of the area of the holding, not otherwise, (namely) :—

(a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other specific cause, sudden or gradual, or

(b) on the ground that there has been a fall, not due to a temporary cause, in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section, the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Price-lists of staple food-crops.

39. (1) The Collector of every district shall prepare, monthly, or at shorter intervals, periodical lists of the market-prices of staple food-crops grown in such local areas as the Local Government may from time to time direct, and shall submit them to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

(2) The Collector may, if so directed by the Local Government, prepare for any local area like price-lists relating to such past times as the Local Government thinks fit, and shall submit the lists so prepared to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

(3) The Collector shall, one month before submitting a price-list to the Board of Revenue under this section, publish it in the prescribed manner within the local area to which it relates, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area, within the said period of one month, presents to him in writing any objection to the list, he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list. Price-lists.

(4) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette; and any manifest error in any such list discovered after its publication may be corrected by the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue.

(5) The Local Government shall cause to be compiled from the periodical lists prepared under this section lists of the average prices prevailing throughout each year, and shall cause them to be published annually in the official Gazette.

(6) In any proceedings under this chapter for an enhancement or reduction of rent on the ground of a rise or fall in prices, the Court shall refer to the lists published under this section, and shall presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year subsequent to the passing of this Act are correct, unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect.

(7) The Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, shall make rules for determining what are to be deemed staple food-crops in any local area and for the guidance of officers preparing price-lists under this section.

Commutation.

Commutation of rent payable in kind.

40. (1) Where an occupancy-raiyat pays for a holding rent in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or at rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another, either the raiyat or his landlord may apply to have the rent commuted to a money-rent. Commutation

(2) The application may be made to the Collector or Sub-divisional Officer, or to an officer making a settlement of rents under Chapter X, or to any other officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government.

(3) On the receipt of the application the officer may determine the sum to be paid as money-rent, and may order that the raiyat shall, in lieu of paying his rent in kind, or otherwise as aforesaid, pay the sum so determined.

(4) In making the determination the officer shall have regard to—

Commutation.

(b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years or during any shorter period for which evidence may be available; and

(c) the charges incurred by the landlord in respect of irrigation under the system of rent in kind, and the arrangements made on commutation for continuing those charges.

(5) The order shall be in writing, shall state the grounds on which it is made, and the time from which it is to take effect, and shall be subject to appeal in like manner as if it were an order made in an ordinary revenue proceeding.

(6) If the application is opposed, the officer shall consider whether under all the circumstances of the case it is reasonable to grant it, and shall grant or refuse it accordingly. If he refuses it, he shall record in writing the reasons for the refusal.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

Application of chapter.

41. This chapter shall apply to raiyats not having a right of occupancy, who are in this Act referred to as non-occupancy-raiyats.

Initial rent of non-occupancy-raiyat.

42. When a non-occupancy-raiyat is admitted to the occupation of land, he shall become liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord at the time of his admission.

Conditions of enhancement of rent.

43. The rent of a non-occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced except by registered agreement or by agreement under section 46:

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

Grounds on which non-occupancy-raiyat may be ejected.

44. A non-occupancy-raiyat shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be liable to ejectment on one or more of the following grounds, and not otherwise (namely):—

(a) on the ground that he has failed to pay an arrear of rent;

(b) on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected;

(c) where he has been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease, on the ground that the term of the lease has expired;

(d) on the ground that he has refused to agree to pay a fair and equitable rent determined under section 46, or that the term for which he is entitled to hold at such a rent has expired.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of expiration of lease.

45. A suit for ejectment on the ground of the expiration of the term of a lease shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of refusal to agree to enhancement.

46. (1) A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement.

(2) A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. The Court or officer shall forthwith cause it to be served on the raiyat in the prescribed manner, and when it has been so served it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been tendered.

(3) If a raiyat on whom an agreement has been served under sub-section (2) executes it, and within one month from the date of service files it in the office from which it issued, it shall take effect from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(4) When an agreement has been executed and filed by a raiyat under sub-section (3), the Court or officer in whose office it is so filed shall forthwith cause a notice of its being so executed and filed to be served on the landlord in the prescribed manner.

(5) If the raiyat does not execute the agreement and file it under sub-section (3), he shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have refused to execute it.

(6) If a raiyat refuses to execute an agreement tendered to him under this section, and the landlord thereupon institutes a suit to eject him, the Court shall determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding.

(7) If the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined, he shall be entitled to remain in occupation of his holding at that rent for a term of five years from the date of the agreement, but on the expiration of that term shall be liable to ejectment under the conditions mentioned in the last foregoing section, unless he has acquired a right of occupancy.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter VII.—Under-raiyats.—Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent.—Secs. 47—52.)

(8) If the raiyat does not agree to pay the rent so determined, the Court shall pass a decree for ejectment.

(9) In determining what rent is fair and equitable, the Court shall have regard to the rents generally paid by raiyats for land of a similar description and with like advantages in the same village.

(10) A decree for ejectment passed under this section shall take effect from the end of the agricultural year in which it is passed.

Explanation of "admitted to occupation."

47. Where a raiyat has been in occupation of land and a lease is executed with a view to a continuance of his occupation, he is not to be deemed to be admitted to occupation by that lease for the purposes of this chapter, notwithstanding that the lease may purport to admit him to occupation.

CHAPTER VII.

UNDER-RAIYATS.

Limit of rent recoverable from under-raiyats.

48. The landlord of an under-raiyat holding at a money-rent shall not be entitled to recover rent exceeding the rent which he himself pays by more than the following percentage of the same, (namely):—

(a) when the rent payable by the under-raiyat is payable under a registered lease or agreement—fifty per cent.; and

(b) in any other case—twenty-five per cent.

Restriction on ejectment of under-raiyats.

49. An under-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by his landlord, except—

(a) on the expiration of the term of a written lease;

(b) when holding otherwise than under a written lease, at the end of the agricultural year next following the year in which a notice to quit is served upon him by his landlord.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent.

Rules and presumptions as to fixity of rent.

50. (1) Where a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of an alteration in the area of the tenure or holding.

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent.

(2) If it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under this Act that either a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement:

Provided that if it is required by or under any enactment that in any local area tenancies, or any classes of tenancies, at fixed rents or rates of rent shall be registered as such on, or before, a date specified by or under the enactment, the foregoing presumption shall not after that date apply to any tenancy or, as the case may be, to any tenancy of that class in that local area unless the tenancy has been so registered.

(3) The operation of this section, so far as it relates to land held by a raiyat, shall not be affected by the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding.

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to a tenure held for a term of years or determinable at the will of the landlord.

Presumption as to amount of rent and conditions of holding.

51. If a question arises as to the amount of a tenant's rent or the conditions under which he holds in any agricultural year, he shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to hold at the same rent and under the same conditions as in the last preceding agricultural year.

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

Alteration of rent in respect of alteration in area.

52. (1) Every tenant shall—

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the excess is due to the addition to the tenure or holding of land which having previously belonged to the tenure or holding was lost by diluvion or otherwise without any reduction of the rent being made, and

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any deficiency proved by measurement to exist in the area of his tenure or holding as compared with the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the deficiency is due to the loss of land which was added to the area of the tenure or holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent.—Secs. 53—57.)

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

(2) In determining the area for which rent has been previously paid, the Court shall, if so required by any party to the suit, have regard to—

(a) the origin and conditions of the tenancy, for instance, whether the rent was a consolidated rent for the entire tenure or holding;

(b) whether the tenant has been allowed to hold additional land in consideration of an addition to his total rent or otherwise with the knowledge and consent of the landlord;

(c) the length of time during which the tenancy has lasted without dispute as to rent or area; and

(d) the length of the measure used or in local use at the time of the origin of the tenancy as compared with that used or in local use at the time of the institution of the suit.

(3) In determining the amount to be added to the rent, the Court shall have regard to the rates payable by tenants of the same class for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and, in the case of a tenure-holder, to the profits to which he is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure, and shall not in any case fix any rent which under the circumstances of the case is unfair or inequitable.

(4) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable as the diminution of the total yearly value of the tenure or holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the tenure or holding.

Payment of rent.

Instalments of rent.

53. Subject to agreement or established usage, a money-rent payable by a tenant shall be paid in four equal instalments falling due on the last day of each quarter of the agricultural year.

Time and place for payment of rent.

54. (1) Every tenant shall pay each instalment of rent before sunset of the day on which it falls due.

(2) The payment shall, except in cases where a tenant is allowed under this Act to deposit his rent, be made at the landlord's village-office, or at such other convenient place as may be appointed in that behalf by the landlord:

Provided that the Local Government may from time to time make rules, either generally or for any specified local area, authorizing a tenant to pay his rent by postal money-order.

Payment of rent.

(3) Any instalment or part of an instalment of rent not duly paid at or before the time when it falls due shall be deemed an arrear.

Appropriation of payments.

55. (1) When a tenant makes a payment on account of rent, he may declare the year or the year and instalment to which he wishes the payment to be credited, and the payment shall be credited accordingly.

(2) If he does not make any such declaration, the payment may be credited to the account of such year and instalment as the landlord thinks fit.

Receipts and accounts.

Receipts and accounts.

Tenant making payment to his landlord entitled to a receipt.

56. (1) Every tenant who makes a payment on account of rent to his landlord shall be entitled to obtain forthwith from the landlord a written receipt for the amount paid by him, signed by the landlord.

(2) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterfoil of the receipt.

(3) The receipt and counterfoil shall specify such of the several particulars shown in the form of receipt given in Schedule II to this Act as can be specified by the landlord at the time of payment:

Provided that the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe or sanction a modified form either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(4) If a receipt does not contain substantially the particulars required by this section, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

Tenant entitled to full discharge or statement of account at close of year.

57. (1) Where a landlord admits that all rent payable by a tenant to the end of the agricultural year has been paid, the tenant shall be entitled to receive from the landlord, free of charge, within three months after the end of the year, a receipt in full discharge of all rent falling due to the end of the year, signed by the landlord.

(2) Where the landlord does not so admit, the tenant shall be entitled, on paying a fee of four annas, to receive within three months after the end of the year a statement of account specifying the several particulars shown in the form of account given in Schedule II to this Act, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(3) The landlord shall prepare and retain a copy of the statement containing similar particulars.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent.—Secs. 58—63.)

eipts and ounts.

Penalties and fine for withholding receipts and statements of account and failing to keep counterparts.

58. (1) If a landlord without reasonable cause refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant a receipt containing the particulars prescribed by section 56 for any rent paid by the tenant, the tenant may, within three months from the date of payment, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty, not exceeding double the amount or value of that rent, as the Court thinks fit.

(2) If a landlord without reasonable cause refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same either the receipt in full discharge or, if the tenant is not entitled to such a receipt, the statement of account for any year prescribed in section 57, the tenant may, within the next ensuing agricultural year, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding double the aggregate amount or value of all rent paid by the tenant to the landlord during the year for which the receipt or account should have been delivered.

(3) If a landlord without reasonable cause fails to prepare and retain a counterfoil or copy of a receipt or statement as required by either of the said sections, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Local Government to prepare forms of receipt and account.

59. (1) The Local Government shall cause to be prepared and kept for sale to landlords at all sub-divisional offices forms of receipts with counterfoils and of statements of account suitable for use under the foregoing sections.

(2) The forms may be sold in books with the leaves consecutively numbered or otherwise as the Local Government thinks fit.

Effect of receipt by registered proprietor, manager or mortgagee.

60. Where rent is due to the proprietor, manager or mortgagee of an estate, the receipt of the person registered under the Land

l (B.C.) of 76. Registration Act, 1876, as proprietor, manager or mortgagee of that estate, or of his agent authorized in that behalf, shall be a sufficient discharge for the rent; and the person liable for the rent shall not be entitled to plead in defence to a claim by the person so registered that the rent is due to any third person.

But nothing in this section shall affect any remedy which any such third person may have against the registered proprietor, manager or mortgagee.

Deposit of rent.

Application to deposit rent in Court.

61. (1) In any of the following cases, namely:—

(a) when a tenant tenders money on account of rent and the landlord refuses to receive it or refuses to grant a receipt for it;

(b) when a tenant bound to pay money on account of rent has reason to believe, owing to a tender having been refused or a receipt withheld on a previous occasion, that the person to whom his rent is payable will not be willing to receive it and to grant him a receipt for it; Deposit of rent.

(c) when the rent is payable to co-sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of the co-sharers for the money, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent on their behalf; or the tenant may present to the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent of his tenure or holding an application in writing for permission to deposit in the Court the full amount of the money then due.

(d) when the tenant entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent,

(2) The application shall contain a statement of the grounds on which it is made; shall state—in cases (a) and (b), the name of the person to whose credit the deposit is to be entered, in case (c), the names of the sharers to whom the rent is due, or of so many of them as the tenant may be able to specify, and in case (d), the names of the person to whom the rent was last paid and of the person or persons now claiming it; shall be signed and verified, in the manner prescribed in section 52 of the Code of Civil Pro- XIV of 1882. cedure, by the tenant, or, where he is not personally cognizant of the facts of the case, by some person so cognizant; and shall be accompanied by a fee of such amount as the Local Government, from time to time, by rule, directs.

Receipt granted by Court for rent deposited to be a valid acquittance.

62. (1) If it appears to the Court to which an application is made under the last foregoing section that the applicant is entitled under that section to deposit the rent, it shall receive the rent and give a receipt for it under the seal of the Court.

(2) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the amount of the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if that amount of rent had been received—in cases (a) and (b) of the last foregoing section, by the person specified in the application as the person to whose credit the deposit was to be entered; in case (c) of that section, by the co-sharers to whom the rent is due; and in case (d) of that section, by the person entitled to the rent.

Notification of receipt of deposit.

63. (1) The Court receiving the deposit shall forthwith cause to be affixed in a conspicuous place at the Court-house a notification of the receipt thereof, containing a statement of all material particulars.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent.—Secs. 64-69.)

Deposit of rent.

(2) If the amount of the deposit is not paid away under the next following section, within the period of fifteen days next following the date on which the notification is so affixed, the Court shall forthwith—in cases (a) and (b) of section 61, cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be served, free of charge, on the person specified in the application as the person to whose credit the deposit was to be entered; in case (c) of that section, cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be posted at the landlord's village-office or in some conspicuous place in the village in which the holding is situate; and in case (d) of that section, cause a like notice to be served, free of charge, on every person who it has reason to believe claims or is entitled to the deposit.

Payment or refund of deposit.

64. (1) The Court may pay the amount of the deposit to any person appearing to it to be entitled to the same, or may, if it thinks fit, retain the amount pending the decision of a Civil Court as to the person so entitled.

(2) The payment may, if the Local Government so direct, be made by postal money-order.

(3) If no payment is made under this section before the expiration of three years from the date on which a deposit is made, the amount deposited may, in the absence of any order of a Civil Court to the contrary, be repaid to the depositor upon his application and on his returning the receipt given by the Court with which the rent was deposited.

(4) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by a Court receiving a deposit under the foregoing sections; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

Arrears of rent.

Arrears of rent.

Liability to sale for arrears in case of permanent tenure, holding at fixed rates or occupancy-holding.

65. Where a tenant is a permanent tenure-holder, a raiyat holding at fixed rates or an occupancy-raiyat, he shall not be liable to ejectment for arrears of rent, but his tenure or holding shall be liable to sale in execution of a decree for the rent thereof, and the rent shall be a first charge thereon.

Ejectment for arrears in other cases.

66. (1) When an arrear of rent remains due from a tenant not being a permanent tenure-holder, a raiyat holding at fixed rates or an occupancy-raiyat, at the end of the Bengali year where that year prevails, or at the end of the month of Jeyt where the Fasli or Amli year prevails, the landlord may, whether he has obtained a decree for the recovery of the arrear or not, and whether he is entitled by the terms of any contract to eject the tenant for arrears or not, institute a suit to eject the tenant. Arrears of rent.

(2) In a suit for ejectment for an arrear of rent a decree passed in favour of the plaintiff shall specify the amount of the arrear and of the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court reopens.

(3) The Court may for special reasons extend the period of fifteen days mentioned in this section.

Interest on arrears.

67. An arrear of rent shall bear simple interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum from the expiration of that quarter of the agricultural year in which the instalment falls due to the institution of the suit.

Power to award damages on rent withheld without reasonable cause, or to defendant improperly sued for rent.

68. (1) If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount of rent due by him, the Court may award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the amount of rent decreed, as it thinks fit:

Provided that interest shall not be decreed when damages are awarded under this section.

(2) If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit without reasonable or probable cause, the Court may award to the defendant, by way of damages, such sum, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as it thinks fit.

Produce-rents.

Produce-rents.

Order for appraising or dividing produce.

69. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement or division of the produce,—

(a) if either the landlord or the tenant neglects to attend, either personally or by agent, at the proper time for making the appraisement or division, or

(b) if there is a dispute about the quantity, value or division of the produce,

Bengal Tenancy Act.

it.

the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, make an order appointing such officer as he thinks fit to appraise or divide the produce.

(2) The Collector may, without such an application, make the like order in any case where in the opinion of the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate the making of the order would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace.

(3) Where a Collector makes an order under this section, he may, by order, prohibit the removal of the produce until the appraisement or division has been effected.

Procedure where officer appointed.

70. (1) When a Collector appoints an officer under the last foregoing section, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the officer to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selection of those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the appraisement or division; and the officer shall conform to the instructions so given.

(2) The officer shall, before making an appraisement or division, give notice to the landlord and tenant of the time and place at which the appraisement or division will be made; but if either the landlord or the tenant fails to attend either personally or by agent, he may proceed ex parte.

(3) When the officer has made the appraisement or division, he shall submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector.

(4) The Collector shall consider the report, and, after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and making such enquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass such order thereon as he thinks just.

(5) The Collector may, if he thinks fit, refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court, but, subject as aforesaid, his order shall be final and shall, on application to a Civil Court by the landlord or the tenant, be enforceable as a decree.

(6) Where the officer makes an appraisement, the appraisement papers shall be filed in the Collector's office.

Rights and liabilities as to possession of crop.

71. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the produce.

(2) Where rent is taken by division of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided, but shall not be entitled to remove any portion of the produce from the threshing-floor at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due division thereof at the proper time. Produce-rents.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

Liability for rent on change of landlord or after transfer of tenure or holding.

Tenant not liable to transferee of landlord's interest for rent paid to former landlord, without notice of the transfer.

72. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has before the payment given notice of the transfer to the tenant. Liability for rent on change of landlord or after transfer of tenure or holding.

(2) Where there is more than one tenant paying rent to the landlord whose interest is transferred, a general notice from the transferee to the tenants published in the prescribed manner shall be a sufficient notice for the purposes of this section.

Liability for rent after transfer of occupancy-holding.

73. When an occupancy-raiyat transfers his holding without the consent of the landlord, the transferor and transferee shall be jointly and severally liable to the landlord for arrears of rent accruing due after the transfer, unless and until notice of the transfer is given to the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Illegal Cesses, &c.

Abwáb, &c., illegal.

74. All impositions upon tenants under the denomination of abwáb, mahtut, or other like appellations, in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and all stipulations and reservations for the payment of such shall be void. Illegal cesses, &c.

Penalty for exaction by landlord from tenant of sum in excess of the rent payable.

75. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent lawfully payable, may, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding two hundred rupees; or, when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds two hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.

Improvements.

Improvements.

Definition of "improvement."

76. (1) For the purposes of this Act, the term "improvement," used with reference to a raiyat's holding, shall mean any work which adds to the value of the holding, which is suitable to the holding and consistent with the purpose for which it was let, and which, if not executed on the holding, is either executed directly for its benefit, or is, after execution, made directly beneficial to it.

(2) Until the contrary is shown, the following shall be presumed to be improvements within the meaning of this section:—

(a) the construction of wells, tanks, water-channels and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for the purposes of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture;

(b) the preparation of land for irrigation;

(c) the drainage, reclamation from rivers or other waters, or protection from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water, of land used for agricultural purposes, or waste-land which is culturable;

(d) the reclamation, clearance, enclosure or permanent improvement of land for agricultural purposes;

(e) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto; and

(f) the erection of a suitable dwelling-house for the raiyat and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

(3) But no work executed by the raiyat of a holding shall be deemed to be an improvement for the purposes of this Act if it substantially diminishes the value of his landlord's property.

Right to make improvements in case of holding at fixed rates and occupancy-holding.

77. (1) Where a raiyat holds at fixed rates or has an occupancy-right in his holding, neither the raiyat nor his landlord shall, as such, be entitled to prevent the other from making an improvement in respect of the holding, except on the ground that he is willing to make it himself.

(2) If both the raiyat and his landlord wish to make the same improvement, the raiyat shall have the prior right to make it, unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord.

Impro

Collector to decide question as to right to make improvement, &c.

78. If a question arises between the raiyat and his landlord—

(a) as to the right to make an improvement, or

(b) as to whether a particular work is an improvement, the Collector may, on the application of either party, decide the question, and his decision shall be final.

Right to make improvements in case of non-occupancy-holding.

79. (1) A non-occupancy-raiyat shall be entitled to construct, maintain and repair a well for the irrigation of his holding, with all works incidental thereto, and to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices; but shall not, except as aforesaid and as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission.

(2) A non-occupancy-raiyat who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

Registration of landlords' improvements.

80. (1) A landlord may, by application to such Revenue officer as the Local Government may appoint, register any improvement which he has lawfully made or which has been lawfully made at his expense or which he has assisted a tenant in making.

(2) The application shall be in such form, shall contain such information, and shall be verified in such manner, by local inquiry or otherwise, as the Local Government from time to time by rule directs.

(3) The officer receiving the application may reject it if it has not been made within twelve months—

(a) in the case of improvements made before the commencement of this Act—from the commencement of this Act;

(b) in the case of improvements made after the commencement of this Act—from the date of the completion of the work.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter IX.—Miscellaneous Provisions as to Landlords and Tenants.—Secs. 81—86.)

81. (1) If any landlord or tenant of a holding desires that evidence relating to any improvement made in respect thereof be recorded, he may apply to a Revenue-officer, who shall thereupon, at a time and place of which notice shall be given to the parties, record the evidence, unless he considers that there are no reasonable grounds for making the application, or it is made to appear that the subject-matter thereof is under inquiry in a Civil Court.

Application to record evidence as to improvement.

(2) When any matter has been recorded under this section, the record thereof shall be admissible in evidence in any subsequent proceedings between the landlord and tenant or any persons claiming under them.

82. (1) Every raiyat who is ejected from his holding shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made in respect thereof in accordance with this Act by him, or by his predecessor in interest, and for which compensation has not already been paid.

Compensation for raiyats' improvements.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act.

(5) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under this section for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

83. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under the last foregoing section for an improvement, regard shall be had—

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

(a) to the amount by which the value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement;

(b) to the condition of the improvement, and the probable duration of its effects

(c) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement; Improvements.

(d) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement; and

(e) in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land, to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the Court may, if the landlord and raiyat agree, direct that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

84. A Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord of a holding, and on being satisfied that he is desirous of acquiring the holding or part thereof for some reasonable and sufficient purpose having relation to the good of the holding or of the estate in which it is comprised, including the use of the ground as building ground, or for any religious, educational or charitable purpose, Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

and on being satisfied on the certificate of the Collector that the purpose is reasonable and sufficient, authorise the acquisition thereof by the landlord upon such conditions as the Court may think fit, and require the tenant to sell his interest in the whole or such part of the holding to the landlord upon such terms as may be approved by the Court, including full compensation to the tenant.

Sub-letting.

85. (1) If a raiyat sub-lets otherwise than by a registered instrument, the sub-lease shall not be valid against his landlord unless made with the landlord's consent. Sub-letting.

Restrictions on sub-letting.

(2) A sub-lease by a raiyat shall not be admitted to registration if it purports to create a term exceeding nine years.

(3) Where a raiyat has, without the consent of his landlord, granted a sub-lease by an instrument registered before the commencement of this Act, the sub-lease shall not be valid for more than nine years from the commencement of this Act.

Surrender and abandonment.

86. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his holding. Surrender and abandonment.

Surrender.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter IX.—Miscellaneous Provisions as to Landlords and Tenants.—Secs. 87-90.)

Surrender and abandonment.

(2) But, notwithstanding the surrender, the raiyat shall be liable to indemnify the landlord against any loss of the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice of his intention to surrender.

(3) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the Court shall in the following cases for the purposes of sub-section (2) presume, until the contrary is shown, that such notice was so given, namely:—

(a) if the raiyat takes a new holding in the same village from the same landlord during the agricultural year next following the surrender;

(b) if the raiyat ceases, at least three months before the end of the agricultural year at the end of which the surrender is made, to reside in the village in which the surrendered holding is situate.

(4) The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Civil Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate.

(5) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(6) When a holding is subject to an incumbrance secured by a registered instrument, the surrender of the holding shall not be valid unless it is made with the consent of the landlord and the incumbrancer.

(7) Save as provided in the last foregoing sub-section, nothing in this section shall affect any arrangement by which a raiyat and his landlord may arrange for a surrender of the whole or a part of the holding.

Abandonment.

87. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) Before a landlord enters under this section, he shall file a notice in the prescribed form in the Collector's office stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and is about to enter on it accordingly; and the Collector shall cause the notice to be published in such manner as the Local Government, by rule, directs.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy-raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may, on being satisfied that the raiyat did not voluntarily abandon his holding, order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured and payment of arrears of rent as to the Court may seem just. Surrender and abandonment.

(4) Where the whole or part of a holding has been sub-let by a registered instrument, the landlord shall, before entering under this section on the holding, offer the whole holding to the sub-lessee for the remainder of the term of the sub-lease at the rent paid by the raiyat who has ceased to cultivate the holding, and on condition of the sub-lessee paying up all arrears due from that raiyat. If the sub-lessee refuses or neglects within a reasonable time to accept the offer, the landlord may avoid the sub-lease and may enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or cultivate it himself as provided in sub-sections (1) and (2).

Sub-division of tenancy.

Division of tenancy not binding on land'ord without his consent.

88. A division of a tenure or holding, or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof, shall not be binding on the landlord unless it is made with his consent in writing. Sub-division of tenancy.

Ejectment.

No ejectment except in execution of decree.

89. No tenant shall be ejected from his tenure or holding except in execution of a decree. Ejectment.

Measurements.

Landlord's right to measure land.

90. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section and any contract, a landlord may, by himself, or by any person authorized by him in this behalf, enter on and measure all land comprised in his estate or tenure, other than land exempt from the payment of revenue. Measurements.

(2) A landlord shall not, without the consent of the tenant, or the written permission of the Collector, be entitled to measure land more than once in ten years, except in the following cases (namely):—

(a) where the area of the tenure or holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area;

(b) where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation;

(c) where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter IX.—Miscellaneous Provisions as to Landlords and Tenants.—Secs. 91-98.)

surements. (3) The ten years shall be computed from the date of the last measurement, whether made before or after the commencement of this Act.

Power for Court to order tenant to attend and point out boundaries.

91. (1) Where a landlord desires to measure any land which he is entitled to measure under the last foregoing section, the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order requiring the tenant to attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

(2) If the tenant refuses or neglects to comply with the order, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land, prepared under the direction of the landlord at the time when the tenant was directed to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Standard of measurement.

92. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made by the acre, unless the Court or Revenue officer directs that it be made by any other specified standard.

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any local measure other than the acre, the acre shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit or proceeding.

(3) The Local Government may, after local enquiry, make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement locally in use in that area, and every declaration so made shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Managers.

Managers.

Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

93. When any dispute exists between co-owners of an estate or tenure as to the management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue,

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, on the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served on all the co-owners, calling on them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager:

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims, and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876.

VII (B.C.) of 1876.

Power to order them to appoint a manager if cause is not shown.

94. If the co-owners fail to show cause as aforesaid within one month after service of a notice under the last foregoing section, the District Judge may make an order directing them to appoint a common manager, and a copy of the order shall be served on any co-owner who did not appear before it was made.

Managers.

Power to appoint manager if order is not obeyed.

95. If the co-owners do not, within such period, not being less than one month after the making of an order under the last foregoing section, as the District Judge may fix in this behalf, or, where the order has been served as directed by that section, within a like period after such service, appoint a common manager and report the appointment for the information of the District Judge, the District Judge may, unless it is shown to his satisfaction that there is a prospect of a satisfactory arrangement being made within a reasonable time,—

(a) direct that the estate or tenure be managed by the Court of Wards in any case in which the Court of Wards consents to undertake the management thereof; or (b) in any case appoint a manager.

Power to nominate person to act in all cases under clause (b) of last section

96. The Local Government may nominate a person for any local area to manage all estates and tenures within that local area for which it may be necessary to appoint a manager under clause (b) of the last foregoing section; and, when any person has been so nominated, no other person shall be appointed manager under that clause by the District Judge, unless in the case of any estate the Judge thinks fit to appoint one of the co-owners themselves as manager.

The Court of Wards Act, 1870, applicable to management by Court of Wards.

97. In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes under section 95 the management of an estate or tenure, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immoveable property shall apply to the management.

IX (B.C.) of 1879.

Provisions applicable to manager.

98. (1) A manager appointed under section 95 may, if the District Judge thinks fit, be remunerated by a fixed salary or percentage of the money collected by him as manager, or partly in one way and partly in the other, as the District Judge from time to time directs.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(3) He shall, subject to the control of the District Judge, have, for the purposes of management, the same powers as the co-owners jointly might but for his appointment have exercised, and the co-owners shall not exercise any such power

Managers.

(4) He shall deal with and distribute the profits in accordance with the orders of the District Judge.

(5) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts.

(6) He shall pass his accounts at such period and in such form as the District Judge may direct.

(7) He may make any application which the proprietors could make under section 103.

(8) He shall be removable by the order of the District Judge, and not otherwise.

Power to restore management to co-owners.

99. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 95, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners, if he is satisfied that the management will be conducted by them without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights.

Power to make rules.

100. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules defining the powers and duties of managers under the foregoing sections.

CHAPTER X.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

Power to order survey and preparation of record-of-rights.

101. (1) The Local Government may, in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that a survey be made, and a record-of-rights be prepared, in respect of the lands in a local area by a Revenue-officer.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council are the following (namely) :—

(a) where the landlord or a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants applies for such an order and deposits, or gives security for, such amount, for the payment of expenses, as the Local Government directs;

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally;

(c) where the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure which belongs to or is managed by the Government or the Court of Wards; and (d) where a settlement of revenue is being made in respect of the local area.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

Particulars to be recorded.

102. Where an order is made under the last foregoing section, the particulars to be recorded shall be specified in the order, and may include, either without or in addition to other particulars, some or all of the following, namely :—

(a) the name of each tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not, and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure;

(c) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land held by him;

(d) the name of his landlord;

(e) the rent payable;

(f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed, whether by contract, by order of a Court, or otherwise;

(g) if the rent is a gradually increasing rent, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases;

(h) the special conditions and incidents, if any, of the tenancy.

Power for Revenue-officer to record particulars on application of proprietor or tenure-holder.

103. On the application of a proprietor or tenure-holder, and on his depositing or giving security for the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record the particulars specified in the last foregoing section with respect to the estate or tenure or any part thereof.

Procedure as to recording or settling rents.

104. (1) When, in any proceeding under this chapter, it does not appear that the tenant is holding land in excess of or less than that for which he is paying rent, and neither the landlord nor the tenant applies for a settlement of rent, the officer shall record the rent payable by the tenant, and the land in respect of which the rent is payable.

(2) When it appears that a tenant is holding land in excess of, or less than, that for which he is

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter X.—Record-of-rights and Settlement of Rents.—Secs. 105-112.) paying rent, or either the landlord or the tenant applies for a settlement of rent, or in any case under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (d), the officer shall settle a fair and equitable rent in respect of the land held by the tenant.

(3) In settling rents under this section, the officer shall presume, until the contrary is proved, that the existing rent is fair and equitable, and shall have regard to the rules laid down in this Act for the guidance of the Civil Court in increasing or reducing rents, as the case may be.

Publication of record.

105. (1) When the Revenue-officer has completed a record made under this chapter, he shall cause a draft thereof to be locally published in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objection which may be made to any entry therein during the period of publication.

(2) After the expiration of this period the Revenue-officer shall finally frame the record, and shall cause it to be locally published in the prescribed manner, and the publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this chapter.

Procedure in case of dispute as to entries in record.

106. If at any time before the final publication of the record under the last foregoing section a dispute arises as to the correctness of any entry (not being an entry of a rent settled under this chapter), or as to the propriety of any omission, which the Revenue-officer proposes to make or has made therein or therefrom, the Revenue-officer shall hear and decide the dispute.

Procedure to be adopted by Revenue-officer.

107. In all proceedings for the settlement of rents under this chapter, and in all proceedings under the last foregoing section, the Revenue-officer shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government under this Act, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits, and his decision in every such proceeding shall have the force of a decree.

V of 1882.

Appeals from decisions of Revenue-officers.

108. (1) The Local Government shall appoint one or more persons to be a Special Judge or Special Judges for the purpose of hearing appeals from the decisions of Revenue-officers under this chapter.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Special Judge from the decision of a Revenue-officer under this chapter, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals shall, as nearly as may be, apply to all such appeals.

V of 1882.

(3) Subject to the provisions of Chapter XLII of the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the decision of a Special Judge in any case under section 106 as if he were a Court subordinate to the High Court within the meaning of the first section of that chapter:

XIV of 1882.

Provided that, if in a second appeal the High Court alters the decision of the Special Judge in respect of any of the particulars with reference to which the rent of any tenure or holding has been settled, the Court may settle a new rent for the tenure or holding, but in so doing shall be guided by the rents of the other tenures or holdings of the same class comprised in the same record as ascertained or settled under section 104.

Undisputed entries in record to be presumptive evidence.

109. (1) Every record made under this chapter shall distinguish between the disputed and the undisputed entries therein.

(2) Every undisputed entry in the record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Time at which settlement of rent is to take effect.

110. When any rent is settled under this chapter, the settlement shall take effect from the beginning of the agricultural year next after the final publication of the record.

Stay of proceedings in Civil Court during preparation of record.

111. When an order has been made under section 101,—

(a) a Civil Court shall not, until the final publication of the record, entertain a suit or application for the alteration of the rent or the determination of the status of any tenant in the area to which the order applies; and

(b) the High Court may, if it thinks fit, transfer to the Revenue-officer any proceedings pending in a Civil Court for the alteration of any such rent or for the determination of any of the matters specified or referred to in section 102.

Power to authorize a special settlement in special cases.

112. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, on being satisfied that the exercise of the powers hereinafter mentioned is necessary in the interests of public order or of the local welfare, invest a Revenue-officer acting under this chapter with the following powers or either of them, namely:—

(a) power to settle all rents;

(b) power, when settling rents, to reduce rents if in the opinion of the officer the maintenance of existing rents would on any ground, whether specified in this Act or not, be unfair or inequitable.

(2) The powers given under this section may be made exerciseable within a specified area either generally or with reference to specified cases or classes of cases.

(3) When the Local Government takes any action under this section, the settlement-record prepared by the Revenue-officer shall not take effect until it has been finally confirmed by the Governor General in Council.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chaper XI.—Record of Proprietors' Private Lands.—Secs. 113—120.)
(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Sec. 121.)

Period for which rents as settled are to remain unaltered.

113. When the rent of a tenure or holding is settled under this chapter, it shall not, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of a subsequent alteration in the area of the tenure or holding, be enhanced, in the case of a tenure or an occupancy-holding for fifteen years, and, in the case of a non-occupancy-holding, if the rent is settled in any case under section 112 or on the application of the landlord under section 104, for five years. The periods of fifteen and five years shall be counted from the date of the final publication of the record.

Expenses of proceedings under chapter.

114. Where an order is made under this chapter in any case except under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (d), the expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this chapter in any local area, or such part of those expenses as the Local Government may direct, shall be defrayed by the landlords and tenants of land in that local area, in such proportions as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances of each case, may determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable by the Government from him as if it were an arrear of revenue due by him.

Presumption as to fixity of rent not to apply where record has been prepared.

115. When the particulars mentioned in section 102, clause (b), have been recorded under this chapter in respect of any tenancy, the presumption under section 50 shall not thereafter apply to that tenancy.

CHAPTER XI.

RECORD OF PROPRIETORS' PRIVATE LANDS.

Saving as to khámár land.

116. Nothing in Chapter V shall confer a right of occupancy in, and nothing in Chapter VI shall apply to, a proprietor's private lands known in Bengal as khámár, nij or nij-jot, and in Behar as zirát, nij, sír or kamat, where any such land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year.

Power for Government to order survey and record of proprietor's private lands.

117. The Local Government may, from time to time, make an order directing a Revenue-officer to make a survey and record of all the lands in a specified local area which are a proprietor's private lands within the meaning of the last foregoing section.

Power for Revenue-officer to record private land on application of proprietor or tenant.

118. In the case of any land alleged to be a proprietor's private land, on the application of the proprietor or of any tenant of the land, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record whether the land is or is not a proprietor's private land.

Procedure for recording private land.

119. When a Revenue-officer proceeds under either of the two last foregoing sections, the provisions of sections 105 to 109, both inclusive, shall apply.

Rules for determination of proprietor's private land.

120. (1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land—

(a) land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zirát, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village usage as proprietor's khámár, zirát, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land, the officer shall have regard to local custom, and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, and to any other evidence that may be produced; but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

CHAPTER XII.

DISTRAINT.

Cases in which an application for distraint may be made.

121. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Civil Court requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator,—

(a) any crops or other products of the earth standing or ungathered on the holding;

(b) any crops or other products of the earth which have been grown on the holding and have been reaped or gathered and are deposited on the holding, or on a threshing-floor or place for treading out grain, or the like, whether in the fields or within a homestead:

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Secs. 122-126.)

Provided that an application shall not be made under this section—

(1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Land Registration Act, 1876, or a mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, unless his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act; or

(B C.) of

(2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed; or (3) in respect of the produce of any part of the holding which the tenant has sub-let with the written consent of the landlord.

122. (1) Every application under the last foregoing section shall specify—

Form of application.

(a) the holding in respect of which the arrear is claimed, and the boundaries thereof, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification;

(b) the name of the tenant;

(c) the period in respect of which the arrear is claimed;

(d) the amount of the arrear, with the interest, if any, claimed thereon, and, when an amount in excess of the rent payable by the tenant in the last preceding agricultural year is claimed, the contract, or proceeding, as the case may be, under which that amount is payable;

(e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained;

(f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification; and

(g) if it is standing or ungathered, the time at which it is likely to be cut or gathered.

(2) The application shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the signing and verification of plaints of 1 82.

123. (1) The applicant shall, at the time of filing an application under the foregoing sections, file in Court such documentary evidence (if any) as he may consider necessary for the purposes of the application.

Procedure on receipt of application.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant, and shall, with as little delay as possible, admit the application or reject it, or permit the applicant to furnish additional evidence in support of it.

(3) Where a Court cannot forthwith admit or reject an application under sub section (2), it may, if it thinks fit, make an order prohibiting the removal of the produce specified in the application pending the execution of an order for distraining the same or the rejection of the application.

(4) When an order for distraining any produce is made under this section at a considerable time before the produce is likely to be cut or gathered, the Court may suspend the execution of the order for such time as it thinks fit, and may, if it thinks fit, make a further order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the execution of the order for distraint.

124. If an application is admitted under the last foregoing section, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court:

Execution of order for distraint

Provided that produce which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering.

125. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

Service of demand and account.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise.

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on a conspicuous part of the outside of the house in which he usually resides.

126. (1) A distraint under this chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

Right to reap, &c., produce.

(2) If the person entitled to do so fails to do so at the proper time, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood, or shall do whatever else may be necessary for the due preservation of the same.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall remain in the charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

Sale proclamation to be issued unless demand is satisfied.

127. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the distraint, be immediately satisfied, the distraining officer shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained and the demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a day specified, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction:

Provided that when the crops or products distrained from their nature admit of being stored but have not yet been stored, the day of the sale shall be so fixed as to admit of their being made ready for storing before its arrival.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

Place of sale.

128. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

When produce may be sold standing.

129. (1) Crops or products which from their nature admit of being stored shall not be sold before they are reaped or gathered and are ready for storing.

(2) Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, and the purchaser shall be entitled to enter on the land by himself, or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and do all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and reaping or gathering them.

Manner of sale.

130. The property shall be sold by public auction, in one or more lots as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Postponement of sale.

131. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day, or (if a market is held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until that day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Payment of purchase-money.

132. The price of every lot shall be paid at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

133. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

134. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay the costs of the distraint and sale, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made, from time to time, by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale; and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

Certain persons may not purchase.

135. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Procedure where demand is paid before the sale.

136. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this chapter, and before the sale of the distrained property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distrained property where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 125, with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay it into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section,

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Secs. 137-142.)

(Chapter XIV.—Judicial Procedure.—Secs. 143-144.)

the Court shall pay therefrom to the applicant for distraint the amount due to him, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

(5) A landlord shall not be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding or any part thereof merely by reason of his having received an amount deposited under this section by an inferior tenant.

Amount paid by under-tenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

137. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under the last foregoing section, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under the last foregoing section to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

138. When land is sub-let, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

139. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail; but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid under section 134 to the owner of the property without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Suit for compensation for wrongful distraint.

140. No appeal shall lie from any order passed by a Civil Court under this chapter; but any person whose property is distrained on an application made under section 121 in any case in which such an application is not permitted by that section may institute a suit against the applicant for the recovery of compensation.

Power for Local Government to authorize distraint in certain cases.

141. (1) When the Local Government is of opinion that in any local area or in any class of cases it would, by reason of the character of the cultivation or the habits of the cultivators, be impracticable for a landlord to realize his rent by an application under this chapter, to the Civil Court, it may, from time to time, by order, authorize the landlord to distrain, by himself or his agent, any produce for the distraint of which he would be entitled to apply under this chapter to the Civil Court:

Provided that every person distraining any produce under such authorization shall proceed in the manner prescribed by section 124, and shall forthwith give notice, in such form as the High Court may, by rule, prescribe, to the Civil Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application for distraining the produce, and that Court shall, with no avoidable delay, depute an officer to take charge of the produce distrained.

(2) When an officer of the Court has taken charge of any distrained produce under this section, the proceedings shall thereafter be conducted in all respects as if he had distrained it under section 124.

(3) The Local Government may at any time rescind any order made by it under this section.

Power for High Court to make rules.

142. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure in all cases under this chapter.

CHAPTER XIII.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

Power to modify Civil Procedure Code in its application to landlord and tenant suits.

143. (1) The High Court may, from time to time, with the approval of the Governor General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act declaring that any portions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to suits between landlord and tenant as such or to any specified classes of such suits, or shall apply to them subject to modifications specified in the rules.

(2) Subject to any rules so made, and subject also to the other provisions of this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to all such suits. XIV of 1882.

Jurisdiction in proceedings under Act.

144. (1) The cause of action in all suits between landlord and tenant as such shall, for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure, be deemed to have arisen XIV of 1882. within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the tenure or holding in connection with which the suit is brought.

(2) When under this Act a Civil Court is authorized to make an order on the application of a landlord or a tenant, the application shall be made to the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the tenure or holding in connection with which the application is brought.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIII.—Judicial Procedure.—Secs. 145-151.)

145 Every náib or gumáshta of a landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord shall, for the purposes of every such suit or application, be deemed to be the recognized agent of the landlord within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure, notwithstanding that the landlord may reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is to be instituted or is pending, or in which the application is made.

Náibs or gumáshtas to be recognized agents.

XIV of 1882

146. The particulars referred to in section 58 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in the case of such suits, instead of being entered in the register of civil suits prescribed by that section, be entered in a special register to be kept by each Civil Court, in such form as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

XIV of 1882

Special register of suits.

147. Subject to the provisions of section 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure, where a landlord has instituted a suit against a raiyat for the recovery of any rent of his holding, the landlord shall not institute another suit against him for the recovery of any rent of that holding until after three months from the date of the institution of the previous suit.

XIV of 1882.

Successive rent-suits.

148. The following rules shall apply to suits for the recovery of rent:—

Procedure in rent-suits.

(a) sections 121 to 127 (both inclusive), 129, 305, and 320 to 326 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any such suit:

XIV of 1882.

(b) the plaint shall contain, in addition to the particulars specified in section 50 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a statement of the situation, designation, extent and boundaries of the land held by the tenant; or, where the plaintiff is unable to give the extent or boundaries, in lieu thereof a description sufficient for identification:

XIV of 1882.

(c) the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit, unless the Court is of opinion that the summons should be for the settlement of issues only:

(d) the service of the summons may, if the High Court by rule, either generally, or specially for any local area, so directs, be effected, either in addition to, or in substitution for, any other mode of service, by forwarding the summons by post in a letter addressed to the defendant and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866; when a summons is so forwarded in a letter, and it is proved that the letter was duly posted and registered, the Court may presume that the summons has been duly served:

XIV of 1866

(e) a written statement shall not be filed without the leave of the Court:

(f) the rules for recording the evidence of witnesses prescribed by section 189 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, whether an appeal is allowed or not: XIV of 1

(g) the Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof, unless it is a decree for ejectment for arrears:

(h) notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him.

149. (1) When a defendant admits that money is due from him on account of rent, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to third person.

(2) Where such a payment is made, the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person.

(3) Unless the third person within three months from the receipt of the notice institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to recover from the plaintiff money paid to him under sub-section (3).

150. When a defendant admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff on account of rent, but pleads that the amount claimed is in excess of the amount due, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to landlord.

151. When a defendant is liable to pay money into Court under either of the two last foregoing sections, if the Court thinks that there are sufficient reasons for so ordering, it may take cognizance of the defendant's plea on his paying into Court such reasonable portion of the money as the Court directs.

Provision as to payment of portion of money.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIII.—Judicial Procedure.—Secs. 152-156.)

Court to grant receipt.

152. When a defendant pays money into Court under either of the said sections, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been given by the plaintiff or the third person as the case may be.

Appeals in rent-suits.

153. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal, in any suit instituted by a landlord for the recovery of rent where—

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or

(b) the decree or order is passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise final jurisdiction under this section, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed fifty rupees;

unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant, or a question of the amount of rent annually payable by a tenant:

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, if it appears that the judicial officer has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity; and may pass such order as the District Judge thinks fit.

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

154. A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next following; and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following; but nothing in this section shall prevent the Court from fixing, for special reasons, a later date from which any such decree shall take effect.

Relief against forfeitures.

155. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground—

(a) that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or shall not be entertained unless the landlord has served, in the prescribed manner, a notice on the tenant specifying the particular misuse or breach complained of, and, where the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, requiring the tenant to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the misuse or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(b) that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and the landlord, liable to ejectment,

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the misuse or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the misuse or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may, from time to time, for special reasons, extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2).

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the misuse or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the misuse or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

156. The following rules shall apply in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding:—

(a) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment;

(b) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value;

(c) but a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section where, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage;

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree.—Secs. 157—162.)

(d) if the landlord elects under this section to allow a raiyat to retain possession of the land, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable.

Power for Court to fix fair rent as alternative to ejectment.

157. When a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may, if he thinks fit, claim as alternative relief that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court, and the Court may grant such relief accordingly.

Application to determine incidents of tenancy.

158. (1) The Court having jurisdiction to determine a suit for the possession of land may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant of the land, determine all or any of the following matters, (namely) :—

(a) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land;

(b) the name and description of the tenant thereof (if any) ;

(c) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat, or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure; and (d) the rent payable by him at the time of the application.

(2) If, in the opinion of the Court, any of these matters cannot be satisfactorily determined without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rule made under section 392 of the said Code.

XIV of 1882.

(3) The order on any application under this section shall have the effect of, and be subject to the like appeal as, a decree.

CHAPTER XIV.

SALE FOR ARREARS UNDER DECREE.

General powers of purchaser as to avoidance of incumbrances.

159. Where a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, the purchaser shall take subject to the interests defined in this chapter as "protected interests", but with power to annul the interests defined in this chapter as "incumbrances": Provided as follows :—

(a) a registered and notified incumbrance within the meaning of this chapter shall not be so annulled except in the case hereinafter mentioned in that behalf;

(b) the power to annul shall be exercisable only in manner by this chapter directed.

Protected interests.

160. The following shall be deemed to be protected interests within the meaning of this chapter :—

(a) any under-tenure existing from the time of the Permanent Settlement;

(b) any under-tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) any lease of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) any right of occupancy;

(e) the right of a non-occupancy-raiyat to hold for five years at a rent fixed under Chapter VI by a Court, or under Chapter X by a Revenue-officer;

(f) any right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(g) any right or interest which the landlord at whose instance the tenure or holding is sold, or his predecessor in title, has expressly and in writing given the tenant for the time being permission to create.

Meaning of "incumbrance" and "registered and notified incumbrance."

161. For the purposes of this chapter—

(a) the term "incumbrance", used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his tenure or holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest as defined in the last foregoing section;

(b) the term "registered and notified incumbrance", used with reference to a tenure or holding sold or liable to sale in execution of a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect thereof, means an incumbrance created by a registered instrument of which a copy has, not less than three months before the accrual of the arrear, been served on the landlord in manner hereinafter provided.

Application for sale of tenure or holding.

162. When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a tenure or holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attach- XIV of 1

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree.—Secs. 163-167.)

ment and sale of the tenure or holding in execution of the decree, he shall produce a statement showing the parganá, estate and village in which the land comprised in the tenure or holding is situate, the yearly rent payable for the same and the total amount recoverable under the decree.

of 1882.

Order of attachment and proclamation of sale to be issued simultaneously.

163. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, when the decree-holder makes the application mentioned in the last foregoing section, the Court shall, if under section 245 of the said Code it admits the application and orders execution of the decree as applied for, issue simultaneously the order of attachment and the proclamation required by section 287 of the said Code.

(2) The proclamation shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in section 287 of the said Code, announce—

(a) in the case of a tenure or a holding of a raiyat holding at fixed rates, that the tenure or holding will first be put up to auction subject to the registered and notified incumbrances, and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day, of which due notice will be given, with power to annul all incumbrances; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(3) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published by fixing up a copy thereof in a conspicuous place on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold, and shall also be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 290 of the said Code, the sale shall not, without the consent in writing of the judgment-debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been fixed up on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold.

Sale of tenure or holding subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and effect thereof.

164. (1) When a tenure or a holding at fixed rates has been advertised for sale under the last foregoing section, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered and notified incumbrances; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure or holding shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 167, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure or holding not being a registered and notified incumbrance.

Sale of tenure or holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

165. (1) If the bidding for a tenure or a holding at fixed rates put up to auction under the last foregoing section does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure or holding be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure or holding will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure or holding shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

XIV of 1882.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 167, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the tenure or holding.

Sale of occupancy-holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

166. (1) When an occupancy-holding has been advertised for sale under section 163, it shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by the next following section, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

Procedure for annulling incumbrances under the foregoing sections.

167. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under any of the foregoing sections and desiring to annul the same, may, within one year from the date of the sale or the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, whichever is later, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

(4) When a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, and there is on the tenure or holding a protected interest of the kind specified in section 160, clause (c), the purchaser may, if he has power under this chapter to avoid all incumbrances, sue to enhance the rent of the land which is the subject of the protected interest. On proof that the land is held at a rent which was not at the time the lease was granted a fair rent, the Court may enhance the rent to such amount as appears to be fair and equitable.

This sub-section shall not apply to land which has been held for a term exceeding twelve years at a fixed rent equal to the rent of good arable land.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree.—Secs. 168-171.)

Power to direct that occupancy-holdings be dealt with under foregoing sections as tenures.

168. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings or any specified class of occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings, or, as the case may be, occupancy-holdings of the specified class in that local area, shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

Rules for disposal of the sale-proceeds.

169. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say:— XIV of 1882.

(a) there shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the tenure or holding to sale;

(b) there shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made;

(c) if there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the tenure or holding between the institution of the suit and the date of the sale;

(d) the balance (if any) remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

(2) If the judgment debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

Tenure or holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree holder. XIV of 1882.

170. (1) Sections 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

(2) When an order for the sale of a tenure or holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the tenure or holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the tenure or holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) The judgment-debtor or any person having in the tenure or holding any interest voidable on the sale may pay money into Court under this section.

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the tenure or holding.

171. (1) When any person having, in a tenure or holding advertised for sale under this chapter, an interest which would be avoidable upon the sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale,—

(a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per centum per annum and secured by a mortgage of the tenure or holding to him;

(b) his mortgage shall take priority of every other charge on the tenure or holding other than a charge for arrear of rent; and

(c) he shall be entitled to possession of the tenure or holding as mortgagee of the tenant, and to retain possession of it as such until the debt, with the interest due thereon, has been discharged.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

Inferior tenant paying into Court may deduct from rent.

172. When a tenure or holding is advertised for sale under this chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord; and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

Decree-holder may bid at sale; judgment-debtor may not.

173. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the holder of a decree in execution of which a tenure or holding is sold under this chapter may, without the permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the tenure or holding. XIV of 1

(2) The judgment-debtor shall not bid for or purchase a tenure or holding so sold.

(3) When a judgment-debtor purchases by himself or through another person a tenure or holding so sold, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the decree-holder or any other person interested in the sale, by order set aside the sale, and the costs of the application and order, and any deficiency of price which may happen on the re-sale, and all expenses attending it, shall be paid by the judgment-debtor.

Application by judgment-debtor to set aside sale.

174. (1) Where a tenure or holding is sold for an arrear of rent due thereon, then, at any time within thirty days from the date of sale, the judgment-debtor may apply to have the sale set aside, on his depositing in Court, for payment to the decree-holder, the amount recoverable under the decree with costs, and, for payment to the purchaser, a sum equal to five per centum of the purchase-money.

(2) If such deposit is made within the thirty days, the Court shall pass an order setting aside the sale, and the provisions of section 315 of the 1882 Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in the case of a sale so set aside:

Provided that, if a judgment-debtor applies un-
1882. der section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside the sale of his tenure or holding, he shall not be entitled to make an application under this section.

1882 (3) Section 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale under this chapter.

175. Notwithstanding anything contained in Part IV of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, an instrument creating an incumbrance upon any tenure or holding which has been executed before the commencement of this Act, and is not required by section 17 of the said Registration Act to be registered, shall be accepted for registration under that Act if it is presented for that purpose to the proper officer within one year from the commencement of this Act.

176. Every officer who has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, registered an instrument executed by a tenant of a tenure or holding and creating an incumbrance on the tenure or holding, shall, at the request of the tenant or of the person in whose favour the incumbrance is created, and on payment by him of such fee as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, notify the incumbrance to the landlord by causing a copy of the instrument to be served on him in the prescribed manner.

Notification of incumbrances to landlord.

177. Nothing contained in this chapter shall be deemed to enable a person to create an incumbrance which he could not otherwise lawfully create.

Power to create incumbrances not extended.

CONTRACT AND CUSTOM.

178. (1) Nothing in any contract between a landlord and a tenant made before or after the passing of this Act—

Restrictions on exclusion of Act by agreement.

(a) shall bar in perpetuity the acquisition of an occupancy-right in land, or

(b) shall take away an occupancy-right in existence at the date of the contract, or

(c) shall entitle a landlord to eject a tenant otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act, or

(d) shall take away or limit the right of a tenant, as provided by this Act, to make improvements and claim compensation for them.

(2) Nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant since the 15th day of July, 1880, and before the passing of this Act shall prevent a raiyat from acquiring in accordance with this Act an occupancy-right in land.

(3) Nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of this Act shall—

(a) prevent a raiyat from acquiring in accordance with this Act an occupancy-right in land;

(b) take away or limit the right of an occupancy-raiyat to use land as provided by section 23;

(c) take away the right of a raiyat to surrender his holding in accordance with section 86;

(d) take away the right of a raiyat to transfer or bequeath his holding in accordance with local usage;

(e) take away the right of an occupancy-raiyat to sub-let subject to and in accordance with the provisions of this Act;

(f) take away the right of a raiyat to apply for a reduction of rent under section 38 or section 52;

(g) take away the right of a landlord or a tenant to apply for a commutation of rent under section 40; or

(h) affect the provisions of section 67 relating to interest payable on arrears of rent:

Provided as follows:—

(i) nothing in this section shall affect the terms or conditions of a lease granted bonâ fide for the reclamation of waste land, except that, where, on or after the expiration of the term created by the lease, the lessee would under Chapter V be entitled to an occupancy right in the land comprised in the lease, nothing in the lease shall prevent him from acquiring that right;

(ii) when a landlord has reclaimed waste land by his own servants or hired labourers, and subsequently lets the same or a part thereof to a raiyat, nothing in this Act shall affect the terms of any contract whereby a raiyat is prevented from acquiring an occupancy-right in the land or part during a period of thirty years from the date on which the land or part is first let to a raiyat;

(iii) nothing in this section shall affect the terms or conditions of any contract for the temporary cultivation of orchard land with agricultural crops.

179. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a proprietor or a holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently-settled area from granting a permanent mukarrarí lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant.

Permanent mukarrarí leases.

(Chapter XV.—Contract and Custom.—Secs. 180-183.)

(Chapter XVI.—Limitation. Chapter XVII.—Supplemental.—Secs. 184-187.)

Úthandi, chur and dearah lands.

180. (1) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, a raiyat—

(a) who in any part of the country where the custom of úthandi prevails, holds land ordinarily let under that custom and for the time being let under that custom, or

(b) who holds land of the kind known as chur or dearah, shall not acquire a right of occupancy—

in case (a), in land ordinarily held under the custom of úthandi and for the time being held under that custom, or in case (b), in the chur or dearah land, until he has held the land in question for twelve continuous years; and, until he acquires a right of occupancy in the land, he shall be liable to pay such rent for his holding as may be agreed on between him and his landlord.

(2) Chapter VI shall not apply to raiyats holding land under the custom of úthandi in respect of land held by them under that custom.

(3) The Collector may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant or on a reference from the Civil Court, declare that any land has ceased to be chur or dearah land within the meaning of this section, and thereupon all the provisions of this Act shall apply to the land.

Saving as to service-tenures.

181. Nothing in this Act shall affect any incident of a ghátwálí or other service-tenure, or, in particular, shall confer a right to transfer or bequeath a service-tenure which, before the passing of this Act, was not capable of being transferred or bequeathed.

Homesteads.

182. When a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the incidents of his tenancy of the homestead shall be regulated by local custom or usage, and, subject to local custom or usage, by the provisions of this Act applicable to land held by a raiyat.

Saving of custom.

183. Nothing in this Act shall affect any custom, usage or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions.

Illustrations.

(1) A usage under which a raiyat is entitled to sell his holding without the consent of his landlord is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act That usage, accordingly, wherever it may exist, will not be affected by this Act.

(2) The custom or usage that an under-raiyat should, under certain circumstances, acquire a right of occupancy is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That custom or usage, accordingly, wherever it exists, will not be affected by this Act.

CHAPTER XVI.

LIMITATION.

Limitation in suits, appeals and applications in Schedule III.

184. (1) The suits, appeals and applications specified in Schedule III annexed to this Act shall be instituted and made within the time prescribed in that schedule for them respectively; and every such suit or appeal instituted, and application made, after the period of limitation so prescribed, shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been pleaded.

(2) Nothing in this section shall revive the right to institute any suit or appeal or make any application which would have been barred by limitation if it had been instituted or made immediately before the commencement of this Act.

Portions of the Indian Limitation Act not applicable to such suits, &c.

185. (1) Sections 7, 8 and 9 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall not apply to the suits and applications mentioned in the last foregoing section. XV of 1

(2) Subject to the provisions of this chapter, the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall apply to all suits, appeals and applications mentioned in the last foregoing section. XV of 1

CHAPTER XVII.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Penalties.

Penalties for illegal interference with produce.

186. (1) If any person, otherwise than in accordance with this Act or some other enactment for the time being in force,—

(a) distrains or attempts to distrain the produce of a tenant's holding, or

(b) resists a distraint duly made under this Act, or forcibly or clandestinely removes any property duly distrained under this Act, or

(c) except with the authority or consent of the tenant, prevents or attempts to prevent the reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of a holding, he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of (2) Any person who abets within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code the doing of any act mentioned in sub-section (1), shall be deemed to have abetted the commission of criminal trespass within the meaning of that Code. XLV of Agents and representatives of landlords.

Power for landlord to act through agent.

187. (1) Any appearance, application or act, in, before or to any Court or authority, required or authorised by this Act to be made or done by a landlord, may, unless the Court or authority otherwise directs, be made or done also by an agent empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XVII.—Supplemental.—Secs. 188-194)

(2) Every notice required by this Act to be served on, or given to, a landlord shall, if served on, or given to, an agent empowered as aforesaid to accept service of or receive the same on behalf of the landlord, be as effectual for the purposes of this Act as if it had been served on, or given to, the landlord in person.

(3) Every document required by this Act to be signed or certified by a landlord, except an instrument appointing or authorizing an agent, may be signed or certified by an agent of the landlord authorized in writing in that behalf.

Joint-landlords to act collectively or by common agent.

188. Where two or more persons are joint-landlords, anything which the landlord is under this Act required or authorized to do must be done either by both or all those persons acting together, or by an agent authorized to act on behalf of both or all of them.

Rules under Act.

Power to make rules regarding procedure, powers of officers and service of notices.

189. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act—

(1) to regulate the procedure to be followed by Revenue-officers in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act, and may by such rules confer upon any such officer—

(a) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits;

(b) power to enter upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same, and any power exercisable by any officer under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875; and

(c) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce, with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil; and

(2) to prescribe the mode of service of notices under this Act where no mode is prescribed by this or any other Act.

Procedure for making, publication and confirmation of rules.

190. (1) Every authority having power to make rules under any section of this Act shall, before making the rules, publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

(2) The publication shall be made, in the case of rules made by the Local Government or High Court, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, and, in the case of rules made by any other authority, in the prescribed manner:

Provided that every such draft shall be published in the official Gazette.

(3) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date, not earlier than the expiration of one month after the date of publication, at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration. Rules under Act.

(4) The authority shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(5) The publication in the official Gazette of a rule purporting to be made under this Act shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

(6) All rules made under this Act may, from time to time, subject to the sanction (if any) required for making them, be amended, added to or cancelled by the authority having power to make the same.

Provisions as to temporarily-settled districts.

Saving as to land held in a district not permanently settled. Provisions as to temporarily-settled districts.

191. Where the area comprised in a tenure is situate in an estate which has never been permanently settled, nothing in this Act shall prevent the enhancement of the rent upon the expiration of a temporary settlement of the revenue, unless the right to hold beyond the term of the settlement at a particular rate of rent has been expressly recognized in settlement-proceedings by a Revenue-authority empowered by the Government to make definitively or confirm settlements.

Power to alter rent in case of new assessment of revenue.

192. When a landlord grants a lease, or makes any other contract, purporting to entitle the tenant of land not included in an area permanently settled to hold that land free of rent or at a particular rent, and while the lease or contract is in force—

(a) land-revenue is for the first time made payable in respect of the land, or

(b) land-revenue having been previously payable in respect of it, a fresh settlement of land-revenue is made, a Revenue-officer may, notwithstanding anything in the contract between the parties, by order, on the application of the landlord or of the tenant, fix a fair and equitable rent for the land in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Rights of pasturage, &c.

Rights of pasturage, forest-rights, &c. Rights of pasturage, &c.

193. The provisions of this Act applicable to suits for the recovery of arrears of rent shall, as far as may be, apply to suits for the recovery of anything payable or deliverable in respect of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, rights over fisheries and the like.

Saving for conditions binding on landlords.

Tenant not enabled by Act to violate conditions binding on landlord. Saving for contracts binding on landlords.

194. Where a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder holds his estate or tenure subject to the observance of any specified rule or condition, nothing in this Act shall entitle any person occupying land within the estate or tenure to do any act which involves a violation of that rule or condition.

Savings for special enactments.

Savings for special enactments.

Savings for special enactments.

195. Nothing in this Act shall affect—

(a) the powers and duties of Settlement-officers as defined by any law not expressly repealed by this Act;

(b) any enactment regulating the procedure for the realization of rents in estates belonging to the Government, or under the management of the Court of Wards or of the Revenue-authorities;

(c) any enactment relating to the avoidance of tenancies and incumbrances by a sale for arrears of the Government revenue;

(d) any enactment relating to the partition of revenue-paying estates;

(e) any enactment relating to patní tenures, in so far as it relates to those tenures; or (f) any other special or local law not repealed either expressly or by necessary implication by this Act.

Construction of Act.

Construction of Act.

Act to be read subject to Acts hereafter passed by Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council.

196. This Act shall be read subject to every Act passed after its commencement by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council.

1. To eject any tenure-holder or raiyat on account of any breach of a condition in respect of which there is a contract expressly providing that ejectment shall be the penalty of such breach.	One year .	The date of the breach.
2 For the recovery of an arrear of rent—
(a) when the arrear fell due before a deposit was made under section 61 on account of the rent of the same holding.	Six months .	The date of the service of notice of the deposit.
(b) in other cases .	Three years .	The last day of the Bengali year in which the arrear fell due, where that year prevails, and the last day of the month of Jeyt of the Amli or Fasli year in which the arrear fell due, where either of those years prevails.
3 To recover possession of land claimed by the plaintiff as an occupancy-raiyat.	Two years .	The date of dispossession.

PART II.—Appeals.

Description of Appeal.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
From any decree or order under this Act, to the Court of a District Judge or Special Judge.	Thirty days .	The date of the decree or order appealed against.
From any order of a Collector under this Act, to the Commissioner.	Thirty days .	The date of the order appealed against.

PART III.—Applications.

Description of Application.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
6. For the execution of a decree or order made under this Act, or any Act repealed by this Act, and not being a decree for a sum of money exceeding Rs. 500, exclusive of any interest which may have accrued after decree upon the sum decreed, but inclusive of the costs of executing such decree; except where the judgment-debtor has by fraud or force prevented the execution of the decree, in which case the period of limitation shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.	Three years .	(1) The date of the decree or order; or XV of 1877 (2) where there has been an appeal, the date of the final decree or order of the Appellate Court; or (3) where there has been a review of judgment, the date of the decision passed on the review.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th February, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 4 OF 1885.

THE LAND ACQUISITION (MINES) BILL, 1885.

CONTENTS.

SECTIONS.

1. Short title, local extent and commencement.
2. Statement in declaration under section 6 of Act X of 1870 that mines not needed.
3. Notice to be given by owner, &c., before working mines lying under land.
4. Inspection of mines by Local Government.
5. If Local Government offers to pay compensation, mines not to be worked.
6. Amount of compensation to be determined under Act X of 1870.
7. If Local Government does not offer to pay compensation, mines may be worked in a proper manner.
8. Power to officer of Local Government to enter and inspect the working of mines.
9. Penalty for refusal to allow inspection.
10. If mines improperly worked, Local Government may require means to be adopted for safety of land acquired.
11. Construction of Act when land acquired has been transferred to a Company.
12. Definition of Company.

A Bill to provide for cases in which Mines or Minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for cases in which mines or minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; It is hereby enacted as follows:— X of 1870

1. (1) This Act may be called the Land Acquisition (Mines) Act, 1885.

Short title, local extent and commencement.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) When the Local Government makes a declaration under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, that land is needed for a public purpose or for a Company, it may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines of coal, iron-stone, slate or other minerals lying under the land or any particular portion of the land, except only such parts of the mines or minerals as are necessary to be dug or carried away or used in the construction of the work for the purpose of which the land is being acquired, are not needed. [cf. 8 Vic, c. 20, s. 77.] X of 1870.

Statement in declaration under section 6 of Act X of 1870 that mines not needed.

(2) If any such statement is inserted in the declaration, any mines of coal, iron-stone, slate or other minerals under the land or portion of the land specified in the declaration, except as aforesaid, shall not, when the Collector takes possession of the land under section 16 or section 17 of the said Act, vest in the Government.

3. If the owner, lessee or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under any land so acquired is desirous of working or getting the same, he shall give the Local Government notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working. [cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

Notice to be given by owner, &c., before working mines lying under land.

4. On the receipt of a notice under the last foregoing section, the Local Government may cause the mines or minerals to be inspected by a person appointed by it for the purpose. [cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

Inspection of mines by Local Government.

The Land Acquisition (Mines) Bill, 1885.
(Sections 5-12.)

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

5. (1) If it appears to the Local Government that the working or getting of the mines or minerals, or any part thereof, is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice under section 3 offer either—

If Local Government offers to pay compensation, mines not to be worked.

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals or part thereof to the owner, lessee or occupier thereof; or

(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals, or part thereof, in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

(2) If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier shall not work or get the mines or minerals or part thereof;

(3) If the offer mentioned in case (b) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier shall not work or get the mines or minerals, or part thereof, save in the manner and subject to the restrictions specified by the Local Government.

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

6. If the Local Government and the owner, lessee or occupier of any such mines or minerals, do not agree as to the amount of compensation to be paid under the last foregoing section, the same shall be settled in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, for determining the amount of compensation.

Amount of compensation to be determined under Act X of 1870.

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 79.]

7. (1) If before the expiration of the said thirty days the Local Government does not offer to pay any compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals for any loss he may sustain as provided in section 5, the owner, lessee or occupier may work the mines, or any part thereof, in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate.

If Local Government does not offer to pay compensation, mines may be worked in a proper manner.

(2) If any damage or obstruction is caused to the surface of the land or any works thereon by improper working of the mines, the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals shall at once at his own expense repair the damage or remove the obstruction, as the case may require.

(3) If the repair or removal is not at once effected, or, if the Local Government so thinks fit, without waiting for the same to be effected by the owner, lessee or occupier, the Local Government may execute the same and recover from the owner, lessee or occupier the expense occasioned thereby.

8. For better ascertaining whether any such mines are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land acquired or the works thereon, an officer appointed for this purpose by the Local Government may, after giving twenty-four hours' notice in writing, enter on any land in or near which the land acquired is situate, and wherein any such mines are being worked or are supposed to be worked, and enter into and return from any such mines or the works connected therewith; and for that purpose the officer so appointed may make use of any apparatus or machinery belonging to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines, and use all necessary means for discovering the distance from the land acquired to the parts of the mines which are being worked or about to be worked.

Power to officer of Local Government to enter and inspect the working of mines.

9. If any owner, lessee or occupier of any such mines refuses to allow any officer appointed by the Local Government for that purpose to enter into and inspect any such mines or works in manner aforesaid, every person so offending shall for every such refusal forfeit to the Local Government a sum not exceeding two hundred rupees.

Penalty for refusal to allow inspection.

10. If it appears that any such mines have been worked contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, give notice to the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary or proper for making safe the land acquired, and preventing injury thereto; and, if after such notice any such owner, lessee or occupier does not forthwith proceed to construct the works necessary for making safe the land acquired, the Local Government may itself construct the works and recover the expense thereof from the owner, lessee or occupier.

If mines improperly worked, Local Government may require means to be adopted for safety of land acquired.

11. When a statement under section 2 has been made regarding any land and the land has been acquired for a Company and has been transferred by the Local Government to the Company, then sections 3 to 10, both inclusive, shall be read as if for the words "the Local Government" wherever they occur in those sections the words "the Company which has acquired the land" were substituted.

Construction of Act when land acquired has been transferred to a Company.

12. In this Act "Company" means a Company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or by Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

Definition of Company.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for cases in which mines or minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

2. Act XXII of 1863, which was replaced by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, contained specific provisions (sections 51 and 52) for cases in which mines and minerals lay under land taken up under that Act. These provisions were not, however, re-enacted in the Act of 1870, which, as the Government is advised, contemplates the acquisition of the underlying minerals as well as the surface of the land.

3. Hitherto this state of the law has caused no inconvenience. Now, however, owing to its being proposed to extend railways across districts where there is a certain amount of coal to be found, notice has been drawn to the inconvenience of the existing law which practically compels the Government either to purchase all the mines and minerals under the land over which it is proposed to construct a line or to abandon the undertaking altogether.

4. Under these circumstances, the present Bill has been prepared. It does not, however, simply re-enact the provisions which Act XXII of 1863 formerly contained, inasmuch as they do not appear to be adapted to the circumstances of the case. It follows rather the rules contained in the English Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, (8 Vic., c. 20, ss. 77 et seq.) which it extends to the acquisition of land for all purposes and not merely for the construction of Railways.

5. It provides, first, (section 2) that when a declaration is made by the Local Government under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines or minerals lying under the land to be acquired are not needed, and that if any such statement is inserted in the declaration, the mines or minerals lying under the land shall not, when the Collector takes possession of the land under section 16 or section 17 of the Act, vest in the Government.

6. It then (section 3) declares that if the owner, lessee or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under any land so acquired is desirous of working the same, he shall give the local Government notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working.

7. Next (section 4), the Bill empowers the local Government to cause the mines or minerals to be inspected by a person appointed by it for the purpose.

8. If it appears (section 5) to the local Government that the working of the mines or minerals is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice, offer either—

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals to the owner, lessee or occupier ;

(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions, as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier is prohibited from working the mines or minerals, whilst if the offer mentioned in case (b) is made, then he may not work or get the mines or minerals, save in the manner and subject to the restrictions specified by the local Government.

9. The Bill next provides (section 6) for the manner in which the amount of compensation to be paid under section 5 is to be determined.

10. Should, however, the local Government not offer to pay any compensation, section 7 permits the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals to work the mines in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate. Should any damage or obstruction be caused by improper working of the mines, the section provides for the repairing of the damage or the removal of the obstruction by or at the cost of the owner, lessee or occupier.

11. Sections 8 and 9 provide for the inspection of mines for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land which has been acquired and section 10 declares that if any mines have been improperly worked, the Local Government may require the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary for making safe the land acquired and preventing injury thereto.

12. Lastly, section 11 makes the provisions of sections 8 to 10 applicable to cases where the land acquired has been transferred to a company, and section 12 defines what the term "Company" as used in the Bill means.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th March 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 5 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the Petroleum Act, 1881.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Petroleum Act, 1881, in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows :— of 1881.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Petroleum Act, 1885 ; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Amendment of explanation to definition of "petroleum" in section 3 of Act VIII of 1881. of 1881.

2. In section 3 of the Petroleum Act, 1881, in the explanation to the definition of "petroleum," for the last thirteen words the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"in accordance with the directions contained in the schedule hereto annexed, with an apparatus which has been stamped and certified as provided by section 17A, within a period of five years immediately preceding the date on which the apparatus is used for the testing, and after the corrections (if any) which the certificate declares are to be applied to the results of the testing have been made."

Amendment of definition of "dangerous petroleum" in section 3 of Act VIII of 1881.

3. In section 3 of the said Act, in the definition of "dangerous petroleum", for the word "seventy-three" the word "seventy-six" shall be substituted; and to the same definition the following words shall be added, namely :—

"Provided that, when all or any of the petroleum on board a ship, or in the possession of any dealer, is declared by the master of the ship, or the consignees of the cargo, or by the dealer, as the case may be, to be of one uniform quality, the petroleum shall not be deemed to be dangerous if the samples selected from such petroleum, when tested as aforesaid, have their flashing points, on an average, at or above seventy-three degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer and if no one of the said samples has its flashing point below seventy degrees of that thermometer."

Repeal of word "glass" in section 5 of same Act.

4. In the proviso to section 5 of the said Act, the word "glass" shall be repealed.

Substitution of certain words in section 6 of the same Act.

5. In section 6 of the said Act, for the last seventeen words the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"have attached thereto a label in conspicuous characters stating the description of the petroleum, with the addition of the words 'highly inflammable' and with the addition—

"(d) in the case of a vessel kept, of the name and address of the consignee or owner ;

"(e) in the case of a vessel transported, of the name and address of the sender ; and

"(f) in the case of a vessel sold or exposed for sale, of the name and address of the vendor."

New sections substituted for section 7 of the same Act.

6. For section 7 of the said Act the following sections shall be substituted :—

Power for Local Government to make rules as to importation of petroleum.

"7. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the importation of petroleum, and in particular—

"(a) to determine the ports at which only petroleum may be imported ;

"(b) to ascertain the quantity and description of any petroleum on board a ship ;

"(c) to determine the places at which and the conditions on and subject to which petroleum may be landed, stored or transhipped ;

"(d) to fix the fees to be paid for the storage of petroleum at such places ;

"(e) to provide for the selection by an officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, and for the delivery to him by the consignees of samples of all petroleum so landed and stored ; and

"(f) to provide, in the case of each consignment which is stated to be of one uniform quality, for the averaging of the results of testing the selected samples."

"(2) In this section 'ship' includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property.

Procedure after petroleum has been landed and stored.

"7A. (1) Petroleum landed and stored in accordance with rules made under the last foregoing section shall not be removed from the place at which it is stored until the samples selected therefrom in accordance with the said rules have been tested by an officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf in the manner described in the schedule hereto annexed with an apparatus which has been stamped and certified as provided by section 17 A, and until such officer has given a certificate that the petroleum is not dangerous petroleum.

"(2) If the said officer after testing the said samples refuses to give the said certificate in respect of any petroleum, the Local Government may permit the consignee within a time to be fixed by the Local Government in this behalf—

"(a) to rectify the petroleum,

"(b) to apply for a license to import the petroleum as dangerous petroleum, or

"(c) to re-export the petroleum.

"(3) If the consignee does not within the time fixed under sub-section (2) avail himself of the permission granted under that sub-section, the Local Government may order the petroleum to be destroyed."

New section to be inserted after section 17.

7. After section 17 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"Test-apparatus.

[cf. 42 & 43 Vic., c. 47, s. 3.]

Model test-apparatus.

"17A. Whereas a model of the apparatus for testing petroleum under this Act constructed in accordance with the description contained in the schedule hereto annexed has been deposited in the office of the Chemical Examiner to Government, Calcutta, and has been marked with the words 'Model test-apparatus;' It is hereby enacted as follows:—

[cf. 42 & 43 Vic., c. 47 s. 3.]

Verification of test-apparatus.

"(1) The Chemical Examiner with whom the said model test-apparatus is deposited may, on payment of such fee as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe, compare with the said model and verify every apparatus for testing petroleum which is submitted to him for the purpose.

"(2) If any apparatus for testing petroleum, when compared and verified as provided by this section, is found correct, or correct subject to certain corrections to be applied to the results of the tests, the Chemical Examiner shall stamp the same with a special number, and shall further give a certificate in writing under his hand to the effect that the apparatus has been compared and verified by him and found to be correct, or correct subject to certain specified corrections to be applied to the results of the tests.

"(3) Every certificate granted under this section shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to be conclusive proof of the matters stated therein.

"(4) Subject to the payment of such fees as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe in this behalf, the said model test-apparatus shall be at all reasonable times open to inspection by any person desiring to inspect it."

New schedule substituted for the schedule to the same Act.

8. For the Schedule to the said Act the following schedule shall be substituted, namely:—

"THE SCHEDULE.

"I.—Nature of the Test-apparatus.

"The apparatus consists of the following parts:—

(1) the oil-cup;

(2) the cover, with slide, test-lamp, and clock-work arrangement for opening and closing the holes in the cover, and for dipping the test-flame;

(3) the water-bath or heating vessel;

(4) the tripod stand, with jacket, and spirit-lamp for heating the water-bath;

(5) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil in the oil-cup;

(6) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the water in the water-bath;

(7) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil before it is poured into the oil-cup;

(8) the dropping bottle, for replenishing the test-lamp;

(9) the forceps, for adjusting the wick of the test-lamp.

"The oil-cup is a cylindrical flat-bottomed vessel, made of gun-metal or brass, and tinned or silvered inside. A gauge is fixed to the inside of the cup to regulate the height to which it is to be filled with the sample under examination.

"The cup is provided with a close fitting overlapping cover, which carries the thermometer, the test-lamp, and the adjuncts thereto. The test-lamp is suspended upon two supports by means of trunnions, which allow it to be easily inclined to a particular angle and restored to its original position. The socket in the cover, which is to hold a round bulb thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil during the testing operation, is so adjusted that the bulb of the latter is always inserted in a definite position below the surface of the liquid.

"The cover is provided with three holes, one in the centre and two smaller ones close to the sides. These are closed and opened by means of a pivoted slide. When the slide is moved so as to uncover the holes, the suspended lamp is caught by a projection fixed on the slide, and tilted in such a way as to bring the end of the spout just below the surface of the lid. As the slide moves back so as to cover the holes, the lamp returns to its original position. Upon the cover, in front of and in a line with the nozzle of the lamp, is fixed a white bead, the diameter of which represents the size of the test-flame to be used.

The water-bath or heating vessel is so constructed that, when the oil-cup is placed in position in it, an air-space or air-chamber intervenes between the two; consequently, in applying the test under ordinary circumstances, the heat is transmitted gradually to the oil from the hot water through the air-space. The water-bath is fitted with a socket for receiving a long bulb thermometer, to indicate the temperature of the water. It is also provided with a funnel, an overflow-pipe and two handles.

"The water-bath rests upon a tripod stand, which is fitted with a copper cylinder or jacket, so that the bath is surrounded by an enclosed air-space, which retains and regulates the heat. One of the legs of the stand serves as a support for a spirit-lamp, which is attached to it by a small swing bracket.

"The clockwork arrangement, by which during the operation of testing the slide is withdrawn, and the test-flame dipped into the cup and raised again as the slide is replaced, is provided with a ratchet key for setting it in action for each test, and with a trigger for starting it each time that the test-flame is applied.

"II.—Directions for drawing the Sample and preparing it for testing.

"1. Drawing the sample.—In all cases the testing officer shall personally superintend the drawing of the sample from an original unopened tin.

"An opening sufficiently large to admit of the oil being rapidly poured or syphoned from the tin shall be made.

"Two bottles, each of the capacity of about 40 fluid ounces, are to be filled with the oil. One of these, the contents of which is intended to be preserved for reference in case of need, is to be carefully corked, the cork being well driven home, cut off level with the neck, and melted sealing-wax worked into it. The other bottle may be either stoppered or corked.

"2. Preparing the sample for testing.—About ten fluid ounces of the oil, sufficient for three tests, are transferred from the bottle into which the sample has been drawn to a pint flask or bottle, which is to be immersed in water in which ice is floating until a thermometer, introduced into the oil, indicates a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit.

"III.—Directions for preparing and using the Test-apparatus.

"1. Preparing the water-bath.—The water-bath is filled by pouring water into the funnel until it begins to flow out at the overflow-pipe. The temperature of the water at the commencement of each test, as indicated by the long bulb thermometer, is to be 130° Fahrenheit, and this is attained in the first instance by mixing hot and cold water, either in the bath or in a vessel from which the bath is filled, until the thermometer, which is provided for testing the temperature of the water, gives the proper indication; or the water is heated by means of the spirit-lamp (which is attached to the stand of the apparatus) until the required temperature is indicated.

"2. Preparing the test-lamp.—The test-lamp is fitted with a piece of cylindrical wick of such thickness that it fills the wick-holder, but may readily be moved to and fro for the purpose of adjusting the size of the flame. In the body of the lamp, upon the wick, which is coiled within it, is placed a small tuft of cotton wool, moistened with petroleum, any oil not absorbed by the wool being removed. When the lamp has been lighted, the wick is adjusted by means of a pair of forceps until the flame is of the size of the bead fixed on the cover of the oil-cup; should a particular test occupy so long a time that the flame begins to get smaller, through the supply of oil in the lamp becoming exhausted, three or four drops of petroleum are allowed to fall upon the tuft of wool in the lamp from the small open orifice of the bottle provided for that purpose. This can be safely done without interrupting the test.

"3. Filling the oil-cup.—The oil-cup having been previously cooled, by placing it bottom downwards in water at a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit, is to be rapidly wiped dry, placed on a level surface in a good light, and the oil to be tested is poured in very slowly, without splashing, until its surface is level with the point of the gauge which is fixed in the cup. The round bulb thermometer is inserted into the lid of the cup, care being taken that the projecting rim of the collar touches the edge of the socket; the test-lamp, prepared as already described, is placed in position, and the cover is then put on to the cup and pressed down so that its edge rests on the rim of the cup.

"4. Application of the test.—The water-bath, with its thermometer in position, is placed in some locality where it is not exposed to currents of air, and where the light is sufficiently subdued to admit of the size of the entire test-flame being compared with that of the bead on the cover. The cup is carefully lifted without shaking it, and placed in the bath, the test-lamp is lighted, and the clockwork wound up by turning the key. The thermometer in the oil-cup is now watched, and when the temperature has reached 56° Fahrenheit the clockwork is set in motion by pressing the trigger.

"If no flash takes place the clockwork is at once re-wound, and the trigger pressed at 57° Fahrenheit, and so on, at every degree rise of temperature, until the flash occurs, or until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached.

"If the flash takes place at any temperature below 77° Fahrenheit the temperature at which it occurs is to be recorded. Two fresh portions of the sample are then to be successively tested in a similar manner and the results recorded. If no greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit exists between any two of the three recorded results, each result is to be corrected for atmospheric pressure, as hereafter described, and the average of the three corrected results is the flashing point of the sample. In the event of there being a greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit between any two of the results, the series of tests is to be rejected and a fresh series, of three, similarly obtained, and so on until a sufficiently concordant series is furnished, when the results are to be corrected and the average taken in the manner already described.

"If a temperature of 76° Fahrenheit has been reached without a flash occurring, the application of the test flame is to be continued at every degree rise of temperature until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached. If no flash has occurred up to this point, the oil-cup is to be removed from the water-bath, and the temperature of the water in the water-bath is to be reduced to 95° Fahrenheit by pouring cold water into the funnel (the hot water escaping by the overflow-pipe). The air-chamber is then to be filled to a depth of 1½ inches with water at a temperature of about 95° Fahrenheit, the oil-cup is to be replaced in the water-bath and the spirit-lamp attached to the water-bath is to be lighted and placed underneath. The test-flame is then to be again applied, from 96° Fahrenheit, at every degree rise of temperature as indicated by the thermometer in the oil-cup until a flash takes place or until a temperature of 200° Fahrenheit has been reached. If during this operation the test-flame appears to diminish in size, the lamp is to be replenished in the manner prescribed at (2) without interrupting the test.

"If a flash occurs at any temperature between 76° and 200° Fahrenheit the temperature at which it occurs, subject to correction for atmospheric pressure, is the flashing point of the sample.

"In repeating a test, a fresh sample of oil must always be used, the tested sample being thrown away, and the cup must be wiped dry from any adhering oil and cooled, as already described, before receiving the fresh sample.

"5. Correction for atmospheric pressure.—As the flashing point of an oil is influenced by changes in atmospheric pressure to an average extent of 1·6° Fahrenheit for every inch of the barometer, a correction of the observed flashing point may become necessary. For this purpose a table is appended to this schedule, giving the flashing points of oils ranging from 65° to 80° Fahrenheit, under pressure ranging from 27 to 31 inches of mercury.

"The table is used in the following manner:—

"Example.—An oil has given a flashing point of 71°, the barometer being at 28·6 inches; take the nearest number to 71° in the vertical column headed 28·6. This number is 70·8. STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend the Petroleum Act, 1881, in certain points in which experience has shewn that its amendment would be desirable.

2. "Dangerous petroleum" is defined by the Act (section 3) as petroleum having its flashing point below seventy-three degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer. The Government of India does not see any reason for changing the standard so fixed, but in view of the possibility of variations in the application of the test, which, according to the opinions of the experts, may, even with the utmost care, cause deviations of 2° or 3° in the results, it is of opinion that the nominal legal minimum standard for non-dangerous petroleum may be slightly raised. Accordingly, section 3 of the Bill fixes the standard for dangerous petroleum at 76° instead of 73°, but to this enhanced standard a proviso is added to the effect that a consignment represented to be of one uniform quality shall not be deemed to be dangerous when on an average of tests the oil does not fall below that standard by more than 3°, and no one sample has a flashing point below 70°.

3. Section 5 of the Act permits small quantities of dangerous petroleum to be kept in "glass," among other, vessels, if each vessel does not contain more than a pint and is securely stopped. Looking to the comparatively fragile nature of glass vessels and to the possibility of such vessels, when filled with the highly volatile liquids included under the head of "dangerous petroleum," bursting even if "securely stopped," when exposed to powerful sunlight for a brief period, the prudence of including glass vessels among those specified in the section is, as has been pointed out to the Government of India, doubtful. Section 4 of the Bill therefore amends the section by the omission of the word "glass."

4. The object of section 5 of the Bill is to bring the provisions of section 6 of the Act, which relate to the marking of the vessels containing dangerous petroleum, and which declare that all such vessels "shall bear an indelible mark on a label in conspicuous characters, stating the nature of the contents thereof" into accordance with the English law (34 & 35 Vic., cap. 105, section 6), which lays down that the label shall state in conspicuous characters the description of the petroleum with the addition of the words "highly inflammable" and with the addition of the name and address of the consignee or owner or of the sender or vendor.

5. As the Act now stands, not only is the importation of "dangerous" petroleum subjected to a strict system of licensing, but no petroleum may be landed from any ship until samples of the petroleum on board thereof have been delivered for the purpose of the petroleum being tested.

While considering that the importation of dangerous petroleum should continue to be thus regulated, the Government of India is of opinion that the restrictions at present placed on the importation of other petroleum may be somewhat relaxed. It seems to it that, instead of requiring the delivery of samples before any oil is landed, it would be sufficient to give the Local Government power to determine the places at which, and the conditions on and subject to which, petroleum may be landed and stored. The necessary power is conferred by section 6 of the Bill, which substitutes a new section for section 7 of the Act. There would thus be nothing to prevent petroleum, other than dangerous petroleum, being in future landed and stored at once. But, in order to protect the public, no petroleum should be allowed to be removed from the place where it is stored until it has been tested and declared to satisfy the legal standard. Section 7A therefore provides this, and further declares that, when petroleum which has been so landed and stored is found not to come up to the legal standard, the Local Government may direct the consignees either to rectify it or to import it as dangerous petroleum or to re-export within a fixed period, and that, on the consignees failing to do whichever of these things they may be directed to do, the Local Government may order the petroleum to be destroyed.

In addition to re-producing clauses (a) and (c) of the present section 7, the new section 7 further empowers the Local Government to make rules to fix the fees to be paid for the storage of petroleum at places appointed for the purpose, and to regulate the selection of samples and the averaging the results of testing selected samples.

6. Section 7 of the Bill introduces certain new provisions in the Act as to the test-apparatus to be used. As the Act at present stands, the schedule contains a specification explanatory of the test-apparatus. As it is, however, proposed by this Bill to substitute a new schedule for the present one, in which a new description of the test-apparatus is inserted, it seems desirable, for the convenience of the public, to provide for the deposit of a model test-apparatus, which shall be open to inspection, and after which all the instruments to be used under the Act shall be constructed. This is what the new section 17 A, which section 7 of the Bill adds to the Act, does. This section also provides for the verification of each test-apparatus which it is proposed to use for the purposes of the Act. Each apparatus when verified is to be marked with a special number, and the officer making the verification is to give a certificate in which shall be noted any corrections which must be applied to the results of the tests made with the apparatus. This last provision is necessary, because it is practically impossible to construct instruments which will not need corrections of this sort. The certificate granted is declared to be conclusive proof of the matters stated therein.

7. Section 8 of the Bill substitutes a new schedule for the schedule at present appended to the Act, the instructions contained in which it is now generally admitted require modification.

This schedule has been prepared mainly by Sir F. Abel in conjunction with Mr. Redwood and Dr. Warden, the Professor of Chemistry in the Medical College, Calcutta, and Chemical Examiner to Government, and Dr. Lyon, the Chemical Analyser in Bombay, and it has also been examined and considered by Professor Pedler of the Presidency College, Calcutta. It embodies very definite directions regarding the sampling and testing of petroleum, and it lays down in a most detailed manner the procedure to be adopted. The Governor General in Council believes that the adoption of this schedule will meet all the difficulties which have been found to occur under the present law in regard to the sampling and testing of petroleum, and that, if the procedure therein described is carefully followed, there is every reason to hope that trustworthy and generally concordant results will be obtained.

9. Lastly, the new provisions as to the deposit of a model test-apparatus and the verification of all other test-apparatus therewith has necessitated the amendment of the explanation of the term "flashing point" which is appended to the definition of "petroleum" in section 3. It is necessary that, in order to ascertain the true flashing point, the petroleum should be tested with a verified and certificated apparatus, and after the corrections (if any) to be applied to the results of the testing have been made. Moreover, it would appear to be necessary that every apparatus used for the testing of petroleum should be verified at least once in every five years. All these points are provided for in the amendment made by section 2 of the Bill.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th March 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 6 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Government Securities.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Government securities in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Securities Act, 1885; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

[Act III of 1882, s. 2.]

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,

The expression "Government securities" includes promissory notes, debentures, stock certificates, and all other securities issued by the Government of India or by any Local Government, in respect of any loan issued under notification in the official Gazette, whether before or after the passing of this Act: and "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made from time to time by the Governor General in Council in this behalf.

1872. Right of survivors of joint payees of Government securities.

3. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Contract Act, section 45, when a Government security is payable to two or more persons jointly and any of them dies, the security shall be payable to the survivor or survivors of those persons.

(2) Nothing herein contained shall affect any claim which the representative of the deceased person may have against the survivor or survivors in respect of the security jointly payable to them and the deceased.

(3) This section shall apply whether the death of the person to whom the security was jointly payable occurred or occurs before or after this Act comes into force.

[Cf. sec. 40 of 33 & 34 Vic., cap. 71.]

Issue of renewed securities.

4. Any person to whom a Government security is payable may, on payment of the prescribed fee and on delivering the security duly receipted to the prescribed officer, obtain from the officer a renewed security payable to himself.

Issue of duplicate securities.

5. (1) When a Government security has been wholly or partly lost or destroyed the person to whom it was payable at the time of the loss or destruction or his representative may, on application to the prescribed officer, and on producing proof to his satisfaction of the loss or destruction, obtain from him an order for:—

(a) the payment of interest in respect of the security said to be lost or destroyed pending the issue of a duplicate security; and

(b) the issue of a duplicate security payable to such person.

(2) An order shall not be passed under sub-section (1) until after the issue of the prescribed notification of the loss or destruction and after the expiration of the prescribed period, nor until the applicant has given the prescribed indemnity against the claims of all persons deriving title under the security lost or destroyed.

(3) A list of the securities in respect of which an order is passed under sub-section (1) shall be published in the Gazette of India at such times as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, direct.

Period after which Government is released from liability in respect of original security.

6. When a renewed security has been issued under section 4, or a duplicate security has been issued under section 5, the Government shall be discharged of all liability in respect of the original security of which such renewed or duplicate security has been issued—

[Cf. 33 & 34 Vic., cap. 71, s. 51.]

(a) in the case of a renewed security, after the lapse of six years from the date of the issue of the renewed security,

(b) in the case of a duplicate security, after the lapse of six years from the date of the publication under section 5, sub-section (3), of the list in which the security is first mentioned, or from the date of the last payment of interest on the original security, whichever date is latest.

Power for Governor General in Council to make rules.

7. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make rules to prescribe—

(a) the fees to be paid for applications under sections 4 and 5;

(b) the form in which securities delivered for renewal are to be receipted;

(c) the officer who is to exercise all or any of the powers and perform all or any of the duties prescribed by sections 4 and 5;

(d) the proof which is to be produced by persons applying for duplicate securities;

(e) the form and mode of publication of the notification mentioned in section 5 and the period after which interest may be paid or a duplicate security may be issued under that section;

(f) the nature and amount of the indemnity to be given by a person applying under section 5 for the payment of interest or the issue of a duplicate security; and

(g) generally all matters connected with the grant of renewed and duplicate securities.

Publication of drafts and rules.

8. (1) The Governor General in Council shall before making rules under the last foregoing section, publish a draft of the proposed rules in such manner as may, in his opinion, be sufficient for the information of the public.

(2) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

(3) The Governor General in Council shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(4) Every rule made under the last foregoing section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and the publication in the Gazette of India of a rule purporting to be made under that section shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for certain matters connected with Government securities as to which legislation appears to be desirable.

2. Under the English law, on the death of one of several joint promisees or creditors, the right to sue on the contract vests in the survivors or survivor, and, on the death of the last of two or more survivors, in his personal representative. But a person receiving money under this right of survivorship may be accountable for it to the representatives of the deceased.

3. This rule has been altered in India by section 45 of the Contract Act, which provides that—

"When a person has made a promise to two or more persons jointly, then, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract, the right to claim performance rests, as between him and them, with them during their joint lives, and, after the death of any of them, with the representative of such deceased person jointly with the survivor or survivors, and, after the death of the last survivor, with the representatives of all jointly."

4. With reference to this section, the Law Commissioners, who prepared the draft of the Act, remarked:—"In regulating the devolution of rights and liabilities, we propose, in accordance with the rule of English Courts of Equity and of the Indian Code of Civil Procedure, that joint liabilities and rights shall, after the death of one of the persons liable or entitled, go to his representative jointly with the survivor, and after the death of the survivor to the representatives of both jointly." So far as can be ascertained, this proposal was accepted without criticism in India.

5. It appears that, both before and since the passing of the Contract Act, the practice of the Indian Public Debt Offices has been to treat the right of suing on, and giving receipts for money payable under, Government promissory notes as vesting in the survivor or survivors of two or more joint holders. But the law officers of the Government have recently given an opinion that, having regard to section 45 of the Contract Act, it is not safe to continue this practice.

6. Under these circumstances, the Government of India think that legislation is desirable both for the purpose of confirming what has been done in the past, and for the purpose of laying down a convenient rule for the future.

7. Accordingly, section 3 of the Bill declares that, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 45, when a Government security is payable to two or more persons jointly and any of them dies, the security shall be payable to the survivor or survivors of those persons. But to this a clause is added making it clear that the section will not affect the liability of the survivor or survivors to the representative of the deceased holder of the security.

8. Lastly, sections 4 to 6 of the Bill deal with the issue of renewed and duplicate Government securities.

9. With regard to the renewal of Government securities, the holder of a security may, under existing rules, upon payment of the prescribed fee and delivering up his security properly receipted, obtain a clear title in the form of a renewed security in his own favour. This right is affirmed by section 4 of the Bill; but as Government by the renewal becomes liable in respect of the new note independently of any question as to legal completeness of discharge upon the original security, opportunity is taken to fix a term within which claims in respect of the original security must be made. Accordingly, section 6 of the Bill releases Government from liability in respect of the original security after the lapse of six years from the date of the issue of the renewed security.

10. With regard to duplicate securities, the practice has hitherto been, when a Government security has been lost or destroyed, to issue a notification, under the terms of the security, of the discharge of the security upon a given date, and to refuse to issue any duplicate until six years (the period fixed by the law of limitation) has elapsed from the date so fixed for discharge. If, however, the loan is not mature, no such notification of discharge can be issued, and the Government is obliged to refuse to issue any duplicate, in the face of the risk of claims being made in respect of the security alleged to be lost. The Bill adopts the existing practice in respect of the issue of duplicates, but, by applying in every case the period of limitation which under the existing law applies only in the case of securities of loans dischargeable upon notice given at any time, enables the Government to issue duplicates (under the usual safeguard of a bond of indemnity) in every case of a security proved to have been lost or destroyed.

KIDDERPORE DOCKS.

THE HON. MR. REYNOLDS SAID:—I beg to move that the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to enable the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta to construct docks, be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill. I need not tell hon. members that this matter of the construction of docks at Kidderpore has been, for many weeks past, the subject of very animated debate and discussion in Calcutta. It has been discussed in letters in the newspapers and in the memorial presented to this Council, which is now in the hands of hon. members. I may say that I think it shares with the Rent Bill and the war in the Soudan the distinction of being one of the burning questions of the hour in Calcutta. If I had nothing more to deal with than the letters which have appeared in the newspapers, I am not sure I should care to detain the Council with any attempt at a detailed refutation of the wild statements and wild mis-statements which have appeared in those letters. I have been struck, and I think hon. members must have been struck, with the fact that the authors of those letters have not sufficiently had the courage of their opinions to sign their names to those letters, and I might, I think, be satisfied to say to the Council that we have on one side the opinion of the Committee of 1883—an opinion which was endorsed and accepted by the unanimous vote of the Port Commissioners and the Chamber of Commerce—the opinions of the Local Government and the Government of India and the Secretary of State; and on the other side we have those anonymous and irresponsible statements, and that I leave it to the Council to say which alternative may fairly be accepted. But the memorial before the Council is a document of a very different character. It is numerously signed by some of the leading mercantile and trading firms in Calcutta, who are deeply interested in the commercial prosperity of the port, and is a document which deserves, and which will, no doubt, receive the fullest consideration at the hands of this Council. The contentions of the memorialists appear to me to be to the following effect: First, that the docks are not wanted either for imports or for exports. Not for imports, because sufficient accommodation already exists for the import trade, and not for exports because the export trade of Calcutta is declining, and more particularly the trade in wheat and oilseeds. Secondly, that such accommodation as the proposed docks would give would involve further charges on the trade of the port. Thirdly, that the general import vessels ought not to be taken away from the jetties to docks at some distance from the town. Fourthly, that the arrangements for raising the loans in India are open to objection. And, lastly, that the sanitary effect of the docks would be at the best doubtful. I think, however, I should most fairly represent the case of the memorialists by quoting their summing up in their own words:—"First, that at present there is no need for any extension of the port. Second, that should need for such extension arise, the proper course would be to extend the port on its present lines. Third, That the building of a dock at an enormous expense will be a great burden on the trade of Calcutta, because it has never been shown that docks will be either the means of reducing the charges or facilitating despatch: on the contrary, your memorialists confidently assert that the charges must be increased. For these reasons your memorialists pray for the appointment of an impartial Committee to reconsider the whole subject, and to take evidence from practical persons as to the advisability or otherwise of proceeding with the work, and they also pray that, pending the report of such a Committee, the work now going on may be stopped."

This memorial is addressed, as hon. members will have observed, to the President and members of the Legislative Council of the Lieutenant-Governor, and I admit that the memorialists are strictly within their right in so addressing us, because the Bill now before the Council contains in its preamble a recital that it is expedient to empower the Port Commissioners to construct docks at Kidderpore, and if the memorialists desire to traverse that statement they have no doubt a perfect right to do so. At the same time it should, I think, be remembered that the Lieutenant-Governor is not only the President of this Legislative Council, but also the executive head of the Government of Bengal, and I think that the Government of Bengal in its executive capacity has reasonable grounds for complaining of the line of action taken by the memorialists. It is not as if this matter were one which had been hastily undertaken and without consideration, or so as to keep the public, and especially such persons as the memorialists, in the dark as to what was going on.

I do not think I need trouble the Council over again with the history of the various steps of these proceedings. I need not recount in detail the history of the Diamond Harbour Dock Committee of 1882, and of the Committee of 1883; nor need I draw attention to the references which were made to the professional advisers of the Local Government and the Government of India, and to the various steps which have taken place from time to time until we reached the present stage of affairs; but it seems to me hardly fair to the Executive Government that now, when the progress of this work has reached an advanced stage, we should be asked to stay their hands. When the work is going on under the sanction of the Secretary of State, when the land has been taken up and contracts entered into, when the ground has been cleared for the work of laying the foundation of one of the walls, and when something like 18 or 20 lakhs have been already expended, it seems to me rather late in the day for the memorialists to come forward in this way, and to say that the whole scheme is a delusion and a mistake, and that the question of making docks at Kidderpore ought to be reconsidered ab initio. But I do not wish to put the memorial aside on any such grounds as these, or to argue that the memorialists have really allowed judgment to go against them by default. I am willing to meet them on their own ground. What would be the action of the Bengal Government on receiving such a memorial as this—a memorial upon a work of great importance deeply affecting the commercial interests of the town? The natural proceeding of the Government in such a case would be to consult the great representative Associations, the Trades' Association, and the Chamber of Commerce, which are the natural and proper advisers of the Government in questions of this kind. We have amongst us a member of this Council who is a member of the Trades' Association, and who will, I trust, tell the Council what he thinks on this question. We have not amongst us any member of the Chamber of Commerce, but it so happens that this question of the docks was very fully discussed by the President of the Chamber of Commerce in his annual address to the Chamber only a week ago. I have the report of that address by me, and I propose to refer to it at some length as going very fully into the questions raised by the memorial. The first point touched upon by the President in his address is this question of the delay made in bringing forward these objections. He remarks that this memorial comes sixteen months after the report of the Dock Committee was issued, and eleven months after the sanction of the Secretary of State was obtained; and he said:—"The Committee of this Chamber had a copy of the document before it on the 18th October 1883, and I find that no less than 90 copies of that report were then received by the Chamber from the Port Commissioners for distribution, all of which were distributed among members; while those firms that do not belong to the Chamber were furnished with copies from the Port Commissioners direct. I learn that the daily newspapers, the Englishman, Indian Daily News, Statesman and Pioneer were at the same time furnished with copies." The President then makes what, I think, is a just remark, that "criticism at that time would have been more acceptable, and more useful than now. But I do not remember one dissentient voice." He then goes on to discuss the question that the expenditure incurred on these docks will throw heavy burdens upon trade. He appears to think that it will not. He says that he is certain that there is "needless alarm," and that the docks will not be, in his opinion, a burden to trade, but the reverse. He then goes on to discuss the comparative charges upon trade and shipping under the system of cargo boats as it at present prevails, and of the arrangements which will have to be made when these docks come into existence. He shows that the number of licensed cargo boats on the Port Commissioners' register on the 31st January last was 4,951, and reckons what the up-keep and maintenance of these boats cost the trade of the port, and he comes to the conclusion—I don't at all mean to endorse the exact correctness of the figures in his calculation—but he comes to the conclusion that the up-keep and maintenance of these boats cost the trade of the port a very much larger sum than anything like what it will be called upon to pay under the dock system, and then goes on to point out two very material mistakes into which the advocates of cargo boats have fallen. He points out that in attempting to compare the advantage of cargo boats as against the advantages to be derived from docks, they have entirely overlooked the great value of time. "Time," he very truly says, "is money to a shipowner. The facilities given for rapid discharge and loading will, in fact, considerably cheapen the port to ships." The second point which has been overlooked by the memorialists is that though the charge which they represent as being the normal charge of the cargo boats may be, and perhaps is, the charge when business is slack and trade is bad, yet that is not the case when there is any press of business. He refers for example to what happened three years ago, when what was called then—this is not my expression—the "extortion of the boat proprietors" was the subject of very severe remarks by the commercial firms in Calcutta, and he says that he has heard it said that at that time one of the opposers of the present dock scheme addressed the then Viceroy direct about the neglect of the Port Commissioners in having permitted the trade of the port to be at the mercy of the cargo boat owners, and he says that when the docks are completed there will be no chance of any such charges being laid against the Port Commissioners. He then goes into the question of the sanitary effect of the docks; he makes some remarks very well worth listening to on that head, and his conclusion is that trade will be conducted cheaper for everybody and an improvement made in sanitation and otherwise. That is a brief summary of the President's remarks. They are not the remarks of an irresponsible individual however distinguished, but the remarks of a gentleman of position, the President of the Chamber of Commerce of Calcutta, when speaking under a sense of the responsibility which must attach to the President when making his annual address. It may be said that the President of the Chamber is Mr. Keswick, and that Mr. Keswick is a Port Commissioner; that is very true, and it is a fortunate thing for the Port Trust of Calcutta that he is a Port Commissioner. The Port Trust does not contain a more useful or more energetic member than Mr. Keswick. Those who know him must know very well that he is too clear-sighted to be deceived in a matter of this kind, and too independent and too outspoken to advocate any cause which he does not believe to be founded on justice, and I might almost leave the memorial to be disposed of upon the arguments set forth by him in his presidential address, if it were not that there are some points in the memorial which I wish to examine a little more in detail.

The memorialists say at the bottom of the 3rd page of their memorial:—"Your memorialists now understand that these docks are to be made for an entirely different purpose—that is for a different purpose than that mentioned in the preceding paragraph—that general import ships are to be diverted to the docks, and the jetties made over to the coasting and inland steamers, for which they are entirely unsuitable; so that in fact the existing arrangement for salt, iron, and coal laden ships will remain the same, and the 673 ships will continue to load as heretofore in the stream; in other words, the increased facilities will be offered to the coasting and China steamers which are especially excluded from the Committee's report, and no additional facilities will be offered to the 673 sailing ships, the accommodation for which formed the single object of the Committee." Now the memorialists in this passage refer, I imagine, to a report of the Port Commissioners which was lately submitted to the Government of Bengal. That report was drawn up in reference to a despatch received from the Secretary of State on the subject of the docks. The Secretary of State has proceeded in this matter with a sobriety and caution which, I think, might satisfy the most careful of the memorialists. Although he had before him a strong consensus of opinion as to the advantage and advisability of giving sanction to the construction of the docks, he determined to proceed in a tentative manner at first, and so he only gave sanction to the construction of the tidal basin and approaches and to the completion of dock No. 1. Of course the expense of the approaches and tidal basin under this arrangement would have to be paid for out of the receipts for dock No. 1 alone instead of from the docks altogether, so that whereas the expense would not be very greatly diminished, the receipts from the docks would, of course, be very considerably smaller than they would be if the whole scheme had been brought into successful operation. Consequently the Port Commissioners thought it necessary to consider how far the scheme under these altered conditions could be worked, so that it might reasonably be expected to be a financial success, and they came to the conclusion that if the trade of the port and the number and tonnage of vessels were to increase during the next few years at the rate of increase of the last ten years, the receipts from dock No. 1 alone would be about 17½ lakhs and the charges about Rs. 14,35,000, giving a surplus of something over 3 lakhs of rupees. But the Commissioners thought that an estimate of this kind would not be entirely satisfactory to either the public or the Government. Whatever we may think as to the temporary character of this depression of trade, no doubt it would be more satisfactory if we could show that even on the face of the present figures, the scheme would be a financial success. On going into these figures the Port Commissioners found that the receipts would come to about Rs 15,85,000, and the charges not above those previously estimated, that is about Rs. 14,35,000, and taking merely the receipts from Dock No. 1, and putting entirely aside the great increase of income which would be received at a comparatively small increase of expenditure when Dock No. 2 should be finished—taking Dock No. 1 alone, we might very fairly reckon upon a surplus income of about one and a half lakhs of rupees. But this decision of the Secretary of State necessarily involved, besides our looking at the financial question, our modifying the arrangements previously contemplated as regards the method of using the docks. It was originally intended that salt, coal, and iron carrying ships should be accommodated in Dock No. 2, Dock No. 1 being intended for general cargo-ships and sailing vessels. So long as sanction was withheld from the completion of the original scheme in its entirety, we should not be able to carry out the arrangements originally intended, and that is, I suppose, what is meant by saying that the arrangements for salt and iron and coal carrying ships will be the same as at present. I do not know whether the memorialists really understand the facts of the case, but this assumes that the arrangements which the Port Commissioners are now suggesting are intended to be permanent arrangements. I do not entertain the least doubt that by the time we have completed the first dock we shall have obtained sanction for the second, and my opinion on that point is confirmed by the favourable results which have been obtained thus far in the measures which have been taken for the construction of Dock No. 1. Whereas all kinds of apprehensions have been expressed with regard to the nature of the soil, we find it turns out that the soil is particularly favourable and excellent for working. You can get down to a depth of 30 feet, and I understand that the engineer in charge is sanguine of being able to complete the south wall (which is really the one about which, being nearest to the river, most apprehensions might have been entertained) without the use of wells, and that implies the saving of a considerable part of the expense originally estimated for. Of course, I do not wish to lay too much stress on the favourable nature of the soil thus far. We may come upon an unfortunate piece of ground which may involve us in very great expense, but so far as the work has gone the character of the soil has fully answered, and more than answered the expectations of our engineers, and affords a very conclusive argument to justify the Port Commissioners in the decision they came to that the docks should be constructed on the Kidderpore side and not on the Howrah side of the river. If we had constructed them on the Howrah side of the river, we might have met with the fate which lately overtook the new boat dock of the East Indian Railway, and have seen our dock disappear almost as soon as its construction was completed.

The next point in the memorial that I would ask attention to is the question of sanitation: "The effect," the memorialists say, "of these docks on the sanitation of Calcutta is a matter which requires the most careful consideration both by the civil and military authorities." It really might be thought from that that the memorialists are not aware that any consideration whatever had been given to the matter. They ought to have known that this question of the sanitary effect of the docks has been very carefully considered, and that the best authorities are of opinion that the docks will have no unfavourable effect in that direction. I find that just the same objection was made at Bombay when the construction of Prince's Dock was under consideration. Well, it turned out just the contrary. I don't wish to lay more stress on that circumstance than it is worth, because of course Prince's Dock is a salt water dock, but that was one of the questions referred to by Mr. Keswick in his address to the Chamber of Commerce. He went in some detail into an explanation of the manner in which the sanitation of the docks would be provided for. To prevent stagnation of the water a continual flow of water through the dock will be kept up. Mr. Keswick came to the conclusion that there was no reason whatever for the apprehensions which had been expressed; and that is the opinion of two gentlemen of considerable attainments in the science of sanitation and of good acquaintance with Calcutta; I refer to Dr. Chevers and Dr. Macnamara. That is also the opinion of the Health Officer to the Port Commissioners, who has been consulted on the point; and these docks are to be constructed partly on the site of a number of bastis of an extremely unsanitary character, the rest of the site being now occupied by swamps, and the whole being honeycombed with some hundreds of tanks of the most filthy description. So that it will be seen that the general state of the neighbourhood is not at all satisfactory at present from a sanitary point of view. I think, therefore, that there can be no danger to the sanitary condition of the town by replacing a neighbourhood of that character by a sheet of water which will be kept, as far as such a thing can be done, in a state of purity by having the water continually renewed and replaced.

I would now ask the attention of the Council to what is said on page 4 of the memorial. They say:—"Should, however, the Government be determined to go on with the work, your memorialists would ask for an authoritative ruling—(1) that no pressure shall be put on the vessels to use the new docks; and (2) that cargo boats shall be allowed free ingress and egress to and from the docks for the purpose of loading or unloading vessels therein; and that no dues will be charged on goods conveyed to or from vessels in cargo boats." As regards the first of these two authoritative rulings, I can only say that there is no intention whatever, and never has been, to put any pressure on the vessels. As to the second point, according to the present scheme which has been sketched out, though not finally completed, cargo boats will be charged two annas a ton, the same charge as is now made for landing and shipping cargo over the inland vessels' wharves. But I do not anticipate any extensive use for cargo boats by vessels that are berthed in the docks. Those vessels will find conveniences, the want of which interferes so much with the use of the jetties by export vessels. They will find attached to the dock sheds where produce for shipment can be stored beforehand. This shed accommodation will be found not only a very great service to the export trade and the commerce of the port, but will enable shippers to dispense, to a very large extent, with cargo boats.

I am afraid I have rather wearied the Council with a long discourse. But it really seems to me that the pith of the memorial lies in two points:—First, that the trade of Calcutta is declining; and secondly, that the docks will be more expensive, and put greater charges on trade than are involved in the present system of business by the use of cargo boats. Now as to the first point that the trade of the port—more particularly the export trade—is declining. General cargo vessels have increased during the past ten years at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum per number, and 10 per cent. per annum per tonnage. There is no doubt a falling off this year in other vessels, and a large decrease in the tonnage of produce brought down by the railway, but there is really no reason to suppose that this decrease is more than temporary. The figures given on page 3 of the memorial show a diminution in some items of the trade of the port as regards 1884-85 compared with some previous years. But we see that a similar falling off is noticeable in the Bombay and Scinde returns. It may be said that the falling off is greater in the Port of Calcutta, but these returns seem to me to show merely this—not that the trade of Calcutta is declining, but that very possibly the trade of other ports, Bombay and Karachi, is progressing, and extending at a greater rate than the trade of Calcutta. There is no reason for lamentation, or for saying that our glory is departed and our progress gone. I am reminded of a striking passage in one of Lord Macaulay's essays, in which he speaks of the necessity of taking a comprehensive view in order to ascertain the tendency of popular movements. His words are these:—

"The motion of the public mind resembles that of the sea when the tide is rising. Each successive wave rushes forward, breaks, rolls back: but the great tide is steadily coming in. A person who looked at the waters only for a moment might fancy that they were retiring. A person who looked at them for only five minutes might fancy that they were capriciously rushing to and fro. But when he keeps his eye on them for a quarter of an hour, and sees one sea-mark disappear after another, it is impossible for him to doubt of the general direction in which the ocean is moved."

What Lord Macaulay says of the flux and reflux of popular movements is equally true of the flux and reflux of commercial progress. We have good and bad years: our prosperity sometimes advances with leaps and bounds: sometimes it crawls along; sometimes it seems to stand still, and sometimes even to go backwards. But when we look, not at the returns of a few months, but at those of a series of years, not at the returns of one or two articles, but at those which combine to form the sum of our export traffic, we can have no doubt as to the general tendency of affairs. In 1879-80 the value of the exports from Calcutta was 30 crores: in 1880-81 it was 32 crores 96 lakhs: in 1881 82 it was 33 crores 52 lakhs: in 1882-83 it fell to 33 crores 40 lakhs: in 1833-84 it rose again to 35 crores 7 lakhs. These figures show that in the five years I have mentioned, though there was one temporary fall, the general increase was steady, and amounted altogether to about 17 per cent. We are suffering just now from a period of depression, but I think we should do very wrong if we were to conclude that this state of things is likely to be permanent and were not to take reasonable precautions to prevent our being overwhelmed with a mass of traffic which we should not know how to deal with when this temporary depression of trade has passed away.

The second question is with regard to the charges which will be imposed by the docks as compared with the charges for cargo boats, and this is, I am sometimes disposed to think, really the main spring of the memorial. I cannot help thinking that those gentlemen who are interested in the maintenance of cargo boats had a good deal to do with the preparation of this memorial. They say that it is proposed to levy a due of one rupee per ton at the docks, whereas the cargo boats do the work for only eight or ten annas per ton. But as I have already noticed they have overlooked two very principal points, the point of the additional saving of time, which is practically the saving of money, by the more speedy manner in which docks enable produce to be handled, and they have—I will not say overlooked—but they have not noticed the fact that the Port Commissioners have no object in working these docks for profit, and that if a time of pressure should come, the Port Commissioners will not take that as an opportunity for raising their charges in the manner in which it has been complained cargo boat owners have done more than once, when there has been a special strain on the resources of the port. But besides this, when the memorialists compare the charge of one rupee per ton at the docks with eight annas per ton on the boats, I do not think that they quite state fairly the conditions of the case. The charge of one rupee a ton will take the produce into the ship, the charge of eight annas or ten annas per ton brings the produce alongside the ship only. There is a very material difference between those two things. There is no doubt a considerable amount of capital invested in these cargo boats; but the figures given by Mr. Keswick in his presidential address, which were subsequently challenged by a writer in the papers, and which I took the trouble to have verified in the Port Commissioners' Office and found them to be perfectly right, show the total number of licensed cargo boats to be 4,951. Of these 1,036 are square built, with a tonnage of about 25, and the rest are native built, with a tonnage of about 10. So that Mr. Keswick was perfectly right in his figures, although when he assumed what the expense of the up-keep of the cargo boats was, he was apparently assuming that the whole of them were square built boats of about 25 tons; therefore his estimate of 35 or 36 lakhs as the annual cost involved in the maintenance of cargo boats, irrespective of anything like profit to the owners, was, I think, a good deal beyond the mark, but even when we make a large deduction on that account, it must be perfectly clear that the up-keep and maintenance of such a fleet of boats as this, added to a reasonable sum for interest on outlay in the first instance and the profits of trade, must come to much more than will be charged for interest on the outlay upon the docks. I think the construction of these docks will not add any additional burden, but will enable the Port Commissioners to reduce the present charges.

I would only say in conclusion that it is the duty of those who have to consider this question to regard the inevitable results of the progress of railway extension which is now going on. By the time Dock No. 1 is completed we shall have the Bengal and Nagpur Railway at work, and that and the other railways which have been lately completed or are under construction in Bengal will undoubtedly have the effect of pouring into Calcutta a much larger amount of produce than we have ever hitherto had to deal with. This produce will come in on the Howrah side of the river, and it can be dealt with by the docks in the cheapest and most effective manner. The shed accommodation will enable it to be stored ready for shipment, it will be shipped with the greatest advantages and as speedily as possible, and therefore, I think, we should make a great mistake if, on a consideration of such objections as are put forward in this memorial, we were to feel any doubt or hesitation as to the action we should take in now going on with the Bill. The memorialists say that there is no present need for extension in the port. I deny that. I think there is need, because I can see in the immediate future a very great expansion of traffic. Then they say that if the need for such extension should arise, the proper course would be to extend the port on its present lines. In other words, they mean that we ought to add to the number of the jetties instead of building docks. I deny that also. Those who have been consulted on the question are of opinion that an addition to the number of the jetties would be a mistake, and that the security which docks afford against cyclones and storms is a conclusive argument in favour of docks as against jetties. Lastly, the memorialists declare that the docks will neither reduce charges nor facilitate despatch. I think I have shown that there are excellent reasons for believing that the docks will conduce to both these results.

Coming now to the prayer of the memorialists, I find that they pray for the appointment of an impartial Committee to reconsider the whole subject. I suppose they mean to imply that the Committee already appointed was not an impartial one. I leave the justice of that insinuation, if it is intended as such, to the judgment of the Council. For myself I think it is quite impossible for any Committee to be appointed that could be more truly representative or more fully command the confidence of the public than the Committee which was appointed for the consideration of this question. I therefore vote with some confidence that the Council do now proceed to take the report into consideration.

THE HON. MR. MILLER said that he thought there were very grave reasons why this motion should not be adopted by the Council. When this Bill was first introduced, or rather when leave had been obtained to introduce it, it was under an absolute and entire misapprehension of the existing public opinion. He did not make this statement in any way whatever as a matter of complaint, and he was perfectly well aware that ever since this improvement had been in contemplation the Government had been actuated entirely and absolutely by an endeavour to interpret what it believed to be the commercial interests of the Calcutta public. He was perfectly aware also that the Port Commissioners and the Dock Committee, composed of gentlemen of tried ability and tried position, who had been appointed to endeavour to carry out the project in some definite form, had all, from the commencement up to the present moment, been actuated by absolute sincerity of motive and singleness of object, but he could not help seeing that, at the present time at all events, the Government of Bengal, the Government of India, and the Secretary of State, in recommending this stupendous scheme, were acting under a misapprehension of public opinion. Mr. Miller ventured to turn to the speech of the hon. member when he first applied for leave to introduce the Bill, and there he found the following passage:—

"As a summary of the whole question, I believe I cannot do better than read to the Council, if it will permit me to do so, the concluding words of the despatch in which the Government of India recommend the adoption of this scheme to the Secretary of State. They said:—In conclusion, we would observe that the pressing need of improved facilities for the increasing trade of Calcutta cannot be too strongly insisted upon. The trade is rapidly expanding, and there is probably no public work on this side of India at the time which can be said to be as important as the Calcutta Port Improvements. The construction of docks will undoubtedly give great facilities, now wanting, to Calcutta merchants in the prosecution of their business, the process of loading and unloading cargoes will be considerably expedited, goods will be better and more conveniently warehoused, and the sorting and cleaning of wheat before shipment will be promoted; while the general concentration of business will be a welcome relief to those concerned with trade and shipping."

MR. MILLER then desired to quote the more important words which he would press upon the consideration of the Council:—

"The measure now proposed is formally supported by an absolute consensus of official and non-official opinion, and has the entire approval of the local commercial public. We trust, therefore, that we may be favoured with sanction to its being undertaken at the earliest practicable date."

The hon. member further went on to say:—

"These are the grounds on which the Government of India recommended the adoption of this scheme, and it is on these grounds that I now ask the Council to grant leave for the introduction of the proposed Bill."

MR. MILLER again repeated that the hon. member was at that time apparently perfectly justified in the remarks he made, and he was bound to say when he listened to the hon. member, that he accepted the statements as expressing the real condition of affairs. Now they were entirely and absolutely in a different position. Since the hon. member made that speech a very important section of the shipping community had come forward to inform this Government and their Council that the Secretary of State was mistaken; they dissented in a very strongly worded memorial, and this memorial had been criticised by the hon. member with great fairness, although possibly with a little scolding at the beginning and the end. Still it was fairly criticised. But it was impossible to remove the fact that there was a very large number of influential merchants, consisting of men of large experience, than whom no section of the community could possibly be more interested in this proposed legislation, and who came forward to tell the Council that they were afraid of the consequences of this large scheme; that the scheme was unnecessary and undesirable; that they viewed with dismay the danger of this scheme not turning out the financial success which it was suggested it would turn out, and that the results would be very disastrous to the future trade of this port. As the hon. member had pointed out to the Council, the memorial was most influentially signed. If they looked down the names, they would find a large number of the principal shippers in Calcutta, a large number of those who were engaged in trade, and a large number of miscellaneous merchants who were interested in the promotion of the commercial prosperity of Calcutta. He did not care to follow the hon. member opposite into his analysis of the different clauses contained in the memorial; he agreed with him that the kernel of the memorial consisted in the allegation that it was clear that the recommendations of the Committee were based upon the idea that the trade of Calcutta would very largely increase indeed. In paragraph 15 the memorialists said:—"It is clear that the recommendations of the Committee were based upon the idea that the trade of Calcutta would very largely increase: indeed, in paragraph 50 they (the Dock Committee) say that there is nothing before them to make them doubt that the trade of the port will continue steadily to increase; and that, on the completion of the Hooghly Bridge and the opening out and further development of the numerous tributary lines feeding the East Indian Railway, country produce would be pouring in at the rate of 1,250,000 tons per annum. The traffic returns of the East Indian Railway, however, tell a very different tale the receipts from traffic for the year 1884 being no less than 56½ lakhs below those of 1883, and for January 1885 no less than 11 lakhs below those of January 1884."

Now it was quite possible, as the hon. member remarked, that this decrease of trade might be temporary, but Mr. Miller ventured to say that if, in the face of the existing depreciation of trade,—and he thought no merchant at the present time would say that there was a silver lining to the cloud—, this proposal had been brought forward for the first time—a proposal to spend three crores of rupees, as to which nobody could tell from where it could be got, and with further requirements possibly—he ventured to say that the idea would have been absolutely scouted. He had read with great interest the speech of the President of the Chamber of Commerce. He was a leading merchant in the city, a man of great ability and wide sagacity, and Mr. Miller could quite understand that Mr. Keswick would have looked with horror and consternation, if any one came to him at the present moment, with the shipping trade in a state of collapse, and said to him: "Now is the time, let us come forward and form a syndicate to establish new mills or extend existing mills." His answer would be "that is not business; you must wait for times of prosperity to go in for extension." Mr. Miller thought that that illustration ought to bring it home to them all how very unwise it was at a time like the present, when Government paper was falling, when the requirements of the Government in the shape of loans would be very great, when no note was taken of the possible necessity for the Government of India going into the money market and borrowing very largely, for them to discount the future, by adopting a scheme which might possibly hereafter, in the far future, be a great commercial success; but which, on the other hand, if it failed, could not but throw on the existing port of Calcutta enormous charges which it might not be able to bear, and which might produce the result of sending the trade of the port into the hands of competing ports. He felt convinced that these were valid arguments, otherwise he would not vote against the motion. The hon. member had alluded to the very great benefit the project would confer on the port, but with this part of the subject Mr. Miller was not familiar. He was only there that day simply to express his views, and because he could not help feeling that the alarms expressed by the memorialists were such as he believed existed to a very large extent outside that Council, and such as the present depreciation of trade very greatly justified.

He would now ask the Council to consider some of the remarks of the hon. member in his second speech when he introduced the Bill. The hon. member said:—

"The Secretary of State, in his despatch of the 11th March last, has distinctly laid down the principle that the ultimate charge for these works is not to fall on the General Revenues, and is not to involve any increase of Imperial or Provincial taxation."

There could be no doubt whatever that in the event of the dock scheme not paying the interest upon the loan, the port dues would have to be enhanced. The hon. member went on to say:—

"The report of the Committee of 1883 gives a careful analysis of receipts and expenditure, based upon the actual trade of the port for the previous year. Assuming the capital debt to be incurred for the construction of the docks to be Rs. 2,30,75,000, the report shows that the charge for interest would be Rs. 10,38 000, and that the working expenses would be about Rs. 7,38,400, making a total of about 17¾ lakhs a year. On the other hand, the receipts would be about 18½ lakhs, giving a surplus of about Rs. 75,000."

Therefore they had the satisfaction, from the estimates made, of this small margin of Rs. 75,000 to cover all possible losses. The hon. member then went on quoting figures on the theory of the trade improving, and the docks bringing in further profits, but Mr Miller could not help thinking that they were going beyond actualities. The hon. member gave them a note of warning in this very speech. After giving figures he went on to say:—

"These figures are, of course, only estimates, and I need not remind the Council that in a work of this magnitude the cost is apt to exceed—and sometimes considerably to exceed—the original estimate."

In making out these figures they ought to place their calculations on actuals and not possibilities, and they knew at all events that these possibilities were not likely to be realized for some considerable time to come. He also found that, though his hon. friend had stated that the official opinions were all in favour of the scheme, there were several notes of warning in the opinions of the experts. The Secretary of State consulted Mr. Rendell, the first expert, and on looking through these papers he was very much struck by some portions of that gentleman's opinion. The first note of warning was found in a note by Mr. Rendell, dated the 1st January 1884, in which he said:—

"Modified, therefore, also as I propose in respect to depth, I fear that, if I were to make an estimate, it would be largely in excess of that of the Committee."

Again, in a further opinion which was sent out by the Secretary of State, he said:—

"I judge from the wording of this paragraph that the Government thinks more lightly of the difficulty which will be encountered in the construction of these docks than I do. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment no docks have yet been built which have involved so many and such serious risks as these. That they can be built I do not doubt, but their cost will be enormous for their area, and I do not envy the engineer who will be charged with their supervision. In respect to their cost, I may observe that, under ordinary circumstances, dock walls for depths such as we are dealing with may be built in this country for from £10 to £15 a foot run. Here even Mr. Bruce's estimate is Rs. 445, and the other gentlemen I have named place the cost 30 per cent. higher, exclusive of contingencies; and all the other works, except the excavation, are in something like the same ratio."

Mr. Miller could not help thinking this a very serious warning. Mr. Rendell was of opinion that the docks could be constructed, but evidently showed the greatest doubt as to the reality of the estimates which had been placed before him; and the Secretary of State in the same despatch remarked:—

"While I entirely recognize the necessity of expanding the shipping accommodation of Calcutta by the construction of docks, I cannot but feel that you are embarking on a very serious enterprise."

If this memorial had been before the Secretary of State when he sent out that warning, he would have said there was no consensus of opinion then, as there was none now. Mr. Miller thought, under the circumstances, that the extension of the port should not proceed upon the proposed lines. There was also an important note which he would like to read to the Council, by Mr. Buckley, who wrote, in a note, dated 4th April 1884:—

"As regards the estimates for the designs as they stand, I confess to great misgivings as to their sufficiency. But it is always so easy to say this, and one is perhaps tempted to say it, as experience has so often shown that it is a safe guess. I have, however, some grounds, at any rate, for thinking that the estimates are low."

He read that, with the view of showing that there was not that great consensus of opinion of experts, as far as he could see, in favour of the measure. He had also found from these papers that the engineers, in supervising the project, seem to have felt that the estimates would be very largely in excess of those which have been prepared by the Port Commissioners. There was a note by Mr. Molesworth and Colonel Brownlow, in which they also expressed a note of warning against the scheme. They said:—

"The numerous failures by sliding of massive dock walls in England, when founded on soft mud and silt, all point to the necessity of great caution in this respect at Kidderpore."

He had shown that they were justified in saying that there was not that great consensus of opinion which in the first instance was urged in support of the scheme. Allusion had been made in the memorial to the sanitary conditions of the scheme. Now with respect to the sanitary objections, that had not been sufficiently worked out, and he heard that day for the first time that the Sanitary Commissioner had been consulted, but he had seen no official opinions, and the only opinion which he had been able to see was the opinion of Dr. Chevers sent out by the Secretary of State, and which he would allude to presently. It was said in the report "that by the arrangement the water in the docks would be kept constantly changed, and all the disadvantages that might arise if the water was stagnant would be avoided. In connection with this question, the Committee have taken into consideration the sanitary arrangements which would have to be made for working the docks." Allusion was made by the hon. member to-day to the docks at Bombay, but the water in the Bombay docks was salt, whereas that here would be fresh. He would wish to refer, in relation to this, to the note of Mr. Buckley again who took this matter into consideration, and rather pooh-poohed the idea of making these sanitary precautions effectual. He said:—

"There is another argument in favour of Mr. Bruce's plan of pumping. It is that this plan will preserve the purity of the water in the dock. The Calcutta Canal has a lock at each extremity—one on the Hooghly, another on the Sunderbun channels. It is therefore possible to admit water at one end and let it out at the other; but there is a loop and a chord line on the canal between the two locks: this makes it particularly difficult to change the water in the centre of the loop. Last year I had great difficulty in keeping the water in this loop decently clean: indeed, I failed, although I frequently changed more than half the water: the water in one particular cul-de-sac taking off from the loop of the canal (in which practically I could not change the water at all) became exceedingly foul. The circumstances of the canal and the proposed docks are not parallel, for some drainage is still permitted to flow into the canal. No doubt the dock will, however it be fed, be always cleaner than the canal was last year; but one of the causes which defiles the canal will be very potent to defile the docks; that is, the habit of native boatmen to use the rudders of their boats or a temporary stage instead of a latrine. We have latrines all along the Calcutta Canal, canal police are stationed along the banks, and every boat is moored alongside the bank; but we fail to stop the practice I refer to. In the docks it will be much more difficult to do so, as many of the cargo boats and all the ships which lie at the moorings in the centre of the dock (see paragraph 18 of Mr. Bruce's reply) will be a considerable distance from shore; and I am convinced that it will be found practically impossible to carry out the regulations contemplated in paragraph 32 of the Committee's Report, which propose to lock up all closets and urinals, and compel the large floating population to use the latrines on shore. I do not think a policeman on every native boat would compel the people to go on shore; indeed, many of them could not, as they have no boats."

That seemed to deal very effectually with these proposed regulations, and in the note by Mr. Molesworth and Colonel Brownlow they endorsed the opinion of Mr. Buckley, and said:—

"We consider that the reasons given by Mr. Bruce, and the facts regarding the deposit of silt in the entrances of the channels leading out of the river and the supply of Tolly's Nullah with comparatively clear water during the rains, stated in Mr. Buckley's note, are conclusive in favour of supply by pumping in preference to direct supply from the river. Further, we are strongly of opinion that, take what precautions we may, the water in the docks will become extremely foul if not frequently changed. It is stated in the Committee's report (paragraph 32) that all water-closets and urinals on board ships lying in dock will be kept locked and properly secured; but we do not see how the "forechains" of the ships can be padlocked, or how the crews of native boats lying in the docks can be prevented from fouling the water at night. We strongly support Mr. Buckley's recommendation that the pumping station be shifted to the extreme end of No 2 Dock, furthest from the river."

Here in reference to the value of pumping there was an issue between the experts again; and at all events they were not unanimous in running the risk of adopting these sanitary regulations. Then Dr. Chevers was of opinion:—

"Having been ill, I fear that I may not be able to call upon you for a week or ten days. In the meantime, I entirely concur with Dr. Macnamara in the belief that the existence of wet docks at Kidderpore cannot in any degree injure health in Calcutta or in their own immediate vicinity.

"On the other hand, much of Kidderpore is thickly covered by a native bazaar. Should it be decided to dig there, there might be sickness in the neighbourhood while the process of excavation was in progress.

"Could you be so very kind as to send me a plan, as I cannot quite understand where the docks would be placed, most of the Hooghly bank of Kidderpore being occupied by the Dockyard, &c. ?"

Now, Mr. Miller did not consider himself as one of the opponents of Drs. Macnamara and Chevers, but he thought that the memorialists were right when they said that there was some danger of insanitary conditions arising, and they were clearly entitled to have the opinion of medical men on the spot, who should visit the locality and consider the consequences which might arise from placing these docks there. He believed this to be a most important question, and he thought that upon that ground alone the Government should grant the prayer of the memorialists to take medical evidence as to the way these docks were likely to affect the town.

He would not detain the Council much longer with any remarks of his own. All he could say was that he hoped the Government would see its way to reconsider the scheme. He was perfectly well aware that it was somewhat late in the day to make objections after the Government had spent a certain amount of money; but he could not help thinking that it was desirable to look the matter seriously in the face, and that, even at the last hour, it was better, both on sanitary and commercial grounds, to waste fifteen lakhs or even more, than to waste some crores in a gigantic scheme which was so uncertain in its results. The Government would now be in the position that they held the land, which would give them the means of erecting model bustis, or possibly letting the land acquired already in building leases. There were ever growing requirements for the suburbs in that direction, and he did not think that the Government would lose in holding that land, nor did he consider the money already spent as altogether thrown way. He hoped the Government would not say that these men were wrong because they had not come earlier with their representations. There was every indulgence to be shown to them, and he had not the slightest doubt that the present discussion would open the eyes of the Government. The time might come when this dock scheme would go hand in hand with the growing prosperity of the port, but the present time was a moment of great depression, and it was not a right time to come to a decision on so important a matter. He would point out that the conclusion of the memorial was supported by section 54 of the Committee's report, which dealt with the facilities which were afforded to the export trade and in which it was stated:—

"The extended accommodation now being provided at Howrah and the terminus of the East Indian Railway will, it is expected, do much to supply the immediate wants of the export trade, and it is hoped that, by the time the trade expands beyond this extra accommodation, the new docks will be ready for use. The Committee are fully sensible of the urgent need of affording the earliest possible relief to the export trade of the port, and in this view they have carefully considered the advisability of erecting jetties or providing pontoons at a site below the Royal Botanical Gardens; but having regard to the extension of accommodation now being carried out by the Railway Company and to the further extension which can be carried out on the Port Commissioners' wharves at Howrah, between the Railway Company's premises and Shalimar, the Committee have not included in this report any recommendations in regard to the works proposed below the Botanical Gardens"

That is what he would urge on the Government in lieu of these stupendous proposals which had lately been sanctioned by the Government, but which had not yet been sanctioned by this Council. He remembered that when Sir George Campbell was Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, on one occasion when on tour, an ambitious district engineer submitted a plan for building a palatial archway to the district jail, Sir George Campbell is reported to have said in his well-known amiable manner—"Take it away, take it away; I won't look at it. We don't want palatial jails in India: we cannot afford the luxury" and so crushed the vaulting aspiration of the ambitious public works architect. Mr. Miller would at this present time urge upon this Council that Calcutta was not able to afford the luxury of such palatial docks; that their motto ought to be festina lente; that they ought to proceed with great caution so long as these times of depression last. He remembered reading a note by Mr. Keswick where he pointed out the facilities which exist for extending the system of jetties on both sides of the river. The advantage of jetties is that they can be extended in accordance with the ratio of the increase of trade of the port. Whereas if they constructed large docks and the trade of the port did not increase, it would be very difficult, almost impossible, to avoid increasing the port dues and so driving away the trade of Calcutta to the cheaper competing ports. He desired earnestly to warn this Council against granting the sanction of its authority to so perilous an experiment as that proposed, the more especially as the argument which relied upon "the consensus of official and unofficial opinion" was manifestly utterly fallacious. They would be guilty of very great unwisdom, were they by passing this motion to legislate in direct opposition to the judgment and wishes of the very class whose interests the Government under a mistaken impression considered the passing of the measure would promote. For these reasons he would vote against the motion.

COLONEL THE HON. S. T. TREVOR said:—I fear I shall speak to considerable disadvantage after the eloquent speech which the Council have just heard from the hon. member who spoke last. I was very glad to hear the appreciative way in which the hon. member spoke of the single-minded care for the general interests of the community which had been bestowed on the consideration of this project by the Government of India and the Government of Bengal, as well as by the various public bodies, the Chamber of Commerce, the Port Commissioners, and the Trades' Association, who have been asked to consider it. There is no doubt that that is perfectly true. I don't suppose there has been a single project in the world which has received more consideration, and has caused more anxiety than this project of the Kidderpore Docks. On the other hand, the hon. member, when speaking of the memorial which has been the subject of so much discussion in this Council, spoke of it as representing the opinions of a very large and influential section of the mercantile community, and he has attached an importance to it, both in respect of the names attached to the memorial and the arguments used in it, with which I cannot myself agree. There is at least as large, if not a larger section of the mercantile community which has not signed this memorial; and the larger section which has not signed it has had this advantage that they have taken a greater interest in the subject than those who have signed it,—that they have given greater consideration to the reports and papers which have been prepared and issued for their consideration,—and after full consideration of those reports and papers they have come to the conclusion that the scheme is a good one which they can conscientiously support. I think the memorial has evidence in it that it is inspired by interested motives. I think it shows in some ways that there is a fear on the part of those who have signed it that their vested interests will be affected. But no doubt there is also evidence, in the names of some of the distinguished firms who have signed it, that there is a real anxiety on their part as to the financial results and effect of the docks when completed. Now I have not the smallest doubt that it is the present depression of trade which has created a despondency in the minds of a part of the mercantile community and prompted them to give utterance to their fears in this memorial. As to there being evidence that vested interests are concerned, the memorialists in the very first clause of their memorial say "your memorialists are largely engaged in the import and export of goods from this province, and as such are deeply interested in the charges of the port of Calcutta." And in another place they say—"In the opinion of your memorialists what is wanted for Calcutta is a reduction in the charges of the port, more than increased facilities for export." It seems to me that this shows that the prayer of the memorialists on this occasion is the same as it has been on similar occasions before. It amounts in fact to their saying—'By all means let the Port Commissioners reduce their charges; we all want that, but let our vested interests alone; we don't want these to be interfered with; we don't want any more facilities; they touch our interests and reduce our profits.'

I should be sorry to think, however, that this is the ruling view of this memorial. I believe it is inspired,—perhaps mainly,—by the anxiety which I have mentioned as being felt with regard to the financial effect which the docks may have on the port. The memorialists, for instance, venture to point out that "the export trade of Calcutta has lately shown unmistakeable signs of falling off, and that what is required at present is not so much additional docks and jetties, as that the charges of the port should be decreased to enable Calcutta to hold its own against Bombay and Sindh." They point with some sort of envy to the strides which the port of Bombay has made in its competition with Calcutta. If all the fears so eloquently described by the hon. member were true,—if this large and gigantic scheme, which he spoke of as likely to cost 3½ crores of rupees, was really certain to have the effect of burdening the port with such enormous charges, then, no doubt, notwithstanding all that has been done, we ought to refrain from authorizing the expenditure of so large a sum. But is that true? Bombay has already got its docks, while we are only beginning to think about ours, and it has its Port Trust debt, which in 1883 amounted to something like 384 lakhs. Last year I believe it was increased by another 83 lakhs, making a total of something like 467 lakhs. But so far from the Bombay docks having been financially a failure, they have been a success, and have greatly increased the facilities of the port. The memorialists point to the fact that Bombay is taking away the trade of the port of Calcutta. I venture to say that that is because it is not adhering to old traditions like Calcutta. It no longer sends cargo to ships in cargo boats; it no longer has to contend against excessive handling charges for loading and unloading. The railways bring the goods to the docks, where there are proper appliances for the loading and unloading of both export and import cargo. That is why Bombay has advanced. The memorialists also think that the province of Sind has been making rapid strides. I cannot say what the expenditure in Kurrachee has been. The work in the harbour has been done by Government hitherto, but I understand that the Government has made up its mind to establish a Port Trust in Kurrachee; and no doubt when established they will do as Bombay has done, and as I hope Calcutta will do.

The memorialists say in summing up that "the building of a dock at an enormous expense will be a great burden on the trade of Calcutta, because it has never been shown that a dock will be the means of either reducing charges or facilitating despatch. On the contrary, your memorialists confidently assert that the charges must be increased." I should have thought it is rather late in the history of civilization to begin to argue that docks are useless things; that they do no good; that now, in this nineteenth century, is the time to begin to consider the first principles of docks. It is known all over the world that they do reduce charges very materially. But suppose, for the sake of argument it is admitted that if facilities are provided by docks constructed at considerable expense by the Port Trust, some addition is made to the port charges to provide for interest on the outlay incurred in building such docks, how would these enhanced charges compare with the charges now borne by shipping business under existing arrangements. The whole cost of unshipping and shipping imports and exports does not at present consist of the port charges alone. A very large proportion of the cost is incurred in the crude and primitive methods now adopted in the moving, handling and storing of goods, and this is where vested interests are touched. These boating and shipping charges are precisely what must be reduced before Calcutta can compete on fair terms with Bombay. It is easy to estimate what the Port Trust will charge for the accommodation afforded and services rendered to shipping, because the accounts are published. But nobody knows what the charges are with which goods are burdened beyond, and outside the charges levied by the Port Trust. It is very difficult to estimate these, and nobody has yet succeeded in estimating them. When I was on the Diamond Harbour Docks Committee, Mr. G. Morrison, who was also a member, took up this question, and I remember being much struck with the ability with which he discussed not only this, but all other questions referred to the Committee. He took much trouble to make something in the nature of an estimate showing the amount of saving which would be effected by the construction of docks. In a note which is appended to the Committee's report, he goes at considerable length into the question, and I will venture to read to the Council an extract from his memorandum. He is actually writing about the Ship Canal Scheme which he advocated, but his remarks apply equally to the Dock Scheme, as the Council will see when I read them. He said:—

"It has been objected that the project, however otherwise good, must be set aside by reason of its cost. It does not so strike me. I have already advanced certain considerations to the contrary, and may here point out that, through all but a short section of the canal, ground could be cheaply acquired. Near Calcutta any surplus land taken up would be resold at an enormous profit The docks would in fact be the chief centre of business-life, and land around them and on either side of the canal would be eagerly sought after for such purposes as Jute Presses, Factories, Warehouses, Offices, Coal-yards, Engineering-shops, Petroleum Stores, General Warehouses, Inland Steamer Wharves, Emigration Depots, Timber Yards, Graving Docks, &c., &c. I propose, however, to show that such an undertaking, even though more costly than can reasonably be anticipated, would still be remunerative, and this may probably best be done by attempting an estimate of the gross savings which would result to the shipping and to the mercantile public."

He then gives his estimate of savings, which I need not read in detail. Some of the items would now have to be struck out, but it is interesting to see the totals he arrived at. He calculated that the savings by vessels would amount to Rs. 37,10,750 and the savings by merchants on boat and cartage expenses to Rs 44,15,000 more, thus making a total saving of Rs. 81,25,750. Then he goes on to say—

"If now we imagine the cost of land, canal, docks, and warehouses to amount to the surely excessive sum of Rs. 350 lakhs, the account will stand thus—

	Rs.	Rs.
Interest on Rs. 350 lakhs at 4 per cent. ...	14,00,000
Maintenance, conservancy and working staff, say	4,00,000
Sinking fund, say	7,00,000
Per annum		25,00,000

	Rs.	Rs.
Balance available, for lightening charges on shipping and on trade generally after providing for deficit (if any) in the accounts of the port trust, viz, deficit caused by a falling in receipts owing to transfer of business to the new docks		56,25,750

I need scarcely say that this is the roughest of estimates, and that it may probably need correction on both sides of the account. There are figures necessary for nearer estimates which are not available to me. The savings of trade, have however, not knowingly been over stated."

I remember at the time we thought Mr. Morrison was over-estimating these savings. But I have since come to the conclusion that this was not the case. His estimate, both of the first cost and of the working expenses of the docks, comes very nearly to what the actual figures of the Port Commissioners' estimate of the Kidderpore Docks are. According to him, merchants will save on the present boating and carting charges more than double what they will have to pay the Port Commissioners for the facilities afforded by the docks. If these anticipations have any foundation, we should certainly not put a stop to the scheme at the point to which we have now reached, especially when we find that what is proposed here has been done elsewhere very successfully. It is true that in a despatch from the Secretary of State conveying the opinion of Mr. Rondell, which was read out at length by the hon. member, a note of warning was held out, but that was on a point of engineering as to the nature of the soil and so on. But now that the soil at Kidderpore has been turned up, the illusion turns out to be on Mr. Rendell's side, in so far as he thought the soil would be the same as at Howrah. The soil at Kidderpore has been found to be very favourable so far, and there is every hope of the docks being carried out within the estimate. It was only in respect of the difficulties attending the scheme from an engineering point of view, and because the construction of docks was entirely new to this country, that Mr. Rendell considered it necessary to give that warning to the Government of India, and I may tell the Council that if any one question in connection with this scheme has received more consideration than another, it is the engineering question. All the engineering points connected with it have been thoroughly considered. But it would hardly be necessary, even if I had had notice of the different engineering points which were likely to be referred to, that I should discuss them in this Council: they are matters for discussion by the engineers concerned, and they have been very carefully and thoroughly discussed. It is only the general view as to the desirability of having docks that this Council ought to consider. As I have already urged, there is nothing new in the building of docks in India, as we have some in Bombay, and as to the cost, if the whole sum estimated is spent, the expense would be limited to about 320 lakhs; and even if we went up to 450 lakhs, we should still, having very nearly as large a trade as Bombay, be able to work the docks without loss and with infinite convenience to the trade of the port.

The only other point on which the hon. member spoke at some length is the sanitary one. I confess it surprises me to hear of the fears which are expressed, from a sanitary point of view, as to the injurious effects of large excavations of this sort. Whenever earth has to be dug out in this way, it makes a great difference in the sanitary aspect of the case whether the earth is to be utilized for the filling up of unhealthy ponds or not. It was only a couple years ago that at the Shibpore Engineering College, opposite these very docks, and alongside the Botanical Gardens, where the ground is very low, it was proposed to improve the health of the place by digging a large ornamental lake. As soon as we began to do so, one doctor said that we should kill all the people in the place, so we thought the best thing to do was to refer the question to another doctor, and fortunately he held an opposite opinion. So we went on with the work, but not a single casualty occurred of any sort: the health of the place has been enormously improved, people are showing a desire to live there, and land in that locality is now being sought after. The area of the lakes I won't say is quite as large as the Kidderpore dock will be, but it is very large. Therefore, as far as the mere excavation of the earth for the docks, and the substitution of one large sheet of water, which would be partially renewed from time to time with fresh water, for an immense number of small and foul tanks is concerned, I am confident that the health of the locality will be vastly improved by the construction of the docks. There is, of course, the question of the sanitary arrangements of the shipping, but considering the immense volume of water the docks will hold I venture to say that no ill consequences will arise.

I don't think there is any other point in regard to which I need take up the time of the Council. I can only say before sitting down that I had the opportunity, when the Diamond Harbour Docks Committee was sitting, of considering the whole of this question as to docks. I have since had the opportunity of considering all the reports subsequently received, and the conclusion I have come to is that it is high time that the docks were made. There is, no doubt, a depression of trade at this moment, and the mercantile community are in consequence a little despondent as to the future prospects of the port. But I think there is really very little ground for despondency. The Government of India are spending 2½ millions sterling annually for the extension of railways, and that must do something to increase the trade of the port. These railways must carry additional produce, and a part of that produce must come to Calcutta in addition to what comes in now. If not, they may as well stop all further expenditure on railways. As the hon. mover of the Bill has pointed out when quoting Lord Macaulay, one year may be a little worse and another a little better; changes must go on more or less in the rate of development, but that is no reason why we should stop all further expenditure on these docks. I was prepared before to vote in favour of the docks, and I am still prepared to do so: for nothing has been urged in this memorial which gives us the slightest reason to suppose that these docks will not be beneficial to the port. It must be remembered that the interest on the expenditure has been guaranteed by the Government of India, and that means a great deal. It is not as if this was a purely mercantile transaction. The Government of India is at least as materially interested in the scheme as the memoralists. In their despatch to the Secretary of State, dated 30th October 1883, they said:—

"It may be admitted that the Imperial Government are very intimately concerned in the provision of suitable docks and other arrangements for facilitating exports. By next year the Eastern Bengal Railway will be in our hands. The East Indian, the Calcutta and South-Eastern, and the Bengal Northern Railways are State lines. In the 'Bengal Central Railway' we are interested as guarantors. It may therefore be said that the whole railway communication on both sides of the river is practically our own, and that as owners of this property we are called on, in our own interest, to do something for the port, as Railway Companies in England do. The docks are also likely, as pointed out in the Committee's 70th paragraph, to contribute to a more economical and effective control of the salt trade."

So that the Government of India being thus interested and having guaranteed the loans to be raised under the provisions of this Bill, they will be sure to do all they can to further the interests of the docks under all circumstances, and there cannot be the slightest fear on the part of the mercantile community on the ground that any further burden will be thrown on the trade of Calcutta.

The Hon. Kumar Baikunthnath De said:— I cannot help expressing my sympathy with the remarks which have been made by my hon. friend opposite (Mr. Miller). Doubtless the Government have fully enquired into the bearings of the proposed docks on the health and commerce of the metropolis, and are satisfied that there is no reasonable ground for apprehension; but the Council is not so favourably situated. The Hon. Members have before them the memorials of the merchants, jute-balers, mill-owners, and others expressing with some show of argument that there are grounds for such fears; but there is nothing before the Council to show that these fears are causeless. The reports of the experts who were consulted as to the expediency, feasibility, and sanitary effects of the docks have not been laid upon the table, and I, for one, cannot vote on the question intelligently and with the conviction that I am doing right without seeing them. For many many years the conviction among medical men in Calcutta has been strong, that the health of the town suffers most owing to the existence of a large sheet of stagnant water to the east, I mean the Salt-Water Lake, and various attempts have been made, hitherto ineffectually, to reclaim it, and it is not easy to understand how another large sheet of stagnant water, placed on the windward side, would prove healthful or even innocuous. This is an important question and should be maturely considered. The addition of heavy imposts on trade—a trade which, experts are of opinion, has now a downward tendency—is also a question of serious import. The apprehensions may be quite causeless; but they are there, and the only wise course for the Council, under the circumstances, would be, it appears to me, one of caution and deliberation. All the papers on the subject accessible to Government should be laid before the Council, and, if necessary, further enquiry should be made and experts consulted before any final resolution is adopted. I make these remarks with diffidence, for the question involves matters on which only professional people can speak with confidence; but that is the very reason which most urges caution.

The Hon. Mr. Irving said:—I desire to make a few remarks in support of the Bill now before this Council. The hon. the mover of the Bill, on moving for leave to introduce it, gave a short statement of the circumstances which had induced Government to sanction the scheme, and when introducing the Bill he took up the financial question involved, and showed that there was no reasonable ground for supposing that the scheme would be other than a success, and that once the work was completed the docks would not only be self-supporting but remunerative, and that they would enable the Port Commissioners to lighten the burden upon trade. With these views I fully concur. It must not be overlooked, when appraising the present agitation against the docks, that the call for increased port accommodation was only a very short time ago most urgent, and that the matter was pressed on the attention of Government by the merchants and shippers of Calcutta, and by various railway authorities. To meet this crying want a Committee was appointed to consider the desirability of constructing docks at Diamond Harbour. That Committee, while unanimous as to the need of increased port accommodation, differed in regard to the proposed site. The majority were in favour of the scheme, but the mercantile members were unanimously against constructing docks so far away from Calcutta, and the whole of the mercantile and trading community supported them in this opinion. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor therefore resolved that further enquiry should be made as to the best means of improving the port, and with this object in view a strong Committee of merchants and Port Commissioners was appointed. This Committee first met in April 1883, and finished their report in September of the same year, having met in all 23 times. A very careful and valuable report was unanimously adopted, and it recommended the construction of wet docks at Kidderpore, while they deprecated the further extension of jetty accommodation as not being suitable to the general trade of the port. On this report being laid before the Port Commissioners, they also unanimously approved of the scheme therein proposed. An authority, on such questions, now a member of this hon. Council, when considering the Diamond Harbour scheme and the present accommodation, wrote as follows:—
"But if we are content to go on as we are, and merely expand existing arrangements, there can be no doubt that we shall never succeed in making Calcutta a cheaper port; and that is, perhaps, the thing most to be desired."

Regarding the notes of warning so prominently noticed by Mr. Miller, it was only to be expected that such warnings would be given by the gentlemen consulted. As advisers of Government on engineering questions, they were bound to point out possible dangers, and to recommend the utmost caution in prosecuting a work of this magnitude, but no one reading the reports can say that these warnings have been disregarded. On the contrary, they have received, and, I venture to say, will receive, the utmost attention from the officers engaged in carrying out this great work.

The Government of India in their despatch No. 57P.W. of 30th October 1883 point out that the total debt of the Calcutta Port Trust, after the docks are completed, would be 83 lakhs of rupees less than that of the Bombay Port Trust, and yet, notwithstanding a reduction in the port charges, the Bombay Port Trust are now in a position to borrow 83 lakhs more for a second dock. It is also stated in this despatch that the measure now proposed is "formally supported by an absolute consensus of official and non-official opinion, and has the entire approval of the local commercial public." And until quite recently no sign was made that this conclusion was not justified. My hon. friend on the left (Mr. Miller) puts a very different construction on this to what I do. When that statement was made, and indeed until a few days ago, no other conclusion was possible than that this scheme was absolutely in accordance with the wishes of all concerned.

Hon. members, however, have now before them a memorial to the Hon. the President and the Members of this Council praying for the appointment of another Committee to further consider the dock scheme, and that, pending the report of such Committee, the work now going on should be stopped. The memorial is signed by a number of influential firms, and therefore deserves every attention. When, however, it is borne in mind that all the signatories had an opportunity of fully stating their views at an earlier stage of the proceedings, and further that one of the signing firms had a representative on the Dock Committee, it takes away much of the weight that would otherwise attach to this memorial. The foot-note to the memorial is also, I think, most damaging to the views held by the memorialists, and leads one to infer that it is not impossible that this foot-note may represent the views of others who have signed the memorial. So far as I can judge, no fresh reasons are brought forward in the memorial against the dock scheme, and many of the statements seem to me to be one-sided and made without sufficient inquiry, much against the scheme being taken for granted. The existing jetties, it is well known, do not afford sufficient accommodation to even the import trade, and obtain very little revenue from exports. It is admitted in the memorial that docks would doubtless offer considerable facilities to the export trade in wheat and oil-seeds, though only at an additional cost. The Dock Committee, with facts and figures before them, came to a directly contrary conclusion. At the present time, with trade in a singularly depressed condition, it may be possible to load ships by means of cargo boats at a lower charge than that proposed as a dock due. There is, on the other hand, no security that rates will remain at anything near the present level.

But if I am not misinformed, even now contracts are running for boat-hire at double the present rates. It must also be in the recollection of most hon. members that not very long ago Rs. 50 and Rs. 60 per diem had to be paid for boats, and that even as much as Rs. 120 per diem was demanded and paid during a time of pressure. With well arranged dock accommodation such extortion can never again be practised. It is a matter for regret that private interests must be interfered with in a scheme of this kind. Where, however, the general good of the port is concerned such considerations must give way.

I notice that the memorialists ask for an impartial Committee to reconsider the whole subject. What is here meant by an impartial Committee I cannot make out. I do not think it possible to get in Calcutta a stronger or more impartial Committee than the one which has already examined this scheme

I trust this Bill will be passed into law, and thereby set at rest the clamour against this useful work, and bring to a practical solution a question which has more or less agitated Calcutta for over 50 years, and give the much-needed accommodation and security to the shipping of this port. Strange to say, a similar agitation was raised against the construction of the present jetties, which are now universally admitted to be a great success. That jetties have in the past greatly facilitated imports is without doubt, and it is now full time that the whole trade of the port should have the utmost facility and security afforded to it. So far as I can judge, the proposed docks will give the security and facilities needed, while they will not increase the ordinary charges on shipping. On looking into the history of various dock works, I find that in nearly every case vested interests opposed them with great bitterness, and succeeded in retarding their construction for long periods. On this point I will, with your permission, read one or two short extracts from McCulloch's Commercial Dictionary at page 498, Article: 'Docks on the Thames.' He says:—

"It is singular that, notwithstanding the obvious utility of wet docks and the past trade of the metropolis, there was no establishment of this sort on the north side of the Thames till nearly a century after a wet dock had been constructed at Liverpool. The inconvenience arising from the crowded state of the river at the periods when fleets of merchantmen were accustomed to arrive, the insufficient accommodation afforded by the legal quays and sufferance wharves, the necessity under which many ships were placed of unloading in the river nto lighters, and the insecurity and loss of property thence arising, had long been fel as intolerable grievances, but so powerful was the opposition to any change made by the private wharfingers and others interested in the then existing order of things, that it was not till 1795 that a plan was projected for making wet docks on anything like an adequate scale for the port of London, and six years more elapsed before the Act for the construction of the West India Docks was passed."

And at page 529 the following regarding the docks at Liverpool:—

"The rapid rise of the port of Liverpool to its present consequence, though no doubt principally owing, like that of the town itself, to the astonishing increase of manufactures and population in the extensive district of which it is the grand emporium, is also in part owing to the facilities that have been given to navigation and commerce by the construction of its wet and dry docks."

Regarding the excessive cost of the proposed works commented upon by the Hon. Mr. Miller, quoting from Mr. Rendell, I will now read Mr. Bruce's reply thereto:—

"With reference to Mr. Rendell's observations regarding the cost of the dock walls, I append a statement showing the cost of some dock walls, from which it will be seen that in every instance the actual cost of these walls is greatly in excess of the rates quoted by Mr. Rendell. The estimated cost of the walls in Prince's Docks, Bombay, was Rs. 363 per lineal foot, as compared with Rs. 425, my estimate for the walls in the docks at Kidderpore; and considering the favourable conditions under which the walls of Prince's Dock were constructed, the estimated cost of the Kidderpore dock walls does not compare unfavourably with those in Bombay. The rate for rubble masonry, of which the Bombay dock walls are constructed, was taken at Rs 23 per 100 cubic feet, against Rs. 36 for the brick work on the Kidderpore dock walls. If the rates for the work in Bombay had been the same as those which obtain here, the estimated cost of the Bombay dock walls would have been Rs. 423-12 per lineal foot instead of Rs. 363, and if the same work could be done here at the same rates as those which obtain in Bombay, the cost of the Kidderpore dock walls would be reduced from Rs. 425-4 to Rs 327-4 per lineal foot."

I would say, in conclusion, that I give this measure my full support. I am also in a position to say that a strong majority of the Committee of the Association to which I have the honour to belong fully agree with me in this matter, and entirely approve of the dock scheme.

THE HON. MR. MACDONNELL said:—I had not intended to offer any observations on this question, but certain remarks have fallen from hon. members which suggest to me the desirability of making a few observations. In the first place then, I desire to say that the memorialists are to be congratulated upon the advocate they have secured to present their case to this Council. Everything which could be said in favour of the memorial has been urged with much force by the hon. member on the right (Mr. Miller), but, listening as I did, with a certain amount of sympathy for his argument, I was still forced to think that no fresh arguments had been brought before the Council to induce it to deviate from the grounds indicated by the Bill. I am free to confess that I myself did at one time feel a considerable amount of hesitation and doubt as to the propriety of constructing docks at Kidderpore. Having regard to the very shifting nature of the river Hooghly, and to the uncertainty which from time to time surrounds its channels, not only below Calcutta, but above it, I may say that I did look with much doubt and hesitation upon the proposal to build docks at Kidderpore. And I am not at all prepared to say that that doubt and hesitation is altogether removed from my mind; so that if the proposals of the memorialists had been directed, not against the financial success or the sanitary bearings of the undertaking, but had been directed against the possible dangers which might accrue from a change in the course of the river Hooghly or its affluents, I am not prepared to say that they would not have received my sympathy. But their arguments have been directed, not in that way, but against the financial aspects of the scheme. Now, so far as I have been able to consider the question—and, as far as my opportunities have permitted, I have considered it very carefully—I do not think there is any valid argument against the probable financial success of the scheme, even if the trade of Calcutta does not develop beyond its present dimensions. That the docks will result in a financial success and in a large augmentation of the trade in the port, and in great facilities for the export and import trade, there cannot in my opinion be any doubt. I am free to admit that the memorial is signed by some very influential firms, and, although we may not agree with the arguments contained in it, yet they deserve from us our careful consideration.

I may think with my hon. friend on the left (Hon. Mr. Reynolds) that the stagnation which at present prevails in the trade of this port is only transitory and it may well be that this depression in the trade of Calcutta has a great deal to do with the feeling of despondency which is apparent between the lines of the memorial. That feeling under present circumstances is very natural; and it is a feeling which deserves tender treatment at our hands. Still I think that, if the memorialists had regard to the statistics of trade in Calcutta, they might be able, even from a cursory examination of these statistics, to derive a certain amount of comfort and solace. Those statistics now before us show that in the quinquennial period ending in 1865 the gross tonnage of vessels coming to Calcutta was 997,756 tons. While in the quinquennial period ending in 1876 the tonnage had diminished to 757,208 tons. That is not a solitary instance of that ebb and flow of trade to which my hon. friend on my right has referred; but if in 1876 people had been despondent their despondency was but short-lived. Matters soon mended, for we find that in the next quinquennial period the trade reached by a bound to 1,280,000 tons, and in the next to 1,415,000 tons. Then follows a yearly increase to 1,579,000 tons, 18,908,000 and 18,902,000, and the last figures returned are 18,384,000 tons and 19,977,000 tons. Therefore, having regard to the trade of Calcutta over a series of years, we find in the figures that evidence of growing trade and increasing prosperity which we might expect from the fact that the country is advancing in enlightenment, and that railway and other communications are bringing in contact with the ports of the country those tracts which have hitherto been unexploited. It therefore seems to me that the memorialists fail to make out their case that there is anything in the present stagnation of trade which is otherwise than of a transient character? I have stated that I myself would have supported a proposal for enquiry if it had been otherwise directed. I do think and always have thought, that docks are necessary provisions for the increasing trade of this city, but I have also been impressed by the conviction that the proper site for the docks is not Kidderpore, but Diamond Harbour.

The more I look into the papers which have been laid before us and the more carefully I review the discussions on the question, the more am I satisfied on this point. But I presume that the question of docks at Diamond Harbour is no longer a question of practical politics, and, therefore, I do not propose to enter into any consideration of that scheme. So far as I understand the position, the Government of Bengal itself was at one time in favour of Diamond Harbour, and only departed from its predilection in favour of that site in order to accommodate itself to the wishes of the commercial community in Calcutta. Therefore, if there be any argument to be brought in opposition to the Kidderpore dock scheme, it is strange that it should come from any section of the commercial community in Calcutta. It will not be denied, even by the hon'ble gentleman on my right, Mr. Miller, that among the commercial public of Calcutta the memorialists are in a minority, and that the number of the firms interested in the trade of this port who are in favour of the Kidderpore Dock scheme largely outnumbers those who have attached their signatures to the memorial. We are, therefore, in the position of having a scheme accepted by the preponderance of opinion among the commercial community of Calcutta, and by the Government as being in accordance with the wishes of that community, which, however, is objected to at the last moment by a comparatively small number of important firms. It does seem to me that, before we can attach any such degree of responsibility to the representations of the objectors as should make us now, at the eleventh hour, halt in our path and reopen the whole question, that representation should come before us backed by a far greater weight and influence than attaches to this memorial which is now before the Committee. It was, I think, incumbent on these memorialists to have gone to the various firms who support the scheme, and by their arguments to have endeavoured to bring them round to an acceptance of their own views. The plan adopted of coming before the Council at this stage, with a memorial expressing no new views nor stating any arguments which had not been stated before, unless indeed references to the present state of trade be excepted, is not I think the manner in which the memorialists ought to have gone to work. It is not to be forgotten that a stoppage or a postponement of the Bill at this stage involves serious inconvenience. I certainly feel a great amount of sympathy for those whose private interests may be affected by the scheme now before the Council, and I don't think that the fact of the memorial having possibly been promoted by private interests, is any reason why we should not afford to it the most careful and fullest consideration; still as the Hon. Mr. Irving has said, private interests in such a matter as this must give way to public convenience, and on this substantial ground I do not think there is anything before the Council which should make it halt in the path on which it has entered.

THE HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said:—I will not detain the Council at any great length at this stage I feel, however, constrained to oppose this motion, and I will endeavour to put before the Council the position as it seems to me from the point of view, not of the memorialists, not of the Committee, but of Members of this Council. This Bill was brought forward, and we were informed that there was really no occasion for us to take into our consideration the merits of the Bill in any respect whatsoever, because competent authorities had unanimously pronounced that the docks ought to be constructed, and ought to be constructed upon this plan, and ought to be constructed at Kidderpore. All that having been fully decided, and fully decided by authorities to which we were bound to bow, and to which I did bow and do bow with the greatest respect, we were asked to undertake the necessary legislation for the purpose of carrying out a scheme which had been approved of on all hands. We were not at that time even furnished with the materials which are now before some of us. We were not, when this Bill was brought into the Council, invited to take into consideration, nor did we take into consideration, the policy or propriety of the scheme on which the Bill was founded. Then what is our position? I will speak for myself. I am not an engineer like my hon. friend, Colonel Trevor. I am not a Port Commissioner like my hon friend Mr. Reynolds and my hon. friend Mr. Irving: nor have I spent my days, as my hon. friend MacDonnell says that he has done, in studying this question. I come here with no ideas at all on the subject, with no means of judging on the subject, bound to bow to authority, and prepared to bow to authority. Now, let us see in what position we are placed at present, and whether hon. members can—those at any rate who have no special means of judging on this point—conscientiously either vote for or against this Bill I submit that they cannot, that they can form no opinion upon it as it stands, except in so far as my hon. friend, Mr. Miller pointed out various prima facie and apparent grounds of objection which would occur to the uninstructed mind. This is what we should have been told had we been invited to look into the subject; but, as I have said, we were not invited to look into the subject at all. We were asked to allow the Bill to be introduced, and we did allow it to be introduced, on the faith of the statement that there was absolute unanimity on the subject, not merely a year and-a-half ago, but up to the present time. It now turns out that that statement, although it was made in perfect good faith, is quite incorrect It is perfectly true that there was in 1883 no dissent except so far as Mr. Steel pointed out that the port was capable of accommodating double the amount of trade that it did at that time. Mr. Keswick says there was no dissentient voice. There was a dissentient voice, so far as Mr Steel was concerned, but whether there was or was not that is not the position from which we have now to proceed. Not having considered, at the time of the introduction of the Bill, whether there was in fact that unanimity of opinion, it is our bounden duty, I submit, to consider that now before we proceed further with the Bill. This is the first opportunity we have had of considering that point. Had we been invited to consider that question, we should have found in the recommendation of the Commission this statement:—"1st, that the accommodation for the trade of the port requires immediate extension both for imports and for exports, but especially for exports." At the time this Bill was introduced into the Council that had ceased to be correct. Immediate extension of the accommodation for exports was not required at that time, as we, who are not acquainted with this matter, have since learned. "2nd, that the present accommodation provides practically only for vessels bringing general cargoes, and for a very small portion of the export cargo taken by such vessels." As I gather from the discussion that has taken place, that is not now proposed to be remedied. Therefore, we should have had in the report of the Commission put prominently forward as our principal motive the necessity for making immediate provision for exports. We know that exports have fallen off very much. If we looked to the despatch of the Government of India to the Secretary of State, the one dated the 30th October 1883, we should have found in the 19th paragraph the following:—"In conclusion, we would observe that the pressing need of improved facilities for the increasing trade of Calcutta cannot be too strongly insisted upon. The trade is rapidly expanding, and there is probably no public work on this side of India at the present time which can be said to be as important as the Calcutta Port improvements." And then the Government proceeds to refer to the trade in wheat, which is the very trade which has so markedly fallen off, and they say:—"The general concentration of business will be a welcome relief to those concerned with trade and shipping. The measure now proposed is formally supported by an absolute consensus of official and non-official opinion, and has the entire approval of the local commercial public." Then, in the despatch of the 6th March 1884, the Government again say that "the insufficiency of the existing accommodation has for some time been evident, and the rapid growth which has of late years taken place in the trade of the port has fully established the necessity for early measures being taken." These statements, on the materials on which they were made, were perfectly correct, but at the time the Bill was introduced into this Council they had ceased to be so, although we were not aware of the fact. Now the memorialists have come forward to inform us of this fact. The burden, I take it, if I may use a legal expression, the burden of satisfying the Council that this Bill should be passed, lies upon those who introduced it. They have to satisfy the Council, and the Council is in duty bound to be satisfied, that this scheme will be for the benefit of the community of Calcutta, and, if such considerations are applicable, for the benefit of the entire community of India. Those who introduce this Bill have to satisfy us with respect to that. I submit that it is quite a mistake to say that the onus lies upon these memorialists to establish their proposition, and I submit that if they had the onus upon them they have amply discharged it, because the proposition laid down to us was that the commercial community were unanimous, and the memorialists have, by coming forward, proved that they are not unanimous, but that they are divided. And when we look into the matter, we see that the division does not end there. There was division among the engineers: even in this Council there is division; Mr. MacDonnell still wants the docks to be at Diamond Harbour. So far from their being at the present moment any unanimity, there appears to be division on every point, except on the one point, as vouched for by the medical men, that those docks will be, as we are informed, like the sewers of Calcutta, places that you may live in with comfort and pleasure. That is the only point upon which there does not appear to have been any division amongst the experts, but that is because only one expert was consulted as far as we know.

The Government of India say that the measure now proposed is formally supported by the absolute consensus of official and non-official opinion. The memorialists have established the fact that it is not so. I am told that they form the minority. I do not know how that is. It is invidious to refer to the importance of the names; but I was certainly under the impression that Ralli Brothers were the largest exporting firm in this city, and that those other firms whose names appear here constitute amongst them the bulk of the exporting firms of this city. It appears I am mistaken; but if the argument used by the hon. member opposite (Colonel Trevor) is to be accepted, the weight of representation on both sides has disappeared. He says that the memorialists have come forward to oppose the Bill because their interests are concerned. By parity of reasoning those who have come forward to support it have come forward because their interests are concerned, and therefore we unfortunate official, unprofessional, unscientific and non-official members of Council are left to grope in the dark without any satisfactory authority to which we can bow. But one thing is obvious, that the Bill is not supported by an absolute consensus; that it will not be to these memorialists a welcome relief if the business of the port should be concentrated in these docks. In fact, it is one of the things that is hinted at as an interference with their vested rights, that, the docks being at Kidderpore, their warehouses would have to be transferred to that locality—a very material thing for them to consider. That being the case, from my point of view the ground for further enquiry is irresistible. What is the position with regard to those hon. members who are situated like myself? They are told to bow to authority. They are most anxious to bow to authority. The question is—To which authority? The authority of the mercantile community which supports this measure, or the authority of the other mercantile community which opposes it? Even if they are asked to bow to the authority of the engineers, the best thing they can do is take refuge in and bow to the authority of that distinguished member of the Council, himself an engineer; otherwise they will find themselves in hopeless difficulty, because they have Mr. Bruce on the one side and Mr. Rendel on the other; and in fact we bow from side to side. That is not, I submit, the way to come to a conclusion. Therefore, as we are necessarily bound to guide ourselves by authority, it is absolutely essential either that the authority should be unanimous, or that we should have the means of comparing the value of the two authorities, which we have not at present. I suppose this motion is quite independent of any of the merits of the Bill itself. The merits of the Bill itself ought, I submit, to be a matter of further consideration. We ought not to be called upon now to discuss with the hon. member opposite (Colonel Trevor)—if any one should be found so rash and presumptuous as to do so—the question whether the land at Kidderpore is composed of stable clay, or whether it will turn out to be quicksand and swallow up the docks as on the Howrah side, or to discuss with the medical men the question whether the putting of locks upon the water-closets on board will be shutting the real stable door; but above all—and this is the most important question of all, and the authorities on it are divided—I venture to submit that we must and ought to have further guidance on the engineering question, upon which, as my hon. friend Mr. Miller has pointed out, the Secretary of State expresses the gravest misgivings, and I for one do not feel myself in a position to come to any conclusion at all on the matter as it stands.

I will now just briefly glance at some of the arguments in favour of the Bill. As hon. members will have gathered, I contend that we are not called upon to give any opinion on the merits of this particular scheme. I will refer to one or two points in regard to the details of the measure. My hon'ble friend, Colonel Trevor, takes the high and à priori ground that docks are in the abstract good. Bombay has got docks, some other place has got docks; therefore Calcutta must have docks. But I take it that the real question is whether the docks are in the right place. My hon. friend referred to the history of civilisation in support of this proposition. I do not intend to go into those questions. I desire to limit myself to the plain and humble and practical question whether docks in Calcutta are desirable. Then my hon. friend says Bombay has prospered by reason of its docks. If that is so, and if Calcutta is in the same situation, then that is a very strong argument in favour of constructing the docks. But that is not the ground upon which the Bill was recommended to us; the ground was that it is a necessary development of history that we should have docks in imitation of other places, whose prosperity may either be the cause or the effect of their having docks; we are not at present informed which, except that we have the authority of my hon. friend for saying that it is the cause and not the effect. But the ground upon which it was put was that they are immediately required. Now, it is obvious that trade having fallen off to the extent it has, they are not immediately required. No doubt we are asked to say that in the not very distant future they will be required, but that is a ground upon which this measure was not originally framed. It was the ground of immediate pressing necessity. That ground has disappeared, but it appears from the support apparently accorded to this motion that, though there is no present necessity for the erection of these docks, no time should be wasted in passing this Bill. Although the matter has been going on for many years, and many years must elapse before it is completed, yet a month or two of delay, in order to satisfy the minds of members, we are told, would be absolutely fatal. I submit that is not so, and that the ground upon which the Committee desire that this work should be taken in hand at once has completely failed. There is nothing before the Council at present to make us believe that the trade of this port will continue steadily to increase. We are all agreed that there is a considerable amount of despondency. The memorialists are met with chiding and rebuke for feeling that despondency. But these are the people who have an interest in the matter. Then we are told that trade ebbs and flows. That is one of those propositions which I think might be employed in almost any discussion; but as regards the present discussion, it seems to me to be peculiarly inapplicable. If our trade is like the tide to ebb and flow, then I am afraid we do not see any great ground for the immediate and permanent increase of it which is anticipated. We want something more than the fluctuation of a tide. It seems to me, therefore, that that argument does not advance the matter.

Leaving these abstract considerations, we come down first to the question of pounds, shillings and pence, and secondly to the question of sanitary effect. Now I object to be called upon to decide the question of the eminent success of this undertaking. I find that one authority says that the most sanguine view of it in the present state of things is a balance of a lakh and a half of surplus. Any one who has had the slightest experience in these matters must know perfectly well that a surplus is always a dissolving view, and therefore if it does not dissolve away entirely it always is very much reduced, and when you have only a poor lakh and a half, what security have you on the figures presented to us that this will be a financial success? But it is said that it is to be for the benefit of those very persons who are protesting against it. They say they don't consider that it will be a financial success. They say they can get cargo boats to land their goods for 8 or 10 annas as compared with the rupee that the new docks will charge them. But then they are told that under this system of cargo boats the owners run up their prices in times of pressure. The consideration is entirely omitted that they equally run them down in times that are not times of pressure. Here you have merely the result of competition as against a fixed rate. Whereas, instead of it, you will have a fixed rate which does not rise in times of pressure, or fall in times of depression. That is not a self-adjusting machinery, which the present is. Therefore, I submit, there is nothing in that argument. I was somewhat surprised to hear the suggestion that this memorial was in any way influenced by the petty interest of the owners of cargo boats. Surely the names which are attached to it are amply sufficient to satisfy the Council that this is the opinion of the memorialists, and not something which is said at the suggestion of a small interest, which that of cargo boat owners is as compared with the interest of these persons. But my hon. friend Colonel Trevor says that, inasmuch as the memorialists are interested in the question, they ought not to be listened to. He says there is running through the memorial a care for their own interests on the part of the memorialists. That objection might well be taken if this scheme were devised for the benefit of a public other than the public to which the memorialists belong. It is the very essence of a memorial like this that it should be based on self-interest. It is the interests of the memorialists that we want to discover, and they say that the scheme will not be a financial success by showing that the charges, although higher than at present, will be insufficient in all probability to meet the greater charge incurred. They show that it will not benefit them, because they will be charged more than they are charged now. They do not agree with the view of the hon. member that Bombay owes its prosperity to the construction of its docks; they probably entertain the view that it was probably the prosperity of Bombay which led to the construction of its docks, and that is not an argument which should be used to show that the depression of Calcutta should lead to the construction of docks. There is no need whatever to disparage the impartiality of the Port Commission, nor do I understand that the memorialists do so; and as to this surplus of a lakh and-a-half, no notice has been taken of the fact that there will be a loss on the jetties which will very likely more than counterbalance this surplus. With regard to the prospects of trade, I do not know whether we are expected, on the information we have as to the state of trade in 1883, to form an opinion as to what are the prospects of trade in 1885. That is apparently what we are asked to do. What we have to be satisfied of is that trade will improve up to the mark which will render these docks a financial success? How are we to be satisfied about that? All the evidence we have now is all one way, and that is the evidence of these memorialists, who say they do not want these docks. Then there is the question of sanitary arrangements. As to them I do not propose to say much, very little is sufficient. There is a charming prospect held out in that 32nd paragraph of the Commissioners' report which my learned friend quoted "Conservancy boats will be maintained, &c., and with these arrangements strictly carried out all will go well." Of course, we see how very strictly those arrangements are carried out in the streets of Calcutta, and from that we may imagine how strictly they will be carried out in these docks.

Then it is said that the work cannot be stopped at this stage. What stage are we in? We recognise in the Bill that unfortunately the Secretary of State having sanctioned this expenditure, the Commissioners have thought fit to enter upon the scheme before they obtained legal powers to do so. But I think that we cannot allow ourselves to be influenced by that. Otherwise, instead of exercising our own judgment as to whether this scheme is a proper one or not, our hand would be forced by the action taken by the Government. The Government have acted, of course, in perfect good faith, and under the impression that the entire community were with them I quite sympathise with their position, and more especially with the position of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, because no doubt had these representations been made at the beginning further action might have been stopped, but this Council, I think, cannot take into consideration that some things have been done. We cannot proceed with something which we are not satisfied is for the benefit of the community on the ground that we have done something towards doing what is not for the benefit of the community, and I do not think that anybody has a right to reproach these gentlemen for not having come forward earlier, because they were entitled to assume that, so long as the Commissioners had not the power to construct docks, they could and would do nothing And the Commissioners certainly cannot take advantage, so to speak, of their own wrong, and say that because they have acted without authority, this Council is bound to give them that authority. We owe a duty to the public and not to the Port Commissioners, and the Port Commissioners cannot force the hands of the Council. My hon. friend also alluded to the fact that a member of one of the firms who signed this memorial was a member of the Commission, and that he used as an argument against the memorial. It may be an argument gainst that individual member, but cannot be used as an argument against the memorial. I submit that we ought to be in the same position now as if this Bill were being introduced: as if nothing had been done, as if no money had been expended, and as if we were being asked, with a large section of the mercantile community opposed to it, to force upon this community the construction of these docks.

The Hon. Mr. Reydolds said: I have a few remarks to make in reply to what has been said by hon. members. I am not sure that I quite understood the hon. and learned Advocate-General to imply that the question had not been originally put fully and fairly before the Council. I understood him to say that when the Bill was introduced the circumstances were not properly explained, and that facts which might have been placed before hon. members were not put before them as they should have been.

[The hon. the Acting Advocate-General. I said that it would not appear necessary to any one dealing with the subject at the time. But the fact is that they were not placed before the Council].

The Hon Mr. Reynolds continued: I was not aware when I asked for leave for the introduction of the Bill that there was not a consensus of opinion on the part of the mercantile community, and I certainly had no intention of keeping back anything which I ought to have laid before the Council. I think the assumption which seemed to underlie the speech of the learned Advocate-General is that the memorial we have before us is a representation of the voice of the mercantile community of Calcutta. I have admitted all along that the memorial is numerously and very influentially signed, and that it deserves the careful attention of the Council, but I have never admitted that it can be taken as representing the voice of the merchants of Calcutta. The voice of the mercantile and trading classes of Calcutta, is to be recognized in the utterances of the Chamber of Commerce and the Trades' Associations who represent the great majority of those classes, and they have expressed themselves in favour of the construction of these docks; so that authority, as far as it goes, is not on the side of the memorialists. Then the hon. and learned member quoted the opinion of Mr. Steel against this project. The opinion referred to is that in which Mr. Steel said—"While expressing a decided preference for docks at Calcutta rather than at Diamond Harbour, I am of opinion that both schemes are premature, and that means exist for providing for the accommodation of trade by improving the port of Calcutta itself;" and I understood that opinion to be quoted by the hon. and learned gentleman as an opinion adverse to the opinion of the Kidderpore Docks Committee. But it should be borne in mind that that was an opinion offered on the report of the Diamond Harbour Docks Committee, and before the Committee of 1883 had been appointed at all. It would be quite a mistake to use that opinion as an argument that Mr. Steel was opposed to the report of the Kidderpore Docks Committee, for when after that report was prepared the Port Commissioners established a permanent Dock Committee to deal with all questions connected with the construction of the Kidderpore Docks, Mr. Steel was a member of that Committee up to the time of his leaving the country, he attended a number of its meeting and signed its reports, and I believe he was entirely in favour of the dock scheme. No doubt, when the report of the Committee of 1883 was drawn up, and for some time afterwards, it was considered that there was immediate necessity for extended accommodation for the export trade of the port. Whether there is the same necessity for taking immediate action now for such extension is a matter which I desire to submit for the consideration of the Council; I do not deny the statement in the memorial that there is a depreciation of trade at present, but I do not wish that fact to have more weight attached to it than it deserves.

With regard to the rival claims of cargo boats and docks, the argument is that the rates of hire for the use of cargo boats fluctuate, whereas for the use of the dock a fixed rate is proposed; and it is urged that if cargo boats are dear when business is brisk, those who use them have the compensating advantage of low charges when trade is dull. But if the figures are looked into, I think it will be found that this argument is misleading. Mr. Keswick said that as long as business was slack and rates were low, people may get business done at the rates stated in the memorial, but directly business increases the rates go up. I have heard of cases in which the charge for a cargo boat of 25 tons has been as high as Rs. 120. All that the memorial proves is that the lowest rate for cargo-boats is somewhat below the fixed rate proposed for the docks: it does not show that cargo boats, on an average, do the work more cheaply then the docks will do it.

With reference to what fell from the other hon. member (Mr. Miller), I admit the truth of a good deal of what he said, and I am quite prepared to allow that an important question of this kind ought to be taken up with great caution. If the question of constructing docks had now been raised for the first time, I think that probably a few far-sighted members of the commercial public would have said—"We are passing through a time of depression of trade, but it will not last long: let us prepare for the revival, which will inevitably come." That is what far-sighted men would have said; but I quite admit that if this question were now mooted for the first time, this dock scheme would not command the general chorus of approval with which the report of the Committee of 1883 was received. But is this a sufficient reason for retracing the steps we have taken? It may be true that the present time is in some respects not altogether favourable to the construction of a large work like this, but there are compensating conditions, as the depression of trade will have the result of enabling us to make arrangements for machinery at a cheaper rate, and to obtain the necessary labour at less expense, and consequently there is every prospect of a considerable saving on the estimates. The hon. member referred to a paragraph in the opinion of Mr. Rendel, in which he says the scheme should be started on the smallest scale, and with no illusions as to the character of the soil, and that borings generally make the soil appear better than it really is. The hon. member laid great stress on that, and said that the results which might be obtained ought not to be relied upon. What I referred to in my speech was not the experimental borings; the work has now progressed a great way beyond the stage of experimental borings. In paragraph 33 of the Committee's report they said—"In some places it might be possible to get in the dock walls dry, but in others it would not; and in estimating the cost it has therefore been considered advisable to assume that the locks and quay walls throughout will have to be constructed on wells. If wells are not found necessary, there will be a considerable saving: but in estimating, it is best to allow for the maximum expenditure which may have to be incurred." That passage shows that the estimates were framed on the cautious principle of allowing for the highest expenditure which might be incurred under the most unfavourable conditions. But the result of the work, so far as it has been carried on, shows that at a depth of 33 feet there is dry clay, and that the south wall at any rate can be built without the necessity of laying down any wells, thus making a considerable saving on the estimates.

Then with regard to the sanitary question, I confess that it has not been prominently dealt with in the recent reports, simply because it seemed to be sufficiently disposed of by the opinions which we had before us. Two good authorities, Dr. Chevers and Dr. Macnamara, were both satisfied that the proposed docks could not possibly be a source of sanitary danger to Calcutta. We are now told that we ought not to be satisfied with those opinions, but should have taken the opinion of medical men on the spot. I don't see how, if we had taken the opinions (let us say) of the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal and the Health Officer of the Corporation, they would have been able to have given us anything more than the general opinion given by Dr. Chevers and Dr. Macnamara. When the docks are constructed it will then be the duty of the sanitary authorities to say what special measures are necessary to prevent any sanitary danger. And I say, as I said before, that there is no reason to suppose that the docks will be more insanitary than the present condition of the site on which it is intended to construct them.

I don't know that I need take up the time of the Council with any further details, but I would ask hon. members, who oppose the Bill, to consider how far their objections justify their voting against the motion before the Council. The question before us is that the report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration. Are hon. members prepared to hold that they have made out a case for saying that it is not expedient to take that report into consideration? The Bill is nothing more than a permissive measure; it willl merely give legal sanction for the construction of docks, and if any further enquiries are necessary, the Bill will not affect that part of the question. In any matter of this kind there must somewhere be finality, there must be some time when the decision shall not be disturbed I think there is reason to say, even under the present circumstances of trade, and admitting the force of much of what has been urged in the memorial, that the Council would not be justified in determining that it is not expedient to construct these docks. I believe the docks are a necessity of trade, and with the expansion of traffic from the increase of railway communications and the material progress of the country, we ought to have the power of dealing with the traffic in the way which the docks will afford us, and if we neglect the opportunity and suspend action simply on the ground of the depression in trade, the very gentlemen who have signed this memorial will a few months hence very possibly be the first to blame us for not having taken the necessary precautions at this time, after all the warnings which have been given us to make proper provision for the increased trade of the port.

His Honor the President said:—I do not know that I can add very much, if at all, to the force of the words of those who, I think, are in the right in supporting the motion to take this Bill into consideration. It is very little use going over the past history of this docks controversy, beyond pointing out that it has been the subject of enquiry by two Special Committees, and the subject of correspondence for four years or more between the Government of Bengal, the Government of India and the Secretary of State, and what I would lay most stress upon is, that all that has passed up to within a few days ago has been with the concurrence, and I had always understood with the unanimous acceptance, of those who represent the mercantile community of Calcutta. The fact is that we here as an executive Government are simply carrying out the wishes of those who represent the trade and commerce of this large city; and in proposing to place the work in the hands of the Port Commissioners, we are placing it in the hands of a body who from their past labours for the improvement of the port have deserved well of the public, and than whom there can be no other constituted body who by their knowledge or experience or strong interest in all that concerns their charge would do fuller justice to a work of this magnitude. Having arrived at this point without, I may say, the least word or murmur of disapproval from any quarter, we are confronted by an opposition led by the hon. Mr. Miller, speaking in the interests of a large body of memorialists, and supported by the very forcible speech of my hon. and learned friend the Advocate-General. I am glad to find that they admit that there is no want of good faith on the part of Government. They recognise that, when we took up the work and when the hon. gentleman, the Chairman of the Port Commissioners, made his speech, introducing the Bill, he was acting in perfect good faith, and in the belief that he was speaking for the merchants and mercantile community of Calcutta. Since then, however, they allege, a very important change has come over the views of that body; public opinion has changed; and public opinion in this matter having changed proves that all the Government of Bengal has done, and all that the Government of India has done, supported even though it was by the mercantile community, is wrong, and therefore that we are bound to retrace our steps, stop the works, and not give any power to the Port Commissioners to raise money for the construction of the docks. Now I do not question the right of the hon. member to raise this question, or of the Advocate-General to support it, because the right to do so arises on the wording of the Bill; and if they can persuade this Council not to give the Port Commissioners power to raise money, the question falls to the ground—perhaps not entirely falls to the ground, because, even if the Council did not give the money, I suppose Government might find means to give it in some other way. Still it would be a great delay to a work which has been already considered and deliberated on for many years, and it would be a very serious hindrance to what, I may still be permitted to think, the large majority of the public consider to be desirable. I should never have thought, unless I had heard it from my hon. friend the Advocate-General, that in the present position of the case the burden of proving the desirability of carrying out the work lay upon those who have hitherto advocated and proved its necessity. If there is to be any suspension of the enterprise now, the burden of proving the necessity of such a course rests, I should say, upon those who, having hitherto been silent, have by their silence given consent to the undertaking, and who having their representatives on the Chamber of Commerce, have allowed us to go on for four or five years, discussing the question backwards and forwards, and raised no kind of opposition to our proceedings. The memorialists are in that position. These gentlemen, not at the eleventh hour, but, as I might say, under the new nomenclature, at the twenty-third hour, now come forward and say:—"You must stop all that you have been doing because we do not agree with you, and consider that there is great risk in going on with this business." I do not think that anything that has been brought forward by my two hon. friends by way of opposition, or any thing which is alleged in the memorial, shows sufficient grounds to the Council for justifying the refusal of that assistance which the Port Commissioners require. They referred to some isolated passages in the reports and correspondence which has been going on between the authorities here and at home as against the undertaking. I do not think you could conceive any large work, take for instance a permanent new bridge over the Hooghly, on which, wherever you brought two of your engineers together there would not be differences of opinion as to the exact plan of construction, its width, the number of piers and so on, although all might be agreed that the necessity for a bridge in such a place existed, and that is very much what has happened in this case. There have been occasional differences of opinion here and there of men who have had to consider a scheme of very large magnitude, but still the outcome of all their inquiries and labours has been the approval of the scheme now before us. The learned Advocate-General said that this Council was placed in an awkward position; that though a great deal had been done outside its walls, hon. members were not in a position to decide upon this question in view of the fact that all the papers connected with it had not been placed before them. There is no fault on the part of the Bengal Government in relation to that matter, and I cannot help observing that all the earlier papers have been published, at least they were sent to the newspapers, two years ago. All the later papers too have been sent to the Port Commissioners, and authority has been given to them to publish them. That they have not been published before is owing, I believe, to the fact that no one has until now thought it necessary to throw any doubt on the advisability of those docks. The real point of the opposition, it seems to me, lies in what the learned Advocate-General laid chief stress upon, namely, that the facts now are not the same as the facts upon which the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Port Commissioners originally based their views. To some extent this may be true, and though I have no right to speak with any great authority on the point, all that I can gather from those who have a right to speak is that the present extreme depression in trade, which is made the ground of the present opposition, is a purely temporary and transient thing, and that neither history nor experience supports the conclusion that it is likely to last. Of course you may say, even if it is temporary, it is wise to hold your hands until you see the results of the next few months, or the next year. The answer I should give to that would be that the passing of this Bill does not prevent the delay which you require, if delay is really necessary. The passing of this Bill, which is only an enabling Bill, puts the Port Commissioners in the way of raising money for carrying out those docks. Should they never choose to raise a rupee, the Bill would be inoperative; and then, if there is any reality in the contention that these docks are not wanted, the fact would be established by those who are in favour of inaction in the presence of those who represent the merchants, the shipping interests, and the trade interests of Calcutta, and if the case of the memorialists is as strong as it is represented to be, their influence could be brought to bear upon those who represent them in such affairs, which would in turn operate on Government, and the work, if it is one of danger and risk, would be stopped. But I do not at present see that there is any ground for our delaying our proceedings in Council and hesitating to pass this Bill. For myself I should certainly advocate the going on with the thing earnestly. The theory in my mind is what Colonel Trevor very forcibly expressed. The introduction of railways all over the country is bringing in produce from all parts of the country. If Calcutta does not choose or is unable to receive this produce into her port the trade will go to other ports If Calcutta chooses to neglect its opportunities, I think it would suffer. I do not think the risks are what you fear. I think the risks are on the other hand in your neglecting to take advantage of the opportunity which is before you. The maxim, festina lente, which Mr. Miller quoted, is a very good one; but I am afraid that in Indian proceedings we are much more apt to be on the side of lente than on the side of festina. At least I know no country in the world where, when you have threshed out a measure and brought it to a point of completeness after exhaustive enquiries, serious attention would be given to considerations for doing nothing at all. I shall certainly support the motion.

The question being put by the PRESIDENT that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill—

The Council divided:

The Hon. Kumar Boikantonath Dé.
The Hon Mr. Miller.
The Hon. the Acting Advocate-General.

So the motion was carried.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY moved for leave to bring in a Bill to regulate Ferries in Bengal. He said:—The law applicable to ferries in Bengal at present is found in Regulation VI of 1819 and Bengal Act I of 1866. It is only by a series of expedients, more or less ingenious, that we have been able so long to work under an enactment which gravely warned Collectors of districts to desist from any interference in the management of ferries, and which vested the exclusive power of making rules to regulate their maintenance, not in the Government, but in the Magistrates and Joint-Magistrates. In 1879 the Bengal Government endeavoured to introduce some uniformity of practice by framing a model set of rules and form of kabuliyat, and proposing their general adoption by Magistrates. These rules have worked in a fairly satisfactory manner, but they have the disadvantage of not possessing the force of law, so that no punitory process clould be adopted to enforce their observance. Circumstances have, however, now arisen which render the further postponement of legislation absolutely impossible. The existing law vests in the Magistrate the exclusive power not only of making rules and regulating tolls, but also of appointing persons to take charge of public ferries. The Council is aware that it is intended to entrust the management of most ferries to Municipalities and District Boards, and it is proposed that this should be done, not by temporary expedients, but under formal legislative sanction. If permission is given to introduce the Bill, the opportunity will be taken to remove various defects in the law which have led to difficulty and delay, and sometimes even to failure, in the realization of the public revenues.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 14th March.

Saturday, the 14th March 1885.

KIDDERPORE DOCKS.

The Hon. Mr. Reynolds moved that the clauses of the Bill to enable the Commissioners of the Port of Calcutta to construct Docks be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. He said—Most of the alterations which the Select Committee have made are merely of a verbal or unimportant character. The alteration made in section 3 has been explained in the report of the Committee. It simply restricts the wording of the Bill to the meaning which it was all along intended to bear, and similarly the alterations which have been made in sections 4, 6 and 9 are practically little more than verbal alterations. I think there are only two sections to which I need draw the attention of the Council, namely sections 5 and 14. Section 5 originally declared that the loan should be repayable in such manner as the Government might direct. But the Select Committee had to take into consideration the fact that the estimates had all along been framed on the assumption that the loan would be raised at 4½ per cent., without including any provision for a sinking fund or for the re-payment of the principal. It is of course desirable that there should be provision for the repayment of the loans. If a loan were raised at 4½ per cent., and afterwards circumstances altered so that money could be raised with equal facility at 3½ or 4 per cent., it is undesirable that the Port should be saddled with the perpetual payment of interest at 4½ per cent. I should have been glad to have worded the Bill in such a manner as to give the Port Commissioners power to pay off any loan when they found it advisable and convenient to do so, but on communicating with the Government of India on the matter, we ascertained that the Government laid very decided stress on the necessity of reserving to the Government the power to declare that the loan should be repaid when such repayment might appear advisable and when the funds of the Port are in a position to bear the charge. The letter of the Government of India has, I think, been circulated to hon members as a paper connected with the Bill. If it has not been circulated, perhaps the Council will allow me to read a passage of it, which is as follows :—

"The Government of India is of opinion that the desired end will be most conveniently attained by power being given to the Government to call on the Commissioners at some future period to establish a sinking fund, from which any loan contracted for the purpose of the docks may be liquidated, and the Bill should be so framed that, without making payment actually compulsory, power will be left to Government to order repayment of any loan when, in the opinion of the Government of India, the Port is in a position to bear the cost of repayment.

The Governor-General in Council is anxious to leave the Port Commissioners every freedom of action consistent with provision for the possible eventual repayment of the loans that may be raised for the construction of the docks, and the Bill should provide for the formation of a sinking fund for each loan separately, so that the Port may not have to bear the burden at any one time of providing for the redemption of the total sum expended on the docks. His Excellency in Council is also willing that it should be specially provided that the power of directing the formation of a sinking fund shall not be exercised for at least ten years after each loan is raised, and that the period for the sinking fund shall not be less than 30 years The arrangement for possible repayment which is now proposed will no doubt bring the Commissioners under the control of Government to some extent in this matter, but the amount of control reserved for Government is not more than may fairly be claimed in consideration of the guarantee given by it in connection with the loan for the construction of the docks. The guarantee of the interest on the loan by Government will, on the other hand, act as a safeguard against any possible attempt, in connection with the sinking funds, to place a heavier burden on the Port than it could bear, since the result of doing so would be to throw on Government the burden of finding the current interest on the loans."

This being the decision of the Government of India, it would have been useless to frame the Bill in a shape in which it would not receive the Governor-General's assent; and I think also that the Council will recognize the equity of the remark that the control reserved by the Government of India is not unreasonable in consideration of the guarantee which the Government gives in connection with the loan. Accordingly, the wording of the section as it now stands provides that the Secretary of State, at any time not less than ten years after a loan has been raised under section 4, may declare by notification in the Calcutta Gazette that the principal of such loan shall be repaid on a date to be specified in the notification, not being less than thirty years from the first publication of the notification, and may require the Commissioners to make such arrangements as shall provide to his satisfaction for such repayment.

The only other section to which I need call attention is section 14, which has been introduced while the Bill was in Committee, and which gives to the Commissioners an indemnity for the action taken by them before the commencement of the Act. The Hon. the Advocate-General said (I think, perhaps, rather harshly), when we discussed this Bill on the last occasion, that the Port Commissioners were seeking to take advantage of their own wrong; but I would remind the hon. and learned member that a provision of this kind is not an unusual one, and I think it is not unreasonable, when the Port Commissioners have acted in good faith, and under the sanction of the Government, that acts done by them in the expectation of legislative sanction being given should be validated when the Act authorizing the construction of the docks is passed.

The Hon. the Acting Advocate-General said:—I only desire to explain that in the remark I made at the last meeting of the Council I made no reference to the indemnity clause of the Bill. My remark was directed solely to the endeavour to satisfy the Council that further time ought to have been granted before the Bill was proceeded with, not because the Port Commissioners in anticipation of these powers have acted on the footing of the Bill being passed, and had made themselves liable for a certain sum which the Government had advanced, with a claim for interest, which would follow as a matter of course if the Bill were rejected, but solely with reference to the position in which this Council is placed by having the Bill submitted to it in the way in which it has been done. I did not intend to suggest that the Port Commissioners had done anything wrong in the view which the Government took in regard to these docks. Still less do I suggest that they are not entitled to an indemnity, which would follow as a matter of course. I think my remark must have been somewhat misapprehended by my hon friend.

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The Hon. Mr. Reynolds said that no alteration in the clauses of the Bill having been put forward or suggested, I now move that the Bill be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to, and the Bill was then passed.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay moved that the further report of the Select Committee on the Bill to extend the system of Local Self-Government in Bengal be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill. He said:—I have the honour to move that the further report of the Select Committee on the Bill to extend the system of Local Self-Government be taken into consideration. In making this proposal to the Council it is fortunately unnecessary that I should enter upon any discussion of the principles of the measure. These principles were fully discussed two sessions ago, when I asked for leave to introduce the Bill They were again considered and discussed when I introduced the Bill and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee, and they were indirectly discussed on very many occasions last session in the course of our deliberations on the kindred measure for the administration of municipalities. I take it that this Council has formally and cordially accepted the policy of extending the system of Local Self-Government in these Provinces, and of placing that system, so far as may be consistent with full administrative efficiency, on a basis of popular representation. All, therefore, that I have now to do is to explain briefly to the Council the principal alterations which the Select Committee have made in the Bill which we presented with our preliminary report at the close of last session. I think, Sir, that, however much we at one time regretted that circumstances which I then detailed to the Council had necessitated a postponement of this measure, we must now see that this postponement has been accompanied by very great and substantial advantages. In the first place, we have received a most valuable mass of opinions from various sources, official and non-official, and these are opinions not formed on the spur of the moment or influenced by temporary excitement or enthusiasm, but formed calmly and deliberately, after full and dispassionate consideration. And with reference to these opinions, I may at once say that, though a very few have reported that the Bill goes too far, and a larger number, including most of the public associations consulted, have declared that it does not go far enough, still on the whole the Bill has been favourably received. To these criticisms, as I shall presently show, we have given the most careful attention, and we have to a great extent been able to act upon them. In the second place, we are no longer dealing wholly with an experiment; but in proceeding with this measure we are able to claim that we are proceeding in the light of recent and most instructive experience. The results of the municipal elections under the new Act have more than justified the anticipations which were expressed by the supporters of the measure in this Chamber. Several district officers have informed me that, even in outlying municipalities, the intelligence and interest displayed by the electors, and the order and public spirit which characterized the proceedings, were very remarkable and very gratifying. The experience of the elections has made it clear that the spread of education and of ideas, the development of communications, and the example of a wise and beneficent rule, have evoked aspirations for a share in the management of local affairs which may be made a most valuable auxiliary to the administration, and which, now that we are assured of their existence, it should be our pleasure, as it is certainly our duty, to gratify. Now, being brought face to face with these criticisms and these facts, and having before us the words of the Secretary of State, which I shall just now quote, it seemed to us that we could do something to enlarge the scope of the Bill, and to assimilate some of its provis ons to those of the Municipal Act. The Secretary of State, in his despatch of the 8th October 1883, after suggesting that the establishment of District Boards, presided over, at all events in the first instance, in most cases by the District Magistrate, as a substitute for the Central Board, which he had negatived, said :—" It appears to me that if the plan which I have sketched out were adopted, the Government would be able, with due regard to the public interest, to leave even more in the hands of the local bodies than it could do with safety when trusting only to the supervision of the Magistrate, acting apart and without the advantage of constant intercourse with the members of the District Committee." Now, Sir, the policy here indicated is that of securing efficient direction while enlarging the scope of local authority. In this direction the amended Bill contained the necessary provision in accordance with the Secretary of State's views, and the Lieutenant-Governor was given power to decide in every case whether he will appoint the Chairman of a District Board or call upon the Board to nominate one of its members as Chairman. This provision we have of course maintained. So much for direction. There was another point, however, which we had to consider before we could recommend a general extension of the franchise in rural tracts, and that was the question of funds. The mainstay of the funds available for local expenditure must of course be the road cess. Now, no one who has any knowledge of the subject will say that the present rate of road cess could be lowered in any district in Bengal for a generation to come without grave detriment to the public interests. No native gentleman of experience will say so, and no officer of Government will say so. I will go further and say that, having had the honour of holding the appointment of Financial Secretary to this Government for five years, I can appeal to the constant application for special grants from districts situated in every part of the province to show that the funds now available for the improvement and maintenance of communications are insufficient. But in any general system of election for local bodies in rural tracts the main body of the electors must be the payers of road cess—persons, that is, who are not only interested in the proper expenditure of the funds to which they contributed, but interested also in the reduction of the amount which they contribute. We had therefore no alternative to choose from. We had to decide whether we should give an unfettered power of altering the rate of road cess and maintain a system of appointment for the constitution of local bodies, or make the power of alteration subject to the Lieutenant-Governor's sanction, and admit all road cess-payers above a certain minimum in the most advanced districts to the privilege of electing representatives. We have decided to adopt the latter course, and I maintain that we have decided rightly. Having thus secured the two essentials of direction where necessary, and funds, we considered ourselves justified in drawing up a schedule of 17 districts in which the measure would, as regards, at any rate, the constitution of local bodies, be applied in its entirety ; that is to say, that a Local Board would be established in every sub-division of these districts, and that two-thirds of the members of every Local Board would be elected by qualified residents. I will not now go into the details of the qualifications we have laid down. Our idea has been to secure local knowledge and substantial local interest, and we think that a raiyat who pays Rs. 64 a year of rent has a substantial local interest. I am aware that my hon. friend Mr. MacDonnell, who during his distinguished career as a district officer always gave every encouragement to local bodies, is inclined to think that the rates we have proposed should be raised. For myself, I shall have no objection to consider such a proposal when we come to settle the terms of the section. Our object is to interest the most intelligent of the people in the administration of local affairs, and the Council will remember that the qualification to be adopted will be only maxima, which may, at any time, be lowered by the Lieutenant-Governor under the rules, as he has already lowered the rates fixed as maxima under the Municipal Act. The provisions, Sir, regarding the rate of road cess and the constitution of Local Boards, with the provision which I must mention in regard to the institution of District Boards, namely that Local Boards may appoint any person who, though not actually a member of their own body, is qualified to be a member, to represent them on the District Boards : these are the most important of the changes that we have made. Other changes we have made, all in the direction of improving the efficiency or the liberality of the measure; but as they are referred to in the report, and as they will presently be considered in detail, I need not now detain the Council by enumerating or discussing them. On the whole, I maintain that the Bill which we now submit for consideration is a sound and workable measure; that it contains ample safeguards for the protection of the public interests, and that at the same time it is calculated to excite a practical interest among the people in the management of their own affairs, to develop self-help and self-reliance, and to promote the establishment of voluntary and intelligent agencies to assist in an important branch of the administration.

The Hon. Kumar Boikanto Nath Dey said:—I have much pleasure in bearing my humble testimony to the great improvements which have been effected in the form and arrangement of the Bill by the Select Committee. The Bill is simpler and more handy now than what it was when it was first drafted, and in some respects more power has been conceded to the people that what was originally contemplated. I am sorry to add, however, that I consider the omission on the part of the Committee to recommend the republication of the Bill as unfortunate. The Bill has undergone very material alterations; the whole power of legislating on the details of the works proposed has been relegated from the Council to the Lieutenant-Governor, and principles have been enunciated which demand the most mature deliberation of the people as well as of the Government. But this opportunity has not been given, and I feel that the time has not arrived for passing the Bill at once. Lord Ripon in some of his orders strongly recommended that no opportunity should be lost to take the people into confidence to give them full opportunity, by early and extensive publication, to lay before Government their views, wishes, opinions, and sentiments; but this is not being done on the present occasion. No question of local politics so much enlisted the sympathy of the people in favour of Lord Ripon as the Self-Government scheme. Meetings were held in almost every part of Bengal to give expression to the sense of gratitude of the masses on the generous concessions proposed to be given, and it strikes me that in legislating on that subject the Council is not carrying out the generous and liberal principles of the nobleman who has just retired from the helm of the State. It is not my wish, nor would it be proper for me, to enter into the details of the Bill on the present occasion. I am of opinion that the Bill should be republished, and to bring that about I intend to withhold my assent to the motion now before the Council. A fortnight, I think, would suffice for the people of Bengal to submit their representations, and that time should be given, and I think it may be safely given without causing any inconvenience.

The Hon. Jai Prakash Lal said:—The people of Bengal and Behar have hailed with feelings of satisfaction and gratitude the proposal of the Government of India to extend to the people of the country the privilege of Local Self-Government. The noble resolution of the Government of India filled their hearts with the hope that the honourable aspirations of the people will at last find vent in the political institutions which have contributed so much to the advancement of civilization and good government in Europe. Your Honor took up the project with much sympathy, and the mofussil Municipal Act passed last year by this Council was the first instalment of the good-will Your Honor bears towards the people. The Bill now before the Council is the second instalment, and it is very desirable that it shall be passed with every despatch consistent with due care and deliberation. In almost all the other provinces of the Empire the Local Self-Government Act has already been brought into operation, and no time should be lost to effect improvements in the Provinces under Your Honor's administration; but I cannot help thinking that the measure is very important, and should receive the fullest consideration from this Council. The Bill seems to me to fall short of the object of the Government of India, as disclosed in its minutes of 30th September and 10th October 1881, and of the legitimate aspirations of the people. It is to a great extent permissive, and it is difficult to say what latitude Your Honor's Government will give to the operation of the principles enunciated by the Government of India. The title of the Bill is a misnomer. The Government hands over for administration to local bodies certain departments which it has created, with responsibilities and funds. The Local Boards' Act of the North-West Provinces seems to have a more suitable title. There is nothing in this Bill to give it a greater claim to so pretentious a name than many other measures that have been from time to time passed by the Legislature, each making an advance on that which preceded it. It appears to me that the system proposed by the Bill will not meet the general desire of the people. A large number of opinions elicited consider it too narrow, and it will excite expectations which may not be fulfilled. From the administrative point of view it is no improvement, as it scarcely relieves the executive of any portion of its labours. Then, Sir, there seems another difficulty in the way. The Rent Law that has just been passed will keep the people who could spare time for such services busily engaged for years to come in adjusting their altered condition, and the change of feeling which has come up of late makes me fear that, unless the measure is made very attractive, it may be viewed with indifference by the people, upon whose hearty co-operation the success of the measure greatly depends. However, it is desirable that the public should be allowed an opportunity to express their opinion on the subject. I would therefore propose that the consideration of the Bill be deferred for a fortnight, and the amended Bill be in the meantime published in the local official Gazette.

The Hon. Mr MacDonnell asked whether the republication of the measure did not mean its publication in the vernacular gazettes, and if in that case it meant the postponement of the Bill for another year—a step which he thought undesirable.

His Honor the President said:—I am quite prepared to meet the wishes of the hon. members for a short postponement, but I am unable to concur in the postponement of the Bill for an indefinite time.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay said:—As my hon. friends have not submitted any amendment, I shall ask that the motion in my name be put to the Council. I desire, however, first to offer a few observations upon the remarks which have fallen from my hon. friend Rai Jaiprakash Lal Bahadur. My hon. friend has objected to the title of the Bill as pretentious. Well, Sir, I am aware that the Commissioner of Patna, in his report upon the Bill, has suggested that the title of the North-West Act. which is the Local Boards' Act, would be more appropriate; but we have this difficulty in adopting such a suggestion, that in Bengal we have District Boards above our Local Boards. I may mention, moreover, that the system under which cognate matters are administered in England is controlled by a body denominated the Local Government Board. The word Local Government has really come to have almost a technical meaning. I am not in the least desirous, however, of giving too pretentious a name to our measure, and if, when we come to consider the section containing the title, the hon gentlemen will suggest a more appropriate name, I shall be happy to consider his suggestion The hon. gentleman has also said that the measure is too narrow, and that a large number of opinions have condemned it as such. Now, Sir, in the remarks which I had the honour of addressing to the Council a few minutes ago, I endeavoured to make it clear that we had carefully considered the many criticisms which have been received, and that we had made a good many alterations for the express purpose of meeting them. One would suppose from the hon. gentleman's remarks that we were dealing with the Bill which was the subject of these criticisms. If he will be good enough to read the Bill which is now before the Council, he will see that we are dealing with a very different matter. The hon. gentleman went on to say that people will now be so much engaged with matters arising out of the Rent Bill, and with looking after their own affairs, that they will not take much interest in this measure unless we make the position of members of Local Boards more attractive. I confess that I do not clearly apprehend what it is that the hon. gentleman wishes to propose. But this I can say, that if the hon. gentleman will make some definite suggestion for making the position of members of Local Boards so attractive that they will give up considering matters arising out of the Rent Bill and looking after their own affairs in order to become members of Local Boards, I am sure that his suggestion will be carefully consider by the Council. I now move that the proposal that the report be taken into consideration be put to the Council.

His Honor the President said:—Before putting the motion to the Council, I desire to express what I feel on the subject of postponement—a point which has been raised by two hon. native members. I should be the last person in the world to force forward unduly a measure of this magnitude and importance. It has received considerable attention, both in principle and detail. Indeed, one hon. member implied a charge against us that, while all the other Provincial Governments in India had their Local Self-Government Bills, the Government of Bengal was the only one which had not yet got one of its own. I wish to say that this Government is not in the same position as the Local Government of any of the other Provinces. We have to deal with a much larger area, a much larger population, and a much larger number of districts. Not only so, but we have to consider the circumstances of provinces like Orissa and Behar, with all their variety of interests and populations of all classes. Therefore, there is a reasonable ground that a measure like this should take a longer time to mature than a similar Bill for any of the other Provinces of India. But that is not the real cause of delay. The real cause of delay has arisen from the long correspondence which passed on the subject between the Local Government, the Government of India, and the Secretary of State, and it was not till a late period that any decision was come to which enabled us to take up the work and carry it forward for the purpose of legislation. If there is to be any further delay, it will arise from the issue which the two hon. members now raise; they consider that time should be given for a full consideration of the measure by further publicity. If that publication is to be of the character of a general reconsideration of the measure all over the country, it must be by the translation and publication of the Bill in the vernacular, which will take at least three or four months. If the translation and publication and the collecting of opinions on the republication of the Bill is to take three or four months, you may be certain that we shall either have to call a special meeting of the Council in July next, to which I myself shall not be averse, or to postpone the further consideration of the measure to the next cold season. If hon. members wish for either of these courses, I shall not oppose their wishes, but then they must accept the responsibility and not charge the Government with a delay which is of their own seeking. If, however, they will be satisfied with a shorter postponement for the receipt of outside opinion on the republication of the Bill which has already been made in the Calcutta Gazette, I am quite willing to consent to that arrangement by taking the report of the Select Committee into consideration this day fortnight, and I hope that by that time hon. members will be ready with their proposals in the form of amendments or otherwise. I am quite willing to ask the Council to let the consideration of this measure be postponed for a fortnight, with the understanding that we intend to pass the Bill on that occasion.

The motion was then put and agreed to, and the consideration of the clauses of the Bill was postponed for a fortnight.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 21st March.

Saturday, the 21st March 1885.

Present:

The Hon. H. J. Reynolds, Presiding.
The Hon. C. P. L. Macaulay.
Colonel the Hon S. T. Trevor.
The Hon. C. B. Garrett.
The Hon. Moulvy Abdul Jubbar.
The Hon. Kumar Boikantonath Dey.
The Hon. G. Irving.

REGULATION OF FERRIES.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay introduced the Bill to regulate Ferries in Bengal, and moved that it be read in Council. He said the object of this measure, as I explained to the Council when I moved for leave to introduce the Bill, is to fix and define the functions of the Government and of the local officers respectively in regard to the regulation and management of ferries, and to empower the Government at any time to make over the management of any public ferry to a local body. The Bill is mainly drafted on the lines of the North-Western Provinces Ferries Act, and some months ago, in anticipation of the meeting of the Council, it was circulated for the opinions of local officers. Those opinions have now been received and will be considered by the Select Committee. Meanwhile, I have not thought it necessary to make any alterations, other than alterations of mere arrangement, in the Bill as it has been circulated.

The motiom was put and agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon. Mr. Reynolds, Colonel the Hon. Mr. S. T. Trevor, the Hon. Mr. Garrett, the Hon. Kumar Boikantonath Dey, the Hon. Abdul Jubbar, and the mover the Hon. Mr. Macaulay, with instructions to report thereon in a week.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 28th March.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS FOR MAKING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE PORT OF CALCUTTA FOR THE YEAR 1883-84.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.—MARINE.

RESOLUTION.

Calcutta, the 19th March 1885.

READ—

The Administration Report of the Commissioners for making Improvements in the Port of Calcutta for 1883-84.

The Report opens with the statements of the liabilities and assets of the Port, which shew that the debt has been increased during the year 1883-84. The consolidated repayable debt was reduced from Rs. 50,67,967 to Rs. 49,68,787, but the whole of the loan of 20 lakhs, of which Rs. 12,25,000 had been borrowed during the previous year, has now been brought on to the accounts. The total debt therefore stood thus on 31st March 1884—

	Rs.
Consolidated repayable debt due to Government ...	49,68,787
Port Book Debt, not repayable	17,65,000
Due on debenture loan of 1881	10,00,000
Ditto ditto 1883	20,00,000
Total ...	97,33,787

2. The assets of the Trust, exclusive of the foreshore and Strand Bank lands, which were made over to the Commissioners by Government free of cost in 1870, amounted, at the end of the year, to Rs. 1,78,97,544, which represent the value of the jetties, wharves, landing-stages, tramways, dock, moorings, vessels, &c., belonging to the Trust, and Rs. 8,03,489 of investments under the heads of Reserves, Insurance, Depreciation and Sinking Funds. The increase in value over the previous year amounts nominally to Rs. 31,69,526; but of this, Rs. 10,30,940 represent the value of the light ships, survey vessels, buoys and other block of port approaches transferred by the Government without charge in 1882-83, but not shewn in the return for that year. The true increase, therefore, during the year has been Rs. 21,38,586, of which Rs. 20,60,369 represent the value of new works constructed during the year. The most noteworthy among these are the extension of the jetty embankment at a cost of Rs. 71,756, the erection of jetty warehouses (Rs. 2,94,712) and a warehouse at Juggernath Ghât (Rs. 61,622), the construction of the Howrah foreshore road (Rs. 4,42,586), the extension of moorings (Rs. 1,16,441) and of tramway lines and sidings (Rs. 1,08,268), and the purchase of the Calcutta Dock (Rs. 5,25,000). The Howrah foreshore road was completed during the year, and now presents a fine frontage extending for nearly two miles from Shalimar Point to Messrs. Burn and Company's premises. Wharves and cross roads communicating with the mills and yards have been constructed throughout. A project for constructing a boat wharf at Shalimar, and a line of railway connecting that point with the East Indian Railway has been approved, and the work is in hand.

3. In the Resolution recorded last year, the Lieutenant-Governor desired that a statement should be given of the total income and expenditure of the year on both Revenue and Capital accounts. This information is now furnished by the Commissioners, and shews under the Revenue account an income of Rs. 29,26,120, and an expenditure, inclusive of contributions to sinking funds, new works, and port dues, of Rs. 24,47,719. This left a balance of Rs. 4,78,401 at the close of the year. The Capital account shews an income of Rs. 22,83,975, and an expenditure of Rs. 20,60,369.

4. The income from the jetties during the year was Rs. 1,13,826 in excess of the former year, and stood at a higher sum than it ever reached before. The commissariat jetty shewed a falling off in income, but all the other sources of revenue in this Department shewed an improvement. As the income during the last two years has been obtained from the same schedule of rates, the excess during the year under review is an exact measure of the increased jetty work. Working expenses have of course also increased, but the jetty appliances in the way of cranes have been continuously employed, and by the provision of three working engines are now always available for use.

5. The receipts from the Inland Vessels' Wharves were Rs. 3,55,467 during the year, against Rs. 4,07,133 in the previous year, showing a decrease of Rs. 51,666, chiefly due to the loss of tolls, which had been temporarily and exceptionally augmented during the previous year by a large number of boats (that had been shut out by the closure of the Chitpur lock) using the wharves: so that on the re-opening of the lock in 1883 the tolls fell off. Deficiency in the jute crop and a falling off in the grain traffic also contributed to the decrease. The expenditure amounted to Rs. 1,99,279, which is very nearly the same as in the previous year. There was therefore a net revenue of Rs. 1,56,188 from this property.

6. The receipts from Strand Bank lands amounted to Rs. 1,67,201, or Rs. 20,112 more than in the previous year, and the expenditure to Rs. 1,24,615, which is practically the same as before. The large gain in the receipts arises from the increased rents received from reclaimed lands on the Howrah foreshore and from the Sibpur chur lands. The connexion which is being made between the riverside road and the railway premises, and the extension of the railway line to Shalimar, will add to the value of this property. The lands on the Calcutta side are all leased out, and yield a steady income, and there, too, it will be increased by the letting out of fresh premises which the Commissioners will have at their disposal this year.

7. In the Harbour Master's Department the receipts fell from Rs. 5,97,873 in 1882-83 to Rs. 5,66,069 during the year under review, the decrease of Rs. 31,804 being due to fluctuations in the various items, none of which call for much notice. The fees for licensing cargo and passenger boats fell off somewhat in consequence of a revision in the tariff, the object being to make the charges cover the cost of establishment besides a sum of Rs. 12,000 for the River Police. The expenditure was Rs. 4,96,200, which is slightly more than before, and calls for no remark.

8. The following statement shews the number of sea-going vessels piloted into and out of port during the past three years. Vessels not employing pilots are excluded :—

	Number.			Gross tonnage.			Net tonnage.
	Steamers.	Sailing vessels.	Total.	Steamers.	Sailing vessels.	Total.	Steamers.	Sailing vessels.	Total.

Other statements classifying vessels according to their draft are furnished, which appear to shew that the number of steamers of large size and deep draft is still increasing, while there has been no corresponding variation in the size of sailing vessels. Among steamers, 226 came from England, vid the Suez Canal, with an average tonnage of 2,955.

9. Thirteen casualties happened within the Port to vessels in the charge of Harbour Masters, the number being the highest yet reached. It is true that none of the casualties were serious, and that the Harbour Masters in charge were in the majority of instances, exonerated from blame. Still the frequency of the accidents is not satisfactory, and calls for increased attention on the part of the Harbour Master's Department.

10. Ten fires occurred in the port, eight of which were on board ships or boats. In two instances the vessels were destroyed; in others the damage does not seem to have been serious. The most serious fire occurred on board the Aurora, which, with its cargo of kerosine-oil, was completely destroyed.

The burning of this vessel threatened at one time a very serious danger to the shipping in the port, but the danger was averted by the promptitude and energy of Mr. Duff Bruce and the officers of his department Steps have since been taken to remove the kerosine depôt further down the river.

11. The moorings were overhauled at the usual working season, and on account of the increased length of the vessels visiting the port, steps were taken to enlarge those between Fort Point and Hastings. The alterations have been carried out between Fort Point and Prinsep's Ghât, 19 short moorings having been replaced by 15 long ones, and the remainder have been taken in hand during the current year. All the new moorings have been laid with 5-ton anchors in place of screws, the Committee appointed to report on the question having decided in favour of anchors. Fifteen additional moorings were laid down, two off the railway goods sheds, one off Prinsep's Ghât, six off Hastings, four off Kidderpore, and two off the Port Commissioners' docks. The dredger was at work for a shorter time, and performed less work than in any of the last ten years. The Lieutenant-Governor would be glad to know whether this fact (which is unexplained in the report) is in any way attributable to the Howrah foreshore reclamations. By narrowing the channel, these works may have increased the scour within the port, and thus done the dredger's work. If this be so, the effect on the reaches of the river below the port remains still to be seen.

12. During the year the Engineer-Surveyor of the Port surveyed 208 vessels under Bengal Acts V of 1862 and I of 1868, and 163 vessels under the Emigration Act (VII of 1871), the Native Passenger Act (VIII of 1876), and other Acts. In seven cases the survey was for free-board under the provisions of section 8 of Act VII of 1880, and in two cases the vessels were detained and ordered to discharge a portion of their cargo. The action of the Commissioners in these cases was contested in representations made to the Government and the Board of Trade, but enquiry justified it. The establishment employed for the survey and licensing of cargo and passenger boats was amalgamated with that under the Engineer-Surveyor, so that the latter is now responsible for surveys of every kind. The number of cargo and passenger boats surveyed and licensed during the year, as compared with the previous year, was as follows:—

Passenger boats	2,103	2,148
Manjhis licensed	8,771	9,431

13. The working of the Tramway brought in a net income of Rs. 39,994. The receipts and expenditure were both somewhat less than in the previous year, the decrease in the income being due to the failure in the jute crop.

14. The income on account of the Port Approaches was Rs. 3,71,805 against Rs. 4,23,569 in 1882-83, the decrease being caused by the reduction of the port dues from 3 annas to 1 anna per ton. The expenditure was considerably under the figure for the preceding year owing to diminished expenditure in repairs and working expenses. The Resolute was employed throughout the year as despatch vessel, lightship tender, and survey vessel, besides being used in replacing lost buoys and in other conservancy duties.

The various channels and roads have either remained stationary, or have, in a few instances, slightly improved, but a spit of sand has formed near the eastern dredge buoy, which has necessitated the laying of a buoy and requires careful watching.

15. The survey of the Mutlah was undertaken during the year, and proved to be an arduous task, especially in the matter of triangulation. The survey was, however, completed from Canning to lat. 21·21N. Lieutenant Petley found the ground in the river flat, and the soundings so regular, that until the steep banks are suddenly reached, the lead is no guide. Still he is of opinion that, with the channels properly lighted and buoyed, masters of ships, with ordinary care, might, in fairly clear weather, safely take their vessels abreast the Cattalee without the aid of a pilot.

The light-houses at False Point, Saugor, and the other stations were inspected and found to be in good order. The light vessels and other port approaches are also reported to have been in a satisfactory condition.

16. The most important subject considered by the Commissioners during the year was the question of providing accommodation for the shipping of the port in the form of wet docks. A joint Committee of the Port Commissioners and the Bengal Chamber of Commerce was appointed to consider the question, the result being a full and unanimous report recommending the construction of wet docks at Kidderpore. This recommendation was approved by the Governments of Bengal and India, and in March last the Secretary of State accorded his general sanction to the scheme (subject to certain modifications in the designs), which has accordingly been commenced.

17. While thus providing for relief to the future expanded trade of the port, the Committee also directed attention to its immediate requirements by recommending the construction of an export wharf on the Howrah foreshore, and the construction of a line of railway between Shalimar and the East Indian Railway goods terminus. This recommendation was sanctioned by Government, and the works are now reported to be near completion.

18. The question of providing special accommodation for the petroleum trade continued to engage attention during the year; and its importance was accentuated by the burning of the Aurora already alluded to. After consideration, the claims of Diamond Harbour and Canning as a suitable site for a petroleum wharf were rejected, and, on the suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce, Budge-Budge was finally fixed upon. Arrangements are now in hand to establish the petroleum depôt at Budge-Budge.

19. A Committee sat during the year to consider the question of improving the existing system of lighting the Sandheads and channels of the river leading into Saugor. As the result of their deliberations, an additional light-vessel has been placed at the Long Sand; and a new light of sufficient power to be of service to vessels coming up the Bay will probably be placed on Shortt's Island. The False Point, Ridge, Eastern Channel and Mutlah stations will be furnished with improved lights, and arrangements were made to hold one new light-vessel as a reserve in case of accidents. The destruction of the Foam by fire since the close of the year indicates the necessity of such a reserve. The existing charts of the Sandheads have been found to be to some extent incorrect, and accordingly a re-survey will be undertaken during next working season by the Marine Survey Department. Measures have also been taken to abate the inconvenience caused to vessels using the Hooghly by fishermen fastening their nets in the stream, and to secure free room for vessels to turn in the stream at Garden Reach; and the rules regulating passenger traffic in boats within port limits were also expanded, so as to suit the requirements of Messrs. Hoare, Miller and Company's new and useful line of passenger steamers plying in the Hooghly.

20. The construction of the new works sanctioned by the Government brought under consideration the question of the best method of raising funds. The Commissioners were in favour of raising sterling loans in the English market, but this view was not approved by the Secretary of State. The proposal accordingly was abandoned, and the provision of funds on debenture loans is now in abeyance, pending the issue of the legislation which has been undertaken in connexion with raising money for the wet docks at Kidderpore. The question of debenture loans then became merged in the general one of raising the necessary funds for the construction of the new docks, and has remained in abeyance, pending the promulgation of the Act newly introduced into the Legislative Council to deal with the matter.

21. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad again to be in a position to tender his thanks to the Commissioners for their efficient administration of the Port during the year; and he also desires to specially recognize the valuable services of the Vice-Chairman, Mr. Duff Bruce. Owing to bad harvests the year has not been one of great commercial prosperity, but nothing has been wanting on the Commissioners' part to advance the interests committed to their charge.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. P. MACDONNELL,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE OPIUM DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1883-84.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—MIS. REVENUE.

RESOLUTION.

Calcutta, the 21st March 1885.

READ—

A letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, No. 83B, dated 2nd February 1885, submitting the reports of the Opium Agents of Behar and Benares for the year 1883-84.

The report of the Commission appointed to inquire into the working of the Opium Department was published in 1883. It deals exhaustively with the subject and raises many questions of policy and practice. As these questions have not yet been fully decided, the Lieutenant-Governor will defer noticing them in connection with the present report.

2. The year under review promising at first unfavourably, turned out to be an exceedingly favourable one, which more than made up for the serious and exceptional deficiences of the previous year. The monsoon terminated early, and the ryots, discouraged by the blight of the preceding year, were unwilling to run the risk of an extensive cultivation of poppy. This unwillingness, however, gave way after a time, and ultimately the area cultivated, though less than in the previous year, was not unsatisfactory in either Agency. The general success of the year's operations was more due to irrigation than to natural rainfall. The rainfall, indeed, was deficient; and from the large recourse which was had to irrigation, as well as from the excellent results produced thereby, one of the Agents has expressed an opinion that, where water for irrigation is available, a dry season is more favourable to the poppy than a rainy one. So long as there is sufficient water in the wells to get on with, the dryness of the season is said to increase the vigour of the plant, the yield of juice, and also the consistence of the drug. Under these favourable conditions, and owing, also, to a singular immunity from hail, blight and other calamities, the average produce per bigha rose in Behar to 5 seers 15½ chittacks and in Benares to 6 seers 7½ chittacks. It was least in those districts where irrigation has not yet been generally adopted. Owing to the dryness of the atmosphere the poppy flower leaves were unusually good, and the supply of leaves and trash was abundant.

3. The quantity of land engaged for, the quantity sown, the net quantity actually cultivated, and the outturn in each Agency in the last five years are compared in the following statement:—

Season.	Area engaged for.	Land sown for cultivation.	Net cultivation.	Produce at 70° consistence.

In Behar the area engaged for and sown was less than in the year previous. This was due partly to the exclusion of poor land, for which the cultivators occasionally take advances without much intention of sowing poppy. It was also due partly to the discouragement produced by the blight and drought of the previous year. The net cultivation was slightly larger than before, though still below the average. In both Agencies, however, the yield was exceptionally abundant, the combined produce amounting to 1,26,598 maunds. Of the total cultivation in Behar, 2,10,685 bighas lay to the south and 1,88,833 bighas north of the Ganges: the whole of the South Ganges area being irrigated, while of the area north of the river 79,406 bighas are unirrigated. It is noteworthy that while the total area under cultivation remained much the same as in the previous year, the portion south of the Ganges has increased, and that on the north diminished. It is also worth mention that the proportion of the area cultivated with poppy north of the river, in which recourse was had to irrigation during the year under review, was much greater than before; and this result seems to indicate that the benefits of irrigation are being gradually appreciated, and the system more largely followed by the people. The Agent states that if wells were dug in large numbers in the districts north of the Ganges, a large increase in cultivation might be obtained. With better security in the ryot's tenure, one of the greatest checks to well-sinking, as to agricultural improvement generally, will be removed.

4. The total quantity of produce available for manufacture in the Behar Agency comprised the season's outturn, shown in paragraph 3, and 4,707 maunds at a consistency of 75° transferred from the Benares Agency. From this quantity, 32,850 chests of provision opium were manufactured at a consistency of 75° and 76,° while 1,215 chests of excise opium were also prepared. In the Benares Agency 33,143 chests of provision opium were made at 70,° 72,° and 74° consistence, and 1,154⅔ chests of excise opium (of which 730 chests were made from the Malwa drug). Unusually wet weather in July, August and September unfortunately caused much damage to the cakes in the overcrowded state of the godowns, 2,528 cakes being more or less spoilt.

5. The quantity of opium sent in as good, but condemned at the Patna Factory, was about 5⅓ maunds against something over 1½ maunds in the previous season: it came chiefly from Nepal. Two hundred maunds were sent in as "suspected," of which 19 maunds 22 seers were confiscated, while fines were imposed in regard to the remainder. In the Benares Agency the quantity of impure produce that escaped detection by the Sub-Deputy Opium Agents was 330 maunds 17 seers against 712 maunds 34 seers in the previous year; and of this 2 maunds 39 seers were confiscated, and mulcts and fines imposed on the remainder. Ninety-two maunds 37 seers were sent in as adulterated, and the mulcts and fines were imposed on 10 maunds 32 seers as against 68 maunds 35 seers and 15 maunds 37 seers respectively in 1882-83. These results the Board properly consider satisfactory, regard being had to the large outturn of the season.

6. The year opened in the Behar Agency with outstanding balances amounting to Rs. 2,40,474, which were reduced during the year to Rs. 8,205. No efforts were made to collect while the prospects of the year appeared gloomy; but when a bumper crop appeared certain, the collections were successfully prosecuted. In Benares the outstanding balances of previous years were reduced to Rs. 42,318, of which Rs. 16,623 are reported to be irrecoverable. The year's advances, amounting to Rs. 75,040, were recovered, with the exception of Rs. 920. These results seem, as far as they go, to justify the policy, adopted by this Government and approved by the Government of India, in the matter of the realization of outstanding balances. That policy proceeds on the principle that while the utmost leniency should be shown in all deserving cases, and while in exceptional cases remissions should be made, a policy of universal remission of balances is to be deprecated as calculated to stimulate careless cultivation and to render fraudulent practices more common.

7. The system of rewards to informers was brought under notice last year, and the attention of the local officers was drawn to the remarks of the Behar Agent that the system had raised up a class of professional informers who were dreaded only by ignorant cultivators, and not by the real smugglers. In the report now under review, Mr. Kemble reports that cases based on informers' statements were most numerous in Hazaribagh, and he notices the fact that in that district a prominent informer was herself convicted of smuggling opium. Mr. Kemble also brings to notice that in another district the police actually employed a paid staff of informers. The Lieutenant-Governor requests the Board to inform him of the name of the District Superintendent under whom such a practice could prevail, and he would be also glad that inquiries should be instituted in order to throw further light on the reasons why prosecutions were so frequent in Hazaribagh.

8. In the Benares Agency, Mr. Rivett-Carnac, while recognizing the ill-effects of large rewards, still thinks that strong inducements to furnish information in some districts of his charge are necessary. The danger is that large rewards stimulate the adoption of informing as a trade, and that, as far as prevention of smuggling is concerned, but little good results. This point was well brought out in the Report of the Opium Commission, and it is one which should never be lost sight of. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to recognize that the measures tentatively adopted to furnish information and suppress illicit traffic have been, to some extent, successful; but it is a remarkable fact, of which no explanation has been given, that, however great the variations in the number of cases and in the amounts realized as fines and disbursed as rewards, the quantity of contraband opium seized remains practically the same from year to year.

9. The Lieutenant-Governor, when considering last year the effect of well irrigation on poppy cultivation, stated that well-sinking should be extended as far as possible in the districts north of the Ganges. The dryness of the season under review seems to have furthered the object Sir Rivers Thompson had then in view, for it had the effect of impressing the ryots with a sense of the advantages of well-irrigation. The report shows that very considerable progress has been made in that direction. In the Behar Agency the advances for the construction and repair of wells amounted to Rs. 1,16,804 against Rs. 39,019 in the year 1882-83; and in Benares to Rs. 37,548 against Rs. 21,616. The advances, as a rule, are applied to the purpose for which they are given, and are punctually repaid. From the Agent's report, the Lieutenant-Governor gathers that in some localities officers were of the opinion that ryots should be prevented from using the water of wells constructed from Government advances for any purpose other than for poppy cultivation. This error Mr. Kemble has very properly corrected. It is of course to be understood that these advances are to be made only to poppy cultivators, but when the Opium Department is satisfied that the money is required for the bonâ fide purpose of constructing a well, from which poppy is to be irrigated, no interference should be exercised with the ryot's discretion in using the water as he pleases. The system of leading well-water for poppy irrigation by shoots across the canal ducts has been developed during the year, and has given general satisfaction, and further extensions of the system have been sanctioned by the Government in the Patna Sub-Agency. A new plan is reported by the Agent of damming hill streams and distributing the water by means of small channels. The Lieutenant-Governor will await the further report promised by the Agent on this question. It is not to be forgotten that the water of these hill streams either carries down much sand in suspension, or, being in North Behar snow-fed, chills the poppy plants with its low temperature. The practice therefore is one which should not be extensively employed until its utility is placed beyond all doubt.

10. The quantity of pussewah delivered by the cultivators was 146 maunds against 116 in the previous year in the Behar Agency, and 20 maunds against 46 in the Benares Agency. The smallness of the quantity is attributed by both Agents to the dryness of the season, and not to inadequacy in the price paid. The Agents urge that the price for pussewah should be maintained at its present rate of Rs. 3-8 per seer, and the Lieutenant-Governor agrees in this view at all events for the present. Mr. Kemble is of opinion that if district officers, by a stricter classification, excluded from the category of pure opium any containing pussewah, the proportion of the latter would be largely increased. No doubt it would, but the Lieutenant-Governor having regard to climatic and soil peculiarities, questions whether cultivators can always separate the pussewah from the pure drug. There is certainly ground for believing that much pussewah is clandestinely disposed of, and it is to the prevention of the illegal sale of the portion which has been separated that the rules on the point are directed.

11. In connection with the arrest by the police of some Nepalese cultivators for carrying opium without a license, the Lieutenant-Governor last year desired to know what measures were taken to prevent the recurrence of such mistakes. The Behar Agent now reports that the cultivators were advised to travel by certain frequented routes along which he had posted his departmental officers to prevent interference by the police, and that the arrangement has answered well. The quantity of opium brought from Nepal fell off from 628 maunds in 1882-83 to 542 maunds in the year under review.

12. The experiment of sowing indigo on poppy lands was noticed in the Resolution last year, and the report promised by the Patna Agent has now been submitted. The custom of sowing the two crops has prevailed for some time in parts of Sarun, Tirhoot, Chumparun and Chupra. Well-to-do and independent ryots, Mr. Kemble states, might, and do with advantage to themselves, grow both crops. But they have to work hard to prepare their land for indigo after the poppy has been gathered, and they therefore seldom or never get a second cutting from their indigo. When, moreover, the ryots grow indigo directly under advances from the factory, complications are likely to arise if they attempt to cultivate both crops. On the whole question Mr. Kemble's opinion, formed after consultation with his officers and with indigo-planters, is expressed in the following passage from his report :—

"When the ryot finds it to his advantage to grow both crops he will do so, and for this purpose he needs no encouragement from us. We should do nothing to discourage him from growing indigo for any factory he likes. On the other hand, it is not to our advantage, nor are we called upon to help or encourage him to take advances from, or grow indigo for, a factory. We cannot and need not make any experiments in growing the two crops; our difficulties and business are not agricultural, but commercial; my opinion is that we should leave agriculture and experiments connected with it to our cultivators; our energies should be devoted to facilitating settlements, to making prompt weighments, and speedy adjustment of accounts."

In this opinion the Board agree, but Sir Rivers Thompson is doubtful of the propriety of drawing any such sharp line of definition in regard to the functions of the officers of the Opium Department. On the contrary, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that, by inspection and advice, the officers of the Opium Department may greatly advance the agricultural interests of the people and of the Department. And this may be done without any objectionable interference with that freedom of action which opium assamis may justly claim. If it is found that indigo and opium can be grown with advantage to the people, and without loss to Government, on the same field, the people should, by all means, be allowed to grow both crops. But if experience prove that the two crops cannot be grown, the officers of the Opium Department are bound to safeguard the interests of the Department if they are first in the field.

13. On the subject of the relations between zemindars and the Opium Department, the Patna Agent has the following remarks :—

"During the year 76 beegahs 17 cottahs of land (Behar measurement), cultivated by 114 ryots, have been given up in consequence of the zemindar, demanding an enhanced, and what I consider an exorbitant, rent for poppy land. A document was presented for registration at Seetamurhi, purporting to be an agreement on the part of the ryots of certain villages to pay when called upon enhanced rents for their land. The demand varied not according to the quality of the land, but according to the crop grown: that for poppy land was Rs. 6 per beegah instead of Rs. 3-12 to Rs. 4-10 hitherto paid. When the ryots were summoned before the registering officer, they refused to admit the execution of this document, and they have to the extent above noted given up the cultivation of poppy rather than run the risk of being called on to pay such a heavy rent. Some petitions were presented to me, asking me to help them in resisting the demand. I consider that no landlord has a right to make the growing of poppy or any other crop a ground for enhancing rent, and I also consider that the zemindar was acting illegally in demanding an enhancement without having a notice served through the courts in accordance with the law. I therefore wrote to the manager, and asked him to forego the claim; he replied that a small increase was asked on poppy lands, that no exaction or illegality had been committed, and that the settlement was voluntarily and amicably made by those who entered into it. I then pointed out my views, and added that the fact of the ryots petitioning me, and refusing to register the agreement, showed that the settlement on their part was not voluntary or amicable, and I stated that the case was just such a one as would justify my interference under section 18 of Act XIII of 1857. To this letter I have received no reply, but I saw the petitioners and informed them of what I had done, and promised my help to any one who, having a right of occupancy, was called on to pay an enhanced rent on the ground of his taking an advance from Government and growing poppy. The question is an important one, as landlords all over Behar demand higher rates for poppy lands, and if these be not paid, prevent the cultivation and the digging of wells, &c., I am in correspondence with the law officer to know how the powers conferred on an Opium Agent by Act XIII of 1857 are affected by the rent laws of 1869.

The practice of demanding exceptionally large enhancements of rent, if a ryot be enterprising enough to grow a specially valuable crop, is mischievous to the agricultural prosperity of the country. It is, however, a practice which finds no recognition in the Bengal Tenancy Act; and the officers of the Opium Department should therefore, on this as on other points connected with the opium industry, let no fitting opportunity pass without explaining to the people the provisions of the new law, which bear upon the working of the Opium Department.

14. The saw-mill has worked satisfactorily, and has exceeded the work of former years. A supply of new machinery which will increase its efficiency is now on its way out from England. The new boiler and engine-rooms have been built, the foundations for the engines are in course of being laid, and other additions to the buildings have been completed. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction the improvements that have been made in the apparatus for cleaning trash, and in the trays in which the drug required for excise opium is inspissated. The supply of mango-wood chests by contractors fell a little short of the demand, greater care having been taken in their selection; but with the aid of the new saw frames and machinery, it is expected that any shortcomings on the part of the contractors will be made good. The supply of mango wood is reported to be decreasing near Patna, but it is stated that large quantities are available in Durbhunga, Monghyr, Bhagulpore and the districts further east. This information would be more satisfactory if accompanied with the assurance that, when mango trees are cut down, young ones are as a rule planted. It is of the greatest importance not only in the future interest of the Opium Department, but also of the Province, that the country should not be denuded of timber without provision being made for future requirements, and this is a matter in which the officers of the Opium Department, as well as of the regular executive staff, can by their advice influence the people for their good. In promoting in this way the planting of food-bearing trees, they will, if they only go the right way to work, meet with the ready sympathy of the people.

15. The substitution of the Malwa for the Bengal drug in the manufacture of excise opium was continued during the year under review, but the magnitude of the crop enabled the Government to reduce its purchases of the Malwa drug, and only 2,268 maunds at 90° consistence were procured. It is stated that the improvement in the quality of the Malwa opium supplied to the district officers, noticed in the last report, has been carried further during the year, the oil has been eliminated, and the weight of the cakes readjusted. These are points, however, on which further inquiry from the executive department of the various Governments interested is desirable, and on this point a communication has already been addressed to the Government of India. The purchase of Malwa opium for the current season has been fixed at 2,500 maunds at 90° consistence, free from oil, and it will be devoted to supply the requirements of Oudh and the North-Western and Central Provinces.

16. The Lieutenant-Governor thanks the Board for their efficient administration of the Opium Department, and the Agents for the work done during the year. Sir Rivers Thompson observes with pleasure the commendations bestowed on the Principal Assistants, and on Messrs. Tytler, Hastings and Field, Sub-Deputy Agents.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. P. MacDONNELL,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMISSION FOR THE REVISION OF MINISTERIAL ESTABLISHMENTS.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—FINANCE.

Calcutta, the 21st March 1885.

RESOLUTION.

THE attention of the Lieutenant-Governor has for a long time been directed to the desirability of taking some measures to reorganize the system of correspondence, reports and returns between the various offices under this Government. The complaints of the pressure of clerical work, and of the waste of time and power entailed on responsible officers by the necessity of referring backwards and forwards through several channels many petty details of administration, and of preparing formal reports and returns on a multiplicity of subjects of very different degrees of importance, are every day becoming more and more common. It is not too much to say that no Commissioner of a division and no Collector of a heavy district in Bengal is at present able to devote to any one of the larger questions connected with his charge the care and attention which it deserves and which a due regard for the interests of Government and his own reputation would induce him to bestow upon it. The growth of correspondence, while it thus weakens the directing power of superior officers, leads at the same time to a constant demand for increase of ministerial establishments. These demands have very often to be conceded in the form of temporary additional establishments to clear off arrears; and serious questions, both administrative and financial, must inevitably present themselves, if some means cannot be devised for dispensing with a great deal of what is now necessarily infructuous labour.

2. Besides the question of the strength and occupation of ministerial establishments, the question of salaries has also to be considered. This question was considered in 1866 and 1867 by a Committee, of which Mr. V. A. Schalch was President, and a new scale of salaries was brought into effect in 1868. Since that time, although there have been numerous alterations and improvements of a more or less restricted character, and although the pay of very many individual officers has been increased, there has been no general or systematic revision of salaries. Meanwhile the rise in prices and in the cost of living, which was anticipated by Mr. Strachey in 1865, has continued at constantly accelerating speed, and for some time past signs have been apparent that the effects of the reforms introduced in 1868 have been exhausted, and that a further advance must be made if the ministerial service is to be maintained in a condition of efficiency. Applications are constantly received by the Lieutenant-Governor from all classes of ministerial officers praying for an increase of emoluments; and these are in the majority of cases based on the ground that their salaries were fixed many years ago when the cost of living was much less than it is now, and that they are inadequate under the altered circumstances of the present day. It is impossible to deny that this contention is in a great measure sound; and in a large number of individual instances the Government has had no alternative but to sanction an increase. But the Lieutenant-Governor feels that these concessions are too frequently given, less to those whose claims are the strongest than to those who can make their voices most effectively heard. In the case of the superior branches of the public service, the necessity of granting some increase of emoluments, and of making that increase general and not individual in its distribution, has been fully recognized and acted upon. The salaries of the Subordinate Executive and Judicial Services have been raised. The pay and position of the Sub-Deputy Collectors have similarly been improved; and within the last three years the Opium Department has been reorganized with the result of a material increase of pay and enhanced promotion. In the case of those classes of officers, therefore, who come immediately above ministerial officers in the official scale, Government has admitted an increase of emoluments to be necessary. These officers are (in the case of natives of this country) drawn from much the same social classes as their immediate superiors, the differences between them being due to accidents of education, wealth, and personal ability, rather than to accidents of birth. The social habits of both classes are, so far as the smaller means of the poorer members admit, similar; and causes which tend to increase the cost of living for the one class will operate with at least equal force for the other. These facts, coupled with the numerous representations—from treasury accountants, from district and divisional sheristadars, and many others—which have with increasing frequency been pressed upon the Lieutenant-Governor, raise a strong presumption that the time has come for a general enquiry into, and revision of, the rates of pay drawn by the ministerial officers of Government in this Province.

3. The Lieutenant-Governor has reason to believe that the needful reforms on all these points could probably be effected without any increase in cost. The success of the contract system of contingent expenditure and other circumstances suggest the possibility of substantially reducing the amount of clerical labour by some method of decentralization under which the responsibility of local officers could be enlarged, while efficient control could be assured by substituting frequent and searching inspections for the multitude of petty reports, returns and applications through which it is now supposed to be exercised. At the same time, the money required for the purpose of increasing salaries could be found partly by revisions of English establishments, but mainly by reductions in the vernacular serishtas. In the offices of Commissioners and Collectors there now subsist, side by side, two establishments, which too often regard themselves as separate offices; and not only is money wasted, but delays are caused and various forms of inefficiency promoted, by adherence to an antiquated and cumbrous machinery which the most intelligent officers find it impossible to work with reasonable despatch. The Lieutenant-Governor has the assurance of officers of large experience, both European and native, that a revision of the vernacular establishments would provide all the funds necessary to place the English ministerial establishments on a satisfactory footing. Without committing himself to an absolute acceptance of the accuracy of this view, Sir Rivers Thompson considers that it affords good ground for the institution of a comprehensive enquiry.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor for the present only proposes a review of the system of correspondence and of administrative control in executive offices under this Government. Whether a similar enquiry could be profitably extended to judicial offices can be considered hereafter. He now, with the sanction of the Government of India, appoints a Commission, consisting of an officer of the standing of a Commissioner as President, and a Collector and Native Deputy Collector as members, to consider the questions referred to above. The following gentlemen will form the Commission :—

Mr. John Beames, C.S. ...	...	President.
,, W. H. Grimley, C.S.	...	Members.
Baboo Doorgagutty Banerjee	...

It is hoped that the Commission will be able to submit their report within twelve months.

CONSTRUCTION OF DOCKS AT KIDDERPORE.

The following Resolution is published for general information.

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—SANITATION.

Dated Calcutta, the 23rd March 1885.

RESOLUTION.

IT has come to the notice of the Lieutenant-Governor that there have been outbreaks of sickness among the labourers employed on this work, and, though the Port Commissioners have made certain arrangements for protecting the health of their coolies, apprehensions have been expressed that, in the course of the excavations and during the construction of the docks, influences injurious to the public health may be brought into operation. Sir Rivers Thompson has consulted the Surgeon-General, and he has ascertained that Dr. Simpson is very strongly of opinion that a Committee of sanitary experts should be appointed to consider the probable effects of the new docks upon the health of the people of the neighbourhood, and of the population of Calcutta and the Suburbs generally. The Lieutenant-Governor has decided to adopt this proposal. Having regard, however, to the stage at which the proceedings have arrived, he is disposed to think that a Committee of investigation can most usefully direct its enquiries to a consideration of the sanitary precautions to be taken during the construction of the docks, though the members will be at liberty to make any suggestions regarding the details of the project which may, in their opinion, tend to lessen or remove any future danger to the public health from the execution of the work. An Engineer Officer will be appointed to the Committee, in order that the members may have every facility for the elucidation of any technical questions which may arise. It is desirable that they should take the evidence of as many persons of special knowledge in such matters as may present themselves for examination. The Committee will be constituted as follows:—

Dr. Coates, formerly Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, President.
Dr. Coull Mackenzie, formerly Health Officer of the Port.
Mr. R. B. Buckley, C.E.
Dr. O'Brien, Health Officer to the Calcutta Corporation.

The Committee will be requested to furnish their report within one month from this date.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESULT OF THE STATUTORY CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION OF 1884.

No. 700A, dated Calcutta, the 11th February 1885.

From—J. WARE EDGAR, Esq., C.S.I., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial, Political and Appointment Departments,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

IN continuation of my letter No. 2791J—D, dated the 28th September 1884, with which was submitted for the information of the Government of India a copy of the Resolution of this Government, dated the 25th September, laying down rules for the examination of such candidates for appointment to the Statutory Civil Service as had been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor, I am now directed to report the result of the examination, and to submit the names of the first six candidates in order of merit, with the remarks of the Lieutenant-Governor.

2. The examination was held on the 15th, 16th, 17th, and 18th December last. Thirty candidates had been permitted to appear, out of whom only 18 actually went through the examination. The work of the first day was an English Essay on one out of three subjects fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor. The number of marks assigned was four hundred. On the second and third days papers were set in Literature, in History and Mental Philosophy, in Mathematics and in Physical Science, to each of which one hundred marks were assigned. The subjects of the fourth day's examination were the Penal and Criminal Procedure Codes and Revenue Law, for which a total of four hundred marks were allowed. A statement appended to this letter shows the marks obtained by each candidate, but it is only necessary here to notice the results in the case of the first eight.

3. The first candidate on the list in order of merit was Baboo Surya Kumar Agasti, lately appointed a Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, as one of the successful candidates in the competitive examination held last year. In the present examination he obtained 352 marks for his Essay, 81 in Literature, 100 in History and Philosophy, 36 in Mathematics, 44 in Physics and Chemistry, 137 in Revenue Law, and 102 in the Criminal Code, being a total of 852 out of 1,200. He belongs to a family holding a respectable position in the district of Midnapore, and was educated in the Presidency College. He obtained first class honors with his degree of Master of Arts, and has been a Premchand Roychand student. He was formerly employed as Professor of English Literature in the Metropolitan College, Calcutta, and subsequently in the Dacca College, where he worked with success. His age is 27 years; but as he is already in the service of Government, the Lieutenant-Governor considers that this should not be a bar to appointment to the Statutory Civil Service. Looking to his antecedents and to the remarkable capacity and attainments indicated by the results of the examination, the Lieutenant-Governor has no hesitation in recommending him for one of the two appointments to be now made.

4. The second candidate in the examination list is Baboo Ashutosh Gupta, who has been in the Subordinate Executive Service since 1880. He obtained the following marks:—English Essay, 260; Literature, 44; History and Philosophy, 56; Mathematics, 49; Physics and Chemistry, 40; Revenue Law, 113; Criminal Code, 129. He belongs to a respectable family in Hooghly, took the degree of M.A. with honors, and was a Premchand Roychand student. He bears a very high character as an officer. In 1882 and 1883 he was reported on most favourably by his district officer and by both the Officiating and Permanent Commissioners of Bhagulpore. In 1883-84 the Deputy Commissioner of Lohardugga described him as "a first class officer, clever and painstaking," while the Commissioner of Chota Nagpore wrote of him as "a most promising officer, who seems likely to prove exceptionally good, both in executive and judicial work." The Lieutenant-Governor would recommend him for the second appointment. His age is 24 years.

5. It is unnecessary to describe the remaining candidates with so much detail. The third in the list, Baboo Barada Charan Mittra, obtained a total of 664 marks. He is the son of a late deputy import supervisor in the Calcutta Custom House. He took the degree of M.A. with honors, and is described as strong, healthy, and able to ride. The fourth candidate, Baboo Nilkanto Sarkar, is an Officiating Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector. He obtained 661 marks and is over 30 years of age. The fifth candidate, Baboo Kedarnath Roy, is a Munsif aged 29 years. He obtained 640 marks. The examiners considered that the 6th, 7th, and 8th candidates might well be bracketted for the sixth place. The sixth, Baboo Umesh Chunder Batabyal, obtained 628 marks; the seventh, Baboo Jogen Chunder Dutt, 623; and the eighth, Baboo Satis Chunder Bose 620. The first of these three last-named gentlemen is a Deputy Magistrate of very high character.

6. Four Mahomedan candidates appeared at the examination. The Lieutenant-Governor would have been very glad to have been in a position to recommend one of these gentlemen for an appointment; and he would have done so if the results of the examination had brought any one of them even near the more successful competitors. But while the lowest of the first eight candidates in order of merit obtained 620 marks as mentioned above, the marks obtained by the Mahomedan candidate who stood highest amounted to only 474.

7. A nominal list of all those who went up for the examination in their order of merit according to the results of the examination is submitted for the information of the Government of India.

No. 396, dated Calcutta, the 17th March 1885.

From—F. C. DAUKES, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal; Appointment Department.

IN reply to your letter No. 700A, dated the 11th ultimo, I am directed to say that, from the nominations submitted for probationary appointments in the Statutory Civil Service, the Governor-General in Council accepts those of Baboo Surya Kumar Agasti and Baboo Ashutosh Gupta. These gentlemen belong to the Subordinate Executive Service and gained the first and second places respectively at the competitive examination held in December 1884.

SUBORDINATE EXECUTIVE SERVICE EXAMINATION.

RESOLUTION.

APPOINTMENT DEPARTMENT.

Dated Calcutta, the 23rd March 1885.

READ—

The Resolution of the 23rd February 1883, on the subject of the Examination of Candidates for admission into the Subordinate Executive Service.

Resolutions dated the 21st April 1884 and the 3rd February 1885 on the above subject.

Notification dated the 8th January 1885, declaring that the number of appointments to be competed for at the Subordinate Executive Service Examination held in January 1885 would be twelve.

Read also—

The Report of the Examiners on the Examination held in January 1885.

In accordance with the resolution of this Government, dated the 21st April 1884, an examination of candidates for admission into the Subordinate Executive Service was held in the Senate House, Calcutta, on the 15th, 16th, 17th and 19th January last. For this examination all natives of India, who had passed the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University, or who produced satisfactory evidence from competent authority of having received a good education up to the standard at least of the Entrance Examination, were declared to be eligible. Intimation was given that there would be twelve appointments open to competition.

2. Altogether 62 candidates fulfilled the requirements of the rules, and were allowed to present themselves for examination. Only 59, however, actually appeared at the examination, and of these the twelve gentlemen named below have succeeded in obtaining the highest aggregate of marks:—

1. Baboo Bhupati Chuckerbutty, M.A., B.L.
2. ,, Nagendra Nath Ghose, M.A.
3. ,, Krishnakali Mookerjee, B.A.
4. ,, Satis Chandra Bose, B.A.
5. Mr. A. L. McGavin.
6. Baboo Basantakrishna Bose, B.A.
7. ,, Gogan Chunder Das, M A.
8. ,, Kunja Behary Chatterjee, B.A.
9. ,, Priya Nath Mookerjee, M.A.
10. ,, Ram Sadan Bhattacharjee, M.A.
11. ,, Jagat Chunder Bose, B.A.
12. ,, Chandra Sekhar Kur.

3. The first six gentlemen are appointed in their order to be Officiating Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors on Rs 200 a month. The other gentlemen will be appointed to fill similar vacancies in the Subordinate Executive Service as they occur, according to the order in which their names are placed. In the meanwhile such of them as do not at present hold appointments in the public service of more than Rs. 50 a month, and, at their option, those who do hold such appointments, will be placed under the orders of Commissioners of Divisions for employment on any general duties which may qualify them for the public service; and will receive each Rs. 50 per mensem as subsistence allowance. Though these gentlemen will have no official status, and will be vested with no criminal or revenue powers, many ways of utilizing their services will suggest themselves to Commissioners and District Officers. The Lieutenant-Governor wishes that, as far as possible, the employment assigned to them may be such as will give them an insight into the duties they will eventually have to perform, the object being to afford them an opportunity of acquiring as much experience as possible of a practical and useful character.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Ordered also that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to each of the gentlemen named above, for information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. WARE EDGAR,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

CALCUTTA, the 23rd March 1885.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 20TH OF MARCH 1885.

A MARKED feature in the meteorological conditions of the past week has been the oscillatory character of the barometer movements. On the 14th there were some indications of the high pressure, which has now prevailed over Bengal for some time, giving way, a distinct depression having apparently formed over North Bengal, but the disturbance proved only temporary, and on the 15th the barometer was rising again throughout the whole Province,—briskly in the north. On the following day there was again a downward oscillation of pressure, and on the 17th and 18th a brisk recovery, after which the barometer continued to fall steadily till the close of the week. The wind has been somewhat unsteady, but the prevailing direction in Orissa and the south of the 24-Pergunnahs has been south-westerly, in Midnapore and Burdwan north-westerly, in Behar south-westerly and in Hazaribagh north-westerly. These falls of the barometer, due to oscillations of pressure common to almost all parts of the country, and not to local depressions, were unaccompanied by any rain of importance. At Darjeeling, Cuttack and Gopalpore there were showers of about half an inch, and in East Bengal slight thunderstorms occasioned rather heavy falls at Chittagong and Noakholly.

Pressure, as in previous weeks, has been decidedly above the average. The excess is now as great in East and North Bengal as in Behar, and the variations throughout the whole Province range from 0·063 inch at Cuttack to 0·085 inch at Dacca. The average excess equals 0·072 inch, which shows a further rise as compared with last week.

The variations of temperature from the average have been irregular. The highest reading throughout the Province was 101·3° at Rampore Beauleah.

Rainfall, as above noticed, has been almost entirely absent, the only falls of importance having occurred in the thunderstorms in East Bengal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 20th March 1885:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

MEMORANDA ON THE MORTUARY STATISTICS OF THE DISTRICTS IN BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF JANUARY 1885.

THE subjoined table discloses that, during the above mentioned month, 108,764 persons died among a population of 66,163,884, representing a death-rate of 19·68 per 1,000 per annum, against 26·28 per 1,000 during the preceding month, and 20·40 per 1,000 during the corresponding month of the past year, indicating, as compared with the preceding month, a considerable falling off in the registration of deaths.

2. The undermentioned districts returned the highest proportions of deaths:—

Districts.	Ratio per mille.	Districts.	Ratio per mille.
Rajshahye	33·12	Nuddea	29·52
Pubna	32·73	Backergunge	28·68
Jessore	32·64	Hughli	27·28
24-Pergunnahs	31·32	Howrah	26·88
Khulna	30·24	Poori	26·40
Bogra	29·64	Noakhali	25·32

3. The mortality from the principal death-causes is exhibited below, as contrasted with the results of the corresponding month of 1884:—

	Ratio per mille during—
	January 1885.	January 1884.
Cholera	1·44	·84
Small-pox	·12	·12
Fever	14·40	15·36
Bowel-complaints	·84	·84
Injury	·12	·12
Other causes	2·64	3·00

The main features presented by the above figures are that there was a noticeable increase in fatal results from cholera, and a decrease in those from fever, and the diseases classed under the head of "Other causes," particularly from fever.

4. Of the above-named diseases only cholera, fever and maladies recorded under the head of "Other causes" were conspicuously fatal to life in the districts indicated below:—

Cholera.	Ratio per mille.	Fever.	Ratio per mille.	Other Causes.	Ratio per mille.

OFFICE OF SANITARY COMMISSIONER FOR BENGAL,
The 23rd March 1885.

R. LIDDERDALE, M D, Deputy Surgeon-General,
Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal.

MEMORANDA.

THE birth and death returns of the first class Municipalities in Bengal, for the week ending 7th March 1885, present the following results:—

1. That births and deaths were recorded in the proportions, respectively, of 22·9 and 31·4 per 1,000 of population, against 24·9 and 31·0 per 1,000, respectively, during the preceding week ending 28th February, showing a decrease in the registration of births.

2. That the following Municipalities furnished the highest proportions of births and deaths:—

Births.

	Ratio per mille.
Comillah	58·9
Serampore	43·2
Patna	32·8
Bhagulpore	31·7
Monghyr	30·7

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to, cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.
